CROSS . . . 'nice to see the sun again'

'Like Being Out of Hell'

Times News Services

MONTREAL — British diplomat James Cross stepped into the light of freedom Thursday for the first time in two months and said:

"It's almost like being out of hell—perhaps purgatory would be a better expression."

His freedom came when his terrorist kidnappers accepted a government offer of safe conduct and fled to exile in Cuba.

His captors and several members of their families left Montreal about 4:47 p.m. (PST) bound for their Caribbean sanctuary aboard a Canadian Forces Yukon transport plane.

Cross was apparently in good physical and mental shape after his 60-day ordeal, but was taken early today to Jewish General Hospital.

He suffers from a blood-pressure ailment but apparently had medication for the condition during his captivity.

In Ottawa it was announced that Cross will be flown to London Saturday where he will rejoin his wife.

Cross said Thursday was "one of the happiest days of my life."

Referring to his sunless eight weeks, Cross said: "It's a small thing and suddenly you come out of a house and it's a bright day like today and you suddenly realize how much a little thing like that, that costs you nothing, means in one's day-to-day life."

He described his situation in captivity as "a state of suspended animation" and said he thought he had seen more than 160 films on television.

"They were French films so that I'm probably the leading expert of the past 30 years," he joked.

But he introduced a more sombre note as he said he did not know his future plans.

"It may be difficult for me to return to Montreal," he said.

"I've enjoyed enormously my three years here and it's a bit sad that we ended up on this note."

The diplomat's release brought a happy ending to a drama in which troops stood guard with automatic weapons in Quebec province and Ottawa and police powers were Beefed up with special powers of arrest and detention under the War Measures Act.

The happy fate of Cross, North America's first victim of political kidnapping, contrasted starkly with the fate of Pierre Laporte, former

Duplex Eyed Over 2 Weeks

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Police suspected for 2½ weeks that the Montreal North duplex was the FLQ prison of James Cross, says Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette.

"But they were not really sure until Wednesday night," he told a news conference.

The stakes were too high—Mr. Cross' life—to move in earlier.

As it turned out, the three persons holding the 49-year-old envoy got wind of the police presence and threatened to kill him if any attempts were made to rescue him.

THROW OUT NOTE

After police had encircled the house—sealed off now for an indefinite period—and were ready to move in Thursday morning, someone threw out a lead pipe containing a toughly-worded message which read:

"If you try anything gas, guns, etc. Mr. J. Cross will be the first to die. We have several sticks of dynamite with detonators."

Mr. Choquette confirmed police fears about the danger involved in any premature action, saying they had to "pay attention" to Mr. Cross' life.

"The threat of an explosion was a real threat."

With the house "completely cornered" by several hundred police and soldiers, Mr. Choquette said, the three men holding Mr. Cross had to negotiate their way out.

What would have happened if the trio had refused to negotiate?

ASK FOR NEGOTIATOR

"I can't see many avenues," Mr. Choquette said. "I can see a siege, a long drawn-out siege, or other police actions. But the problem never arose."

MRS. CROSS ELATED

SEE PAGE 7

The note asked that a reporter from Le Devoir, the weekly Quebec-Presse or lawyer Bernard Mergler, who has often represented accused terrorists, enter negotiations.

Mr. Mergler was selected and an agreement was reached about 1 p.m., with a total of seven persons getting safe passage to Cuba in exchange for Mr. Cross, Mr. Choquette said.

Robert Demers acted as negotiator for the Quebec and federal governments.

Mr. Choquette said it was even a tight-rope situation in getting the entire group to the Canadian pavilion on the former site of Expo '67, where Mr. Cross was to be released on temporary Cuban soil and the seven would be

CROSS GAVE CLUE IN LETTER

TORONTO (UPI) — British diplomat James Cross may have helped police discover the Montreal northend hideout where he was kept hostage for 60 days by the Front de Liberation du Quebec, the Toronto Star said today.

In a letter written early in his captivity, and released by the FLQ, Cross wrote the date and time—9:45 a.m.—at the top of the paper.

Then he underlined the numeral "one" at the beginning of the first paragraph, the newspaper said. In military terms, 9:45 a.m. is written 0945.

"Add the 'one' from the first paragraph and you have 10945, the precise address on Avenue des Recollets," the street on which the house that contained Cross and his abductors is located.

Dublin Fears Uprising

DUBLIN (AP) — The Irish Republican government tonight assumed sweeping powers to intern any citizen because of what it called "a secret armed conspiracy" against the state.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch said in a statement that Ireland's police forces had uncovered a plot to kidnap prominent personalities, carry out raids on banks and even attempt murder of leading officials.

The government views the situation "with deep gravity," the prime minister added.

Seattle Mayor Opposes Skagit Valley Flooding

Seattle Mayor Wes Uhlman said Thursday he opposes the flooding of the Skagit Valley and has directed Seattle City Light not to apply to the Federal Power Commission for permission to go ahead on the project.

The mayor's action was in response to a request from the chairman of the city's utilities committee asking for his position on the controversial project which would flood more than 5,000 acres of B.C. land.

Uhlman's order not to proceed could be overturned by the city council which is currently considering the question. A spokesman for the mayor's office said there have been some changes in council makeup since 1969 when the council gave permission for the application to proceed.

But there was no indication which way the council would vote on the question.

In his letter, Uhlman said that after a review of the issue "the negative environmental impact appears to outweigh the real power benefits."

OLD AGREEMENT

Under a 1942 international agreement and a 1967 agreement with B.C., Seattle has the right to raise the level of Ross Lake flooding the Skagit to raise peak power capacity of the Ross Dam.

The city needs permission of the U.S. federal power commission before it can proceed.

USC Provides Them With Gift of Life

As Christmas approaches for Canadians, thoughts turn to scenes of gifts laid out under a decorated tree, fun times with friends and relatives and of course a traditional Christmas dinner, complete with turkey, potatoes and plum puddings.

For the children of Asia no such pleasant scene exists. No puddings, no gifts, no tree. Only the day-to-day search for the source of their next meal.

For many Asian children that source is the Unitarian Service Committee, a private charitable organization which for 25 years has been supplying food, clothing and educational services to needy people around the world.

The USC needs donations however to be able to provide these services and this year, for the 18th consecutive year, the Victoria Daily Times is sponsoring the USC's Children of Asia Fund.

Donations to the fund may be mailed or delivered personally to the Times, 2631 Douglas.

Budget Hit By Bennett

Loan Plan Favors Quebec

Premier Bennett reacted angrily today to the federal budget speech given by Finance Minister Benson Thursday night.

"The federal government is a government for Quebec . . . just a regional, one-province government," Bennett said, commenting on a new loan plan that permits Quebec to borrow $68 million, British Columbia $35 million and Ontario $17 million.

The loans are to provide provincial and municipal works projects to combat unemployment.

The program was proposed by Quebec, which gets the lion's share of the money. B.C. and Ontario are the only two other provinces to be eligible for more than $10 million.

Newfoundland may borrow up to $5 million, Prince Edward Island $1 million, Nova Scotia $4 million, New Brunswick $4 million, Manitoba $8 million, Saskatchewan

LITTLE FOR ALBERTA IN BUDGET—STROM

Alberta Premier Harry Strom today criticized Finance Minister Benson's mini-budget saying it gives little to the prairie provinces but a lot to Quebec.

Strom joins others who believe there is little or nothing offered to spur the economy. See Page 8.

Locally, both business and labor leaders are cool to the budget proposals. See story on Page 2.

Make-Work Plan Pushed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has chosen make-work projects rather than personal tax cuts to pump new life into the Canadian economy in the next year.

In his Thursday night budget, Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced a string of measures designed to funnel more money into public and private projects in an effort to stimulate the economy and reduce unemployment.

UIC Benefits Increased 10%

His announcements included:

—A 10-per-cent increase in unemployment insurance benefits starting Jan. 3.

—A new loan fund of $151 million to help finance provincial public works projects.

—An incentive plan to save business about $25 million next year and encourage plant construction and expansion.

—Additional spending of $23 million on federal job-creating projects, $20 million for roads and services for the new Montreal airport and $40 million for Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. to encourage home construction.

—Extension of government programs aimed at assisting industry in certain slow-growth areas where unemployment is highest.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield immediately termed it a budget of "groans, bones and loans."

NDP Calls Hike Ridiculous

Mr. Stanfield said the only bright note was the increase in unemployment insurance benefits and Mr. Lewis called it ridiculous since the increase was so small.

The loan fund to encourage new works in the provinces is to be allocated on a formula tied to the unemployment rate, thus putting the majority of the new jobs where they are most needed. It could lead to creation of 15,000 to 25,000 year-long jobs.

The budget was the second this year. The first, last March, came when inflation was the main concern and Mr. Benson said Thursday that this danger has not passed.

The increase in unemployment insurance benefits will run until the end of June, when a revised, higher scale of payments becomes effective.

Pump Money in Job-Scarce Areas

The interim increase, the first since June, 1968, will provide an extra $20 monthly to unemployed workers whose earnings while they worked were $90 a week or more. About half of those now unemployed fall within this range.

The program of loans and grants for public works projects by federal, provincial and municipal governments pumps an extra $200 million or so into regions where jobs are scarce. About half goes to Quebec.

The major scheme is the $151 million loan fund from which the provinces can borrow at low interest for long terms. Tied to a regional unemployment formula, it provides amounts ranging from $68 million for Quebec and $35 million for British Columbia to $1 million for Prince Edward Island.

An earlier program de-

KIDNAPPERS MAY NEVER RETURN

Charges Hang Over Them

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials of the justice department said today that if the kidnappers of James Cross return to Canada at any time, they must face criminal charges.

Don Christie, assistant deputy attorney-general, said an obvious charge against some of those flown to Cuba Thursday is one of kidnapping.

"Because it is an indictable offence and carries a sentence of jail for life, the statute of limitations does not apply in their case," Christie said.

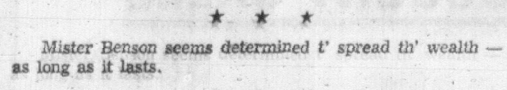
"If they want to come back at any time, they would do so at their own risk," said Christie.

Jacques Lanctot, 25, and Marc Carbonneau, 37, among the seven flown to Cuba in return for the release of Cross, are said to be subject to kidnap charges.

Also on the plane is Perre Seguin, the third man in the north-end Montreal apartment in which the British trade envoy was being held.

No warrants were out for Seguin but informed sources here said he was fingerprinted before departure.

Sources said the government won't seek extradition of the men, though the possibility technically may exist.



Th' best part o' th' Cross case is thet th' kidnappers couldn't make it inta a double.

Fuel Truck Overturns In Ditch

A truck loaded with 15 tons of furnace oil crashed into a ditch and overturned in the 6500 block Wallace early Thursday knocking out power in the area for three hours.

Driver Charles E. Robinson of 9522 Lochside, Sidney, escaped injury.

The truck was making home deliveries for Shade Bros. of Sidney when the accident occurred on Wallace between West Saanich and Stelly's Cross road.

Police said the truck hit some ice, sending the vehicle into the six-foot deep ditch.

Shadow Mischief

. . . IT'S LIKE LEAVING HELL

Quebec labor minister kidnapped Oct. 10 — five days after Cross — and strangled one week later.

Flown from Montreal to sanctuary in Cuba, meanwhile, are kidnap suspects Jacques Lanctot's brother-in-law Jaeques Dosette Trudel and Pierre Seguin, previously unknown to police. With them are Lanctot's wife and child and Trudel's wife.

A little more than an hour after Cross arrived at the Jewish General Hospital, two doctors reported he was in good physical and mental condition although he suffered from minor vitamin deficiencies which could be easily corrected.

Dr. David Costom, his personal physician, and Dr. Leonard Brandt, chief of the hospital's department of medicine, said after a brief checkup that Cross had lost 22 pounds while held in captivity by the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

The weight loss might have been due to a starch diet during captivity since Cross was kidnapped Oct. 5, the doctors said.

The senior British trade commissioner in Montreal had been reported to suffer from high blood pressure but the doctors' report said this ailment had not been affected by his ordeal.

The doctors said they expected Cross to remain at the hospital "for at least a day" and a more thorough examination would be made later today.

Cross remained in custody of Cuban officials Thursday night under an agreement between his kidnappers and the Quebec and Canadian governments. He was released about 11 p.m. (PST) after Cuban officials received word from Havana that the kidnap suspects had arrived.

signed to cool off commercial building in fast-growing areas will be allowed to lapse on schedule in the coming year.

In a new move to encourage spending on expansion or construction of plant facilities, manufacturing and processing companies will be allowed to claim depreciation on 15 per cent more than their actual cost of machinery, equipment and buildings between now and April 1, 1972.

Mr. Benson said this would save these companies about $25 million a year in taxes. Such costs are written off over different periods but one estimate is that the move could cut business taxes by $225 million over the full depreciation period.

He rejected tax cuts as the most effective way of stimulating the economy.

The general tone of the budget, Mr. Benson said, is to get more growth and more jobs without causing renewed inflation.

The government's program of grants and loans to encourage more industry in slow-growth areas is being extended to include Montreal, Hull, Que., all the southwestern part of Quebec province and the counties of Stormont, Glengarry and Prescott in eastern Ontario.

The government also will guarantee loans for business expansions in the Atlantic provinces, Quebec and previously-designated areas in Ontario and Western Canada. The details will be included in detail in legislation to be introduced Monday.

The budget was a sharp swing towards deficit and, together with heavy dependence on new government lending, means the government must raise more cash through borrowings.

From a 1969-70 surplus of $375 million for the fiscal year ended March 31, the government's budget went to an expected deficit of $320 million for the current fiscal year.

If carried forward without change into the 1971-72 fiscal year, the new budget could result in a deficit then of $570 million.

But Mr. Benson warned that he will keep the economy under steady review and introduce further budgets any time necessary.

taken to Montreal International Airport.

"I don't think that they (those found with Mr. Cross) were armed" when they reached the Canadian pavilion. "But I am told there was dynamite in the back of the car."

ESCORTED BY POLICE

The car, an old, beat-up Chrysler, was driven under heavy police escort by Marc Carbonneau, wanted in the kidnapping Oct. 5 of Mr. Cross and the Oct. 10 abduction of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's labor minister slain Oct. 17.

Mr. Choquette said, however, that despite the warrant for Carbonneau, a 37-year-old former taxi driver, he was not involved in the Laporte case.

Otherwise, he would never have been allowed safe passage to Cuba, since people wanted in the Laporte case are not included in the exchange offers from Quebec and Ottawa.

Mr. Choquette said Carbonneau's "main activity" was connected to the Cross abduction.

With Carbonneau on the flight to Cuba were Jacques Lanctot, his wife and child, Lanctot's brother-in-law Jacques Cosette Trudel, his wife and Pierre Seguin, an unknown.

Mr. Cross, according to Premier Robert Bourassa spent most of his 60 days of captivity in a small, windowless room.

CONDITION GOOD

As Mr. Choquette put it:

"I can assure everyone ... that Mr. Cross seemed in excellent physical and mental condition."

In a brief chat with Mr. Cross, Mr. Choquette found him to be stoic and courageous, accepting his lot, "but he was a man who had lost two months of his life."

Mr. Cross had suffered physically to some extent "because a man who was held in detention for two months was bound to have some marks."

Mr. Cross also talked to his wife Barbara, staying with friends in Switzerland, to Prime Minister Edward Heath of England and to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Meanwhile, there was still the search for the kidnappers and murderers of Mr. Laporte, strangled with a chain around his neck that held a religious medal.

"We will pursue to the end the murderers of Mr. Laporte," Mr. Choquette said. He called Mr. Laporte "a valiant Quebecer."

Wanted in the Laporte case are brothers Jacques and Paul Rose and Francis Simard.

Business, Labor Cool To Pre-Yule Budget

Finance Minister Edgar Benson's pre-Christmas budget did not go far enough, business and labor spokesmen said today.

The amount of a special low-interest loan to B.C. for antirecession capital projects ($35 million out of a total $151 million) reflects the high level of unemployment here, said David Fraser, vice-president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and manager of Canadian Industries Ltd.

"The increased unemployment insurance is a step in the right direction for those areas where unemployment is high," Fraser said.

"But a lot of people are going to be disappointed the three per cent income surtax was not removed."

John Schibli, president of the Carpenters' Union and secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, said the special fund could alleviate some local unemployment.

"I believe a number of projects in mothballs are ready to go, such as hospitals and recreation wings on schools."

Schibli said Island tradesmen, who number around 6,000, have an unemployment rate of 10 per cent, with carpenters and laborers about 20 per cent unemployed.

Boilermakers business agent Neil Hindle said a start could be made on construction of a sister ship to the Queen of Prince Rupert.

"According to the minister, (Benson), the provinces suggested this fund, and I hope they unveil their plans," Hindle said.

"I can see what they're doing: they're trying to spur the economy without heating it up too much.

"But what we need is jobs — jobs are the only answer. It's no fun facing unemployed people every day."

New Democratic Party leader Tommy Douglas, speaking in Ladysmith, described the mini-budget as a "dismal flop".

He said industrial incentives were provided for northern Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces, but none for British Columbia which has one of the highest unemployment rates.

Bert Kennedy, manager of Richardson Securities Ltd., said:

"It's really a non-budget. I think it helped the building and steel stocks a bit," but had little other affect on the market.

Tree Cutting Condemned

Ald. Tom Christie said today Victoria Press Ltd. should have found a way to preserve a row of chestnut trees that were cut down this week to make way for a new building.

The trees on the old North Ward school property adjacent to the Victoria Press building were probably 100 years old, Christie said, and can't be replaced.

Victoria Press assistant general manager Hector Alexander said "we looked at every possibility and there was just no way to leave them. You just can't put up a new building when there are trees on the site."

New trees will be planted after completion of the building, he said.

Christie called the tree-cutting an "atrocious violation of good corporate citizenship," especially when it was done by a company which had criticized city hall for allowing other trees to be cut down for purposes of construction.

"All I can say is that it's pretty short-sighted of the newspaper to destroy these trees," Christie said.

$5 million and Alberta $4 million.

The Northwest Territories and the Yukon apparently will not be given an opportunity to share in this loan program.

NO RATE

Benson tagged it as a low-interest loan fund but gave no indication of what the interest and repayment rates would be. No mention was made of the possibility of a forgiveness clause.

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi today termed the offer of a $35 million federal loan "a joke."

He said the interest rate charged will be that paid by the province on their borrowings from the Canada Pension Fund which in December was 7.91 per cent.

"It's absolutely ludicrous," he said. "We can borrow our own money at eight per cent."

The loan fund was the major part of a $211 million program to combat unemployment.

Additionally, Quebec is to receive an outright grant of $20 million for access roads and other municipal services for a new airport at Ste. Scholastique, near Montreal.

A further $40 million was earmarked for federal house-building loans through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

"What budget?" was Bennett's first comment on the subject, but he added:

"What I noticed is that if he hadn't brought down his budget all the working people in Canada would be better off by three per cent."

The budget extended the three per cent surtax on income for another year and made available $151 million public works loan fund to the provinces.

"I don't know what it's all about," Bennett said of the loan fund. "We don't want to borrow any money from Ottawa."

LOW - COST MONEY

He added that if Ottawa would make some "low-cost money" available to municipalities, it would be fine with B.C.

At this point Bennett snapped:

"We no longer have national government. It's a government for Quebec, a regional one-province government."

Asked by a reporter whether he felt there should have been some new incentive development areas for parts of B.C., Bennett replied: "I'm glad to see (you) agree there is nothing in the budget for B.C."

Popular Corridor Buzz: Why Call It a Budget?

By CARL MOLLINS

BENSON
. . . defends procedure

OTTAWA (CP) — The most common question in parliamentary corridors Thursday night was why Finance Minister Edgar Benson chose to round up a series of anti-recession measures as a formal budget.

Mr. Benson at a news briefing following his budget speech cited his tax changes as the explanation, notably the easier ride accorded manufacturers on allowances for capital investment.

But that didn't stifle the questions.

More than half the additional spending announced for the coming months had been known.

Other features — increased unemployment benefits, aid for footwear manufacturers, extension of the regional development program—had been ready for simultaneous announcement by the departments concerned.

STRESSES ALLOWED

As for additional funds for public works to stimulate employment, Mr. Benson had presented a similar measure just seven weeks earlier as a simple statement to the Commons.

In answer to a question at the briefing, Mr. Benson mentioned the decision to prolong the three-per-cent income surtax but stressed the decision to give manufacturers an easier break on capital-cost tax allowances.

"The opposition would have raised hell," he said, had he tried to introduce the measure other than through a formal budget. The change will reduce tax revenue by an estimated $25 million out of the total take approaching $14 billion in the next financial year, but extension of the surtax will add $67 million.

Mr. Benson also remarked that his officials had been analysing the state of the economy —which led them to the idea of a budget—"long before the Quebec emergency."

The first hint that there was to be an announcement of additional spending came two weeks ago in a statement by Works Minister Arthur Laing. A few weeks earlier, at the end of October, Mr. Benson had been looking ahead publicly only to a spring budget.

Roughly half of the additional spending announced Thursday night will go into Quebec in the wake of the separatist emergency that began with the kidnapping Oct. 5 of British trade commissioner James Cross, who was freed on budget day.

Whatever the government's reason for announcing a roundup of aid to Quebec at this point, it won't hurt the anti-separatist campaign by the Trudeau administration in Ottawa and the Bourassa government in Quebec City.

Opposition Flails Away At Pension Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's old age pension proposals continued to take a hammering from the opposition in the Commons Thursday. MPs insisted old age pensioners would get a better basic pension after Jan. 1 under the current system than under the proposed legislation.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) and former Conservative health minister J. Waldo Monteith (Perth-Wilmot) said pensioners would receive $81.50 a month under the present system with a cost-of-living increase after Jan. 1 as opposed to the $80 basic rate proposed by the government.

The government legislation would freeze the basic pension at $80 a month—an over-all increase of 42 cents—while the guaranteed income supplement would be increased to $55 from $31.83 for single persons and to $95 from $63.66 for couples.

BILL WITHDRAWN

The debate was interrupted by an announcement from Prime Minister Trudeau that kidnapped British diplomat James Cross had been released.

Earlier, after some confusion, opposition and government combined to have proposed legislation limiting the powers of the auditor-general withdrawn.

In the Senate, the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970 received third reading. The measure, later given royal assent, replaces the War Measures Act regulations invoked by the government Oct. 16 to deal with the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Also receiving royal assent was legislation establishing the Federal Court of Canada. The act renames the Exchequer Court with separate trial and appeal divisions established.

Mr. Monteith, in the pension debate, said the proposed increase is "woefully small."

But though pensioners would receive a better basic pension after Jan. 1 under the current system than under the proposals, he said he would support the bill because of the increases in the income supplement.

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) said the bill has "the sour smell of poverty about it."

She repeated NDP demands for a straight $150 monthly pension for the 1.7 million persons 65 and over, or a $100 pension and a $50 supplement.

Creditiste Henri Latulippe (Compton) supported the recommendation for a $150 monthly pension and said there should be no means test.

Gaston Isabelle (L—Hull), parliamentary secretary to Health Minister John Munro, said the white paper on social security is "a masterpiece." The minister had received a flood of congratulatory telephone calls and letters across Canada.

Nova Scotia Politician Dies at 62

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — J. Clyde Nunn, 62, a broadcaster and former provincial cabinet minister, died in hospital today after a long illness.

He produced and broadcast some of the first radio education programs in Nova Scotia. He taught school until 1937 when he entered the radio field as an announcer at radio station CJCB in Sydney.

Mr. Nunn was minister of labor and welfare in the Nova Scotia Liberal government of Henry Hicks.

At the time of his death, he was a member of the National Welfare Commission for Canada.

Identifying the Enemy

MR. BENSON'S BUDGET, WITH its projected $320 millions deficit for the coming year and $600 millions for 1971-72, along with his estimate that the government will put $1,500 millions more into the economy than it takes out, would be by normal standards a very inflationary one. It appears all the more so in view of earlier efforts to impose anti-inflationary measures on the economy. But the accent—it really began last March—has changed from anti-inflation to stimulation of production, with the hope of consequently increased employment during the coming winter. Obviously Mr. Benson, since he leaves the three per cent surtax on and does not cut any tax rates, believes that this can be achieved better through government spending than through private spending.

The unemployment situation is the prime motivation for the government's policy, and the geographical emphasis on the aid to be provided further illustrates this concern. An increase of $40 millions in federal funds for housing projects, and a 10 per cent raise in unemployment insurance benefits will be spread across the country. But the main expenditures will be directed to the unemployment problems in Quebec, the Maritimes, British Columbia and Ontario, with most emphasis on the first two.

Loans amounting to $150 millions will be made to provinces for job-creating projects; direct federal capital improvements to a total of $23 millions will be made in the urgent areas; Quebec will receive $20 millions for development of roads and local services near the new Montreal international airport; some capital incentive grants will go where they are most needed; the footwear industry—almost entirely located in Quebec—will get $1 million in aid, and the shipbuilding industry $5 millions. These sums appear to be much more than mere pump-priming, although the government obviously hopes that private investment will also be stimulated.

A hint that provincial governments are being given the go-ahead to catch up on the backlog of building projects—and schools and hospitals come first to mind—is contained in Mr. Benson's comment that "I feel sure that other levels of government will be demanding goods and services from the economy at a greater rate this year." But the minister added that he "would not shirk" from imposing mandatory restraints on prices and wages if these showed signs of running away as a result of the new stimulation.

The budget may be likened to a back-fire set to combat a forest conflagration. If it works it will effectively contain the main fire, inflation; but it could itself get out of hand and contribute to the destruction. Mr. Benson is approaching the problem with matches in one hand and a fire hose ready in the other. The value of instant and accurate economic statistics will be very evident in the coming months.

Shabby Beginning, Wretched End

THE SUCCESSFUL RELEASE of the FLQ hostage, Mr. James Cross, is a matter of nation-wide satisfaction—and it should set an example for other countries faced with the problem of ruthless kidnappers. The firm line taken by Prime Minister Trudeau in refusing to give in to the kidnappers' demands for ransom money and amnesty for convicted criminals has paid off.

Political kidnapping in Canada has been shown to be a losing game — with the only sure reward lifetime exile. There may be further incidents of this cowardly type of crime, for fanatics are difficult to predict, but as an effective weapon against society it has proved to be barren. The Cross case had reached a stalemate. The kidnappers could only kill him and face graver charges, or wait for ultimate detection.

The tragic death of Mr. Laporte, against this background, emerges even more clearly as a sacrifice for the country he loved. Potential kidnappers know now they have little to hope for, much to fear, and above all no public gain to expect for their cause. Who knows how many lives of men marked to become hostages have been saved by this strong stand?

The final scenes of the Cross drama showed the FLQ revolutionaries to be harried little men, scurrying to save their skins when the police net closed in around them. It is not from such material that society can be rebuilt; it is not from such motives that great causes are fashioned. All that the desperadoes have won is deportation. Canada is a cleaner country today.

How Much for Education?

THE CONCERN EXPRESSED BY Dr. Gordon Bertram, an economist of the University of Victoria, that the funds spent on education in Canada may be pared, is easily understood. The universal need for advanced education in this era of technological, social and political progress is obvious. And from a practical standpoint, statistics show that the farther an individual goes in school and university the higher the income he may expect to achieve, and the greater the benefits that accrue to his community and the country in general. A heavy cutback in education appropriations could adversely affect this trend.

The problem, however, is not so much the recognition of the benefits of higher education as the ability of the country's taxpayers to carry the cost load if it continues to increase at its present rate. Within a generation, economists warn, the costs of education (and some link welfare with it) rising at the current rate could absorb the entire Gross National Product. In other words, if these projections proved correct, no funds would be left for any other governmental service.

Dr. Bertram's remarks come at a time when American authorities have had their attention drawn to a report by a California-based Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, headed by Dr. Clark Kerr, the former president of the University of California. This report suggests a new approach to education beyond elementary grades. It proposes a reduction of one year in the high school course and one year in the degree course for university. To compensate, it also favors a program to encourage the return to class of students who have prematurely broken off their formal education in order to take a job.

The flavor of the report is not anti-intellectual. It suggests, however, that a different approach to higher education might make it more productive for the individual, yet still keep it within the financial capability of the public.

Over-dramatized

Re: Mr. Hunter's article of November 26 on ECT:

I may agree with Mr. Hunter's statement that no one really understands how ECT works, but find his description of the treatment greatly over-dramatized.

I do not know how many of the treatments he witnessed, but he did not seem to notice, or did not mention, that the patients are anaesthetized before the muscle relaxant is given and during the application of the shock. Also, the muscle relaxant, if administered properly, eliminates much of the physical manifestations of the subsequent seizure. The patient does not react as violently as is conveyed in the article, and restraint is merely a precautionary procedure for the occasional patient who may experience more of a convulsion.

Perhaps Mr. Hunter witnessed one of these patients, but even then his description is wildly exagggerated. He has inserted a bit too much of his obviously vivid imagination into the article, thus painting an unreal picture with a high-school flavor.—P.B.

Prompt Service

I would like to publicly acknowledge the assistance and prompt service of the Victoria Fire Department, with regard to a minor fire on November 27, 1970.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

Who Pays for Selective Social Security?

THE government's latest white paper is not intended solely to implement Mr. Trudeau's principle of selectivity in social security policies. It will also effect a substantial expansion of the system. Expenditures are to rise by $1 billion over the next three years. This assumes agreement of the provinces on proposed changes in the Canada Pension Plan and Youth Allowances. It also assumes very substantial inflation with average wages rising as much in the next five years as in the period since January 1966.

Western

The most dramatic change will result from a complete renovation of the Family Allowance system. This has been much criticized as socially wasteful. Much of the money has obviously gone to families who had little need of it and must have been net contributors in any event.

The Economic Council found that the program had no clear purpose and this now appears to be admitted, at least implicitly. According to the white paper, "it was initially intended also to bolster income and employment in the post-war period by providing a steady flow of income security payments into the consumer spending stream."

In other words, the government's advisers in 1945 expected a recession and sought to avert it by injecting purchasing power in this form into the economic system.

Income Redistribution

An income ceiling on allowances has sometimes been advocated as a means of curtailing huge annual increases in the federal budget. But the new scheme is directed solely to redistribution of income. It will not reduce but increase expenditures by $100 million. Through graduation of benefits in accordance with income, a cut-off at the $10,000 income level and the inclusion of benefits in tax liability, it will be possible, however, to effect a shift of $270 millions within the system.

The new monthly payments, up to $16 a child (a 100 per cent increase in some cases), will have a substantial effect on family budgetting. So will the large increases in guaranteed income supplements for aged persons, which are to cost an additional $194 million.

But in fact about 52 per cent of persons in receipt of old age pensions do not receive the GIS payments. They are people who managed to set aside some savings in their active years or perhaps find means of supplementing their income.

Some of them may now have a double grievance. If they were pensioners in January 1966, they were automatically ruled out of the Canada pension plans. They were, of course, entitled as of right to the universal old age pension: a point emphasized at its inception by Mr. St. Laurent. But since 1966 they have suffered from inflation for which they have been inadequately compensated by cost-of-living increments limited to two per cent.

Frozen Pension

Now what happens? Their pensions are to be frozen at $80 although the government anticipates continuing inflation. They are to lose the slight concession they gained. Those, however, whose incomes are low enough to entitle them to claim GIS payments will continue to receive price-related adjustments both for the flat rate payment and the supplement. By this change, which seems manifestly unfair, the government will make unassisted pensioners subsidize others by some $15 million in the first year, rising to $100 million in 1975-76.

In the case of unemployment insurance, the principle of selectivity is shunted aside.

Instead, the government invokes universality. People are to be insured against unemployment, whether or not they want or need the insurance so that more money can be poured into the fund and large benefits paid out. The white paper is very vague about the costs but presumably they will account for a good deal of the additional anticipated billion dollars.

Although the Canada Pension Plan is relatively new it is already a victim of inflation. As the white paper observes: "If action is not taken to update the earnings ceiling, the earnings-related basis of the plan will be undermined."

Immediate change is impossible, the provinces being entitled to three years' notice. Assuming that two-thirds of them agree, contributions will rise, however, in three stages reaching $129.60 in 1975.

The paper also contemplates changes in the various social assistance programs but these also, being within the jurisdiction of the provinces, will require intergovernmental approval.

This is an "opening statement" which will be subject to the various modifying influences implicit in the white paper "dialogue." It certainly has one characteristic in common with Mr. Benson's earlier paper: it strikes at the same taxpayer target, the so-called middle income man.

But there is one difference. Dialogue is apparently to be somewhat telescoped, possibly because of the excessive participation of taxpayers in the Benson case. Among other warnings are the following.

Guaranteed income supplement: "Legislation to be introduced in Parliament forthwith . . .

Family income security plan: "It is expected that legislation will be introduced in Parliament early in 1971.

Old age security: Legislation to be introduced in Parliament forthwith so that change will become effective January 1971."

The white paper devotes most of a chapter to the guaranteed income approach, disposing effectively of the notion that it offers a relatively simple alternative to the present mix of programs. One major difficulty is that some of the present programs cannot readily be supplanted since there exists a contractural relationship between the state and the citizens.

This is the case, for example, with pensions and workmen's compensation. Another problem is that, even with income supplements, some people will continue to need social assistance in various forms.

This means that a guaranteed annual income would have to be superimposed, at least in large part, on the existing system. The cost would depend naturally on the income levels guaranteed. Taking those used by the Economic Council in its brief to the Senate poverty committee, and deducting costs of non-contractual programs, the white paper estimates the additional bill at between $2 billion and $2.6 billion. Another calculation, based on considerably lower guarantees, still calls for extra outlay of $800 million to $1.4 billion.

As the white paper recognizes, so large a new burden would have important implications for the economy. There would be less money to stimulate growth. There would be higher taxes, increasing costs and impairing the competitive position of Canadian producers. Or the effect might be to create an even stronger upward pressure on prices since "there are serious limitations on any further tax increases that could be made in the next few years."

They may be even more serious than government officials imagine—once Mr. Munro, Mr. Mackasey and Mr. Benson are through with us.

THE ARMENIAN STORY

By C. L. SULZBERGER

The People God Forgot

THIS Sunday the Armenian Soviet Socialist Republic celebrates the fiftieth anniversary of its creation out of the ashes of Ottoman Turkey and the fire of the Bolshevik Revolution. Even if they have not found freedom and independence, the Armenians at least secured a haven safe from organized pillage and racial genocide. The Armenians were the Jews of World War I. Their implacable enemies, the Turks, had begun to massacre them systematically in 1895 under Sultan Abdul Hamid II, but the greatest single disaster they incurred came in 1915. The Turks, then fearing collaboration between this Christian minority and the Russian Army of the Caucasus, decided to deport the entire population of their Armenian province to distant Syria and Mesopotamia.

Sulzberger

Approximately 1.75-million people were removed under barbaric circumstances. Some 600,000 died or were slaughtered en route. For Armenians this terrible event was the equivalent of Dachau, Auschwitz and Belsen for the Jews of World War II.

Like the Poles, Kurds and other frontier peoples, the Armenians chose a bad place to settle. Few foreigners remember how ancient a nation they represent. Armenia is the oldest Christian state (since A.D. 300), and its roots stretch backward into remotest time.

Yet, with all their talents, culture and intelligence, they suffered continual depredations from imperial armies that surrounded them. The Romans and Parthians regarded them as alternately a buffer state or a battlefield. The Byzantine Empire and Persia inherited this cynical habit, which, eventually, was handed on to the Turks and the Russians.

Enduring Vitality

The last king of independent Armenia died in exile in Paris in 1393, and the freedom of God's oldest Christian citadel was extinguished. Considering this, it is remarkable that, again like the Jews, the Armenians managed to preserve an enduring vitality and consciousness of their own.

Following World War I, the victorious Allies, responding to pangs of conscience similar to those that helped to create Israel as a Jewish haven after World War II, sponsored formation of a single Armenian state, uniting provinces from Ottoman Turkey and a Russia then torn by civil war.

Britain and France tried to induce the United States to accept a mandate over this state, but the Senate refused. Nevertheless, the Treaty of Sevres officially recognized Armenia as a "free, independent state," and President Woodrow Wilson, asked to define its frontiers, awarded it 11,000 square miles comprising today's Soviet Republic plus 40,000 square miles of Turkey.

This splendid dream vanished with other Wilsonian visions. Kemal Ataturk forcibly recaptured the area awarded from Turkish territory, and the Soviet Army, after defeating pro-Czarist forces, fostered an Armenian peace pact with Turkey in 1920 ratifying the present borders.

A coalition of Communists and nationalists called Dashnaks formed a government that was promptly absorbed into the Soviet Union. Real independence was extinguished save for linguistic and cultural autonomy and a special, if subordinate, position for the Armenian Church within the officially atheistic U.S.S.R.

Nevertheless, even if their soul was fettered, the Armenians felt protected for the first time in six centuries. Fifty years ago, when the Soviet Republic was formed, its population was only about 700,000, and Erivan, the capital, contained but 30,000. Today they respectively hold more than 2.5-million and over 750,000.

Enormous public buildings and broad avenues have been erected in Erivan. Archeologist have dug up and restored ruins, including some of the most famous churches, and bibliophiles have assembled a magnificent collection of medieval manuscripts and early books.

De Gaulle Fiction

In the State Musem it is even asserted by guides pointing out the model of a copper mine at Alaverde that Charles de Gaulle was born there while his father worked as a supervisor — an agreeable Armenian fiction.

Perhaps another million Armenians reside elsewhere in the U.S.S.R., and probably two million more are scattered throughout the world. Since 1920 there has been a considerable return from abroad, comparable to the Jewish "ingathering" in Israel.

To say that the Soviet Armenians are happy with their condition is almost certainly an exaggeration since they would undoubtedly prefer total independence and exuberant nationalistic Christianity. Nevertheless, for any Armenian Soviet existence is preferable to Turkish non-existence.

When he gazes westward to Turkey he remembers that Armenia's most renowned mountain, Ararat, where Noah landed his ark, looks down on a province once called Armenia but in which today no single Armenian lives. For him godlessness, as officially proclaimed by Soviet credo, is preferable to the traditional savagery suffered so long by a people God forgot.

The royal commission on industrial training and technical education held its second session in the Oak Room at the parliament buildings yesterday afternoon.

The members of the commission were greatly interested in the fact that dahlias, geraniums and other flowers were healthy and blossoming at Christmas. The members asked many questions and the chairman asked that a treatise on bulb growing be forwarded to the Commissioner at Ottawa.

Pakistan Junta Failed People

NEW STATESMAN
An Editorial

The cyclone which hit East Pakistan is a catastrophe that must never happen again.

Exactly 94 years ago, the Bay of Bengal rose in similar cyclonic fury and killed nearly two million people. The tragedy might justifiably have been forgotten by now but for the fact that every year, since then, between the same months of May and November the delta region of the Bay of Bengal has been cruelly hit and terrible losses have been inflicted on both man and beast.

During the last 10 years, cyclonic waves, torrential rains and massive floods have destroyed tens of thousands of lives in East Pakistan and West Bengal and left millions destitute. In August this year a cyclone of less magnitude wrought havoc in the area, postponing the elections, the first ever to be scheduled on the basis of universal franchise.

Unprepared

With this history of disaster it is tragic that the Pakistan government should have been unprepared and without even the basic facilities for rescue and relief operations.

The cyclone hit the Ganges delta on November 12. A fortnight later the Pakistan government had still not been able effectively to mobilize its resources to bring relief to the dying and suffering masses.

It is surprising that the army has not moved, as it might be expected to do in an emergency.

Pakistan is governed today under martial law by an authoritarian regime which has claimed to be ruling the country to save the people from corruption, apathy and inefficiency.

In the process the army junta has not hesitated to purge over 350 civil servants of long experience and high administrative ability and some very senior army officers from active duty.

The training of the old Indian civil service has disintegrated and Sandhurst-trained soldiers have been put in the service of the industrial tycoons and commercial wizards.

It is perhaps not surprising, therefore, that when the weather-satellite warnings reached Pakistan some eight hours before the cyclone actually hit the region and Radio Pakistan wanted to proclaim a 'full evacuation' alert, they were apparently ignored by the government.

The great men of the new and very raw administration remained unmoved and unconcerned. According to some reports, nearly two million have died and the final total might even exceed three million. Hundreds of thousands have been dying slow, agonizing deaths crying for water, food and medicine.

For nine days, no help reached them except a few air-drops, unorganized and unplanned. There are more than 200 islands in the area and over four million people. For seven to eight days the government of Pakistan would not even admit the appalling scale of the disaster.

Adult Country

Pakistan is now 22 years old and should no longer be suffering from birth pangs.

It is an adult country and never hesitates to proclaim that it is the largest Muslim state and the sixth largest country in the world. It has received massive economic aid for development and to strengthen its defence forces.

Yet at a time of major crisis, Pakistan's army in East Pakistan had only one helicopter. The desperately needed helicopters were in West Pakistan.

Typhoon survivors beg for food

Why were they not immediately dispatched to East Pakistan? Should the government have waited even for the helicopters? Why could not the thousands of country boats in and around Chittagong be pressed into service for relief operations? Why were the army's own medical stores, doctors and nursing staff not fully mobilized?

Why were the hundreds of privately practising civilian doctors and nurses from West Pakistan not dispatched to East Pakistan? Among the purged officers there are many with personal experience of cyclonic disasters in the area, men who have been trained to deal with such situations; why were they not made use of in this emergency?

There are a number of retired, dismissed and purged officers who have had first-hand experience of administration during the great Bengal famine in the dying days of the Empire. Why were they not called up again?

According to the Pakistan High Commissioner in London, Pakistan's entire resources were mobilized immediately, both civil and military, a declaration which leads to the conclusion that he was either misinformed or uninformed. West Pakistan correspondents in London have blamed the incompetence of East Pakistan officials and even charged them with corruption.

Yet when British correspondents started reporting on-the-spot news stories which reflected the rising resentment of the politically conscious East Pakistanis against the West Pakistan dominated central government, they were accused by West Pakistan of creating dissension between the two wings of the country.

Indifference

In the current crisis great resentment has been reported from East Pakistan against the apparent indifference of West Pakistan and against the central government under the effective control and direction of West Pakistanis.

Journalists in Dacca, the capital of East Pakistan, have brought out processions in protest, and the newspapers of East Pakistan have, in defiance of emergency regulations, vigorously expressed their anger and disgust.

The inability of the government of Pakistan to deal with the crisis has been cruelly exposed; the army is not capable of dealing with problems on this scale and without the guidance of experienced civilians.

Aid from foreign countries, and not least the substantial effort mounted by the British government, has done something to mitigate the worst effects of the catastrophe.

It has now become clear beyond doubt, however, that only an international organization can deal with problems on this scale, especially when their victims are developing countries with none of the highly sophisticated resources of the industrial world.

This is a matter for the United Nations: it should lose no time setting up a central organization which could move quickly into action, relying upon a carefully planned complex of stockpiles and organizing centres in those areas of the world that are known to be vulnerable to natural disaster.

Under Calm Quebec Surface 'Rancor Corroding Society'

By SOLANGE CHAPUT-ROLLAND

MONTREAL — I wonder if the time is ripe to raise some questions about the depth of the political cleavage dividing Quebecers. Our climate is calm on the surface, but underneath dissension, rancor and bitterness are corroding our society.

Unfortunately I am not a political commentator who has an instant answer to all problems, and who feels qualified to decide in the relative security of her home, whether the Canadian government acted wisely when it proclaimed the War Measures Act, and its subsequent law of exception.

I wish I could be as assured as our numerous pundits who decided that had they been in the places of the Prime Minister and our premier, they would not have acted with such firmness.

Frankly I am still at a loss to realize that Canadians living and working in Ottawa, can imagine Pierre Elliott Trudeau in some stage of panic.

But in Quebec, the political debates among Liberals, NDP, Creditistes and Conservatives and "Diefenbakeratives," are a very emotional issue.

Between those who accepted the War Measures Act as a preventive gesture not so much against the FLQ, but to protect our population from the real danger of some massive demonstrations leading to another Kent State, or more "May days" similar to France's student riots two years ago, and those who reject it whatever the consequences, walls are being built.

Behind these walls, emotions, passions, bitterness are fomenting. If Mr. Diefenbaker, for example, would spend a week in Montreal and try to hear voices other than his own, he might find it less amusing to ridicule those who honestly fear, not an invasion by an invisible FLQ army, but an explosion of violence by people who are now openly distrusting each other.

Before asking some questions, I shall attempt briefly to categorize our divisions; there are in Quebec, those who are pro-Trudeau, pro-Levesque, pro-Drapeau and pro-Choquette and who support the decision not to give in to the FLQ.

They are matched by those who are anti-Pequistes, anti-Canadian government, anti-Bourassa and who oppose that decision, Trudeau's attitude, and all forms of compromise for James Cross and Pierre Laporte because democracy - is - more-valuable than-human-lives.

CHAPUT-ROLLAND

Nowadays the pro- and anti-Ryan camps also are quiet vocal. If you belong to one of these factions, you will be very wise to mix, receive, visit, discuss and have a drink with your own group of friends, otherwise your evenings or your meetings might be transformed into a battle ground.

Consequently, more ghettos are being built in Montreal — not to isolate Montrealers and Quebecers from each other but to protect them from violent confrontations with one another.

Is it possible in Canada, and in our province, to express dismay at the most hysterical speech of Jean Drapeau on his election night without being told: you side with the FLQ? You would have preferred riots in Montreal?

Is it permissible to regret that Lucien Saulnier's suggestion for a Royal Commission on revolutionaries' methods in Quebec was not accepted, without being answered: You are a fascist who wants to imprison everyone who disagrees with you?

Is there still a place in Canada and in Quebec for someone who is not a staunch supporter of Trudeau's thesis on constitutionalisms but who firmly rejects Rene Levesque's concept of a free Quebec?

Is it possible to be heard without being told we are crypto-separatists, turncoats, FLQ sympathizers, if we confess our incapacity to believe Mr. Ryan is capable of becoming an overnight enemy of the State, or that Trudeau and Bourassa would have been wiser to offer some explanations, if not all, to justify their alarms about an alleged insurrection in Quebec?

Canadians are not small children unable to face threats and dangers, nor idiots who refuse to accept some limitations on information in times of national crisis.

But would it be too much to beg for some answers from one source, instead of receiving all kinds of rumors spread around by all kinds of politicians!

And if we write about the urgent necessity of reappraising our society in order to correct social injustices, will we be accused of being disguised Maoists, a Cuban guerrilla or strident Guevaras?

And if, as a French Canadian, I suggest that French and English Quebecers do not go back to their own sets of prejudices once all FLQ members are safely behind bars, will I be accused of fanaticism or racism?

To a Canadian living in relative security in his peaceful province, these questions may appear very emotional: they are, and this is precisely the point I am trying to make. Quebecers, anglophones and francophones are involved personally, as groups, as members of different social classes, as citizens and as voters, in this grave crisis.

Though French and English Montrealers have behaved with admirable restraint throughout these days of anguish and despair, some dangerous feelings are boiling underneath our composure. In order to face them honestly we must be aware of their nature.

We are very much concerned with the backlash building against Quebec in some corners of Canada. We understand with sadness, but with lucidity, that the consequences of the War Measures Act — censorship curtailing of civil liberties, etc. — are put on our shoulders. The FLQ is a product of Quebec, but violence, terrorism and revolt are not located only in our province.

It would be easier to clean our house, to restore order in our milieu and confidence in our leaders, if politicians, commentators and intellectuals would refrain from making wild statements on the causes and tragic sequels to the James Cross kidnapping and Pierre Laporte's murder.

DRAPEAU

Democracy does not rest only on our right to dissent; it also takes its vitality from our ability to accept all its limitations, and some of its errors.

WHY NO GUN CONTROLS?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

At the height of the FLQ crisis in Quebec, a Montreal newspaperman walked into a war surplus store, put down some money and walked out with a fully operable semi-automatic rifle.

It was through a similar purchase that the terrorists involved in the kidnap-murder of Pierre Laporte obtained two M1 semi-automatic weapons. These two incidents, when put alongside countless others, would tend to make most people nervous. But not, apparently, James Richardson.

Mr. Richardson (remember him?) is the federal Minister of Supply and Services. When questioned in the House of Commons the other day about an embargo on the resale of weapons no longer needed by the army, Mr. Richardson said the whole policy was "under review." While the "review" was going on there would be no change in policy.

It is one of the idiosyncracies of Canadians that we take much more care in regulating the sale of a bottle of wine than we do the sale of deadly weapons. While it is true that to own a handgun you must have the permission of the local police force, no such regulation applies to long guns or war surplus weapons.

Raising the question of gun legislation under the cloud of what has happened in Quebec could be misconstrued as a form of hysterical reaction to a very clear and very present danger which may pass. However, proponents of gun control, this newspaper included, have been making the plea for years.

If we wish to drive a car, we must have a special licence. We must have a special licence to fly a plane or drive a motorcycle. Why not impose the same regulation on the ownership of a gun?

Such a regulation would not mean the disarming of hunters and gun-enthusiasts. It would simply mean that the ownership of a gun would impose certain responsibilities on the owner, responsibilities set down by law and embodied in a licence. This would surely apply most particularly to war surplus weapons.

Mr. Richardson may have his review, for what it's worth. In the meantime gun stores will continue to sell the weapons to anyone with enough cash to buy them.

The Infinite Wisdom of Parents

By RUSSELL BAKER

A mother stood on a bridge over a narrow stream watching her young son playing below at the water's edge. After watching a moment she decided that the boy required advice and raising her voice she shouted it down to him.

"Don't fall in!" she cried.

It is hard to imagine a more parental piece of advice. Most parents dispense similar wisdom day in and day out for years and get away with it. They are fortunate parents indeed.

Harry's parents are not fortunate, for Harry, though he is not quite six years old, seems to have been born with a middle-aged intolerance for the well-intentioned fatuities which issue regularly from moms and dads.

Harry was only three when he was first advised by his mother not to fall into the stream beside which he was playing. As the idea of falling had never crossed Harry's mind, he was puzzled, naturally, about why his mother felt obliged to advise him against it.

Did she regard him as an imbecile incapable of approaching a body of water without knowing whether or not he ought to fall in?

A few weeks later while Harry was sitting in an apple tree, his father advised him not to fall out.

Again, the uselessness of the advice irritated Harry. "That's all very well, telling me not to fall out," Harry said, "but if you wanted to give me some useadvice you would tell me how."

"How what?" asked his father.

"How not to fall out," Harry explained.

His father smiled because he was very proud to have a son with an inquiring mind, and he said, "Don't get stung by any bees while you're up there, Harry."

"Where would you advise me to be when I get stung by some bees?" Harry asked. His father smiled and frowned.

Harry's patience snapped again recently toward the end of a dinner when, eating an unusually large portion of dessert, he heard himself being advised by his mother not to get sick.

"Did you say, 'don't get sick, Harry?' " Harry asked.

His mother frowned.

"Because," Harry went on, "I have been looking forward to getting sick for weeks. Why can't I have a little violent nausea once in a while and shooting pains?"

"Go over in the park and play, Harry dear," his mother said.

"And don't get hit crossing the street," his father advised.

Harry is regularly advised, whenever it rains and he has to leave the house, not to catch cold. If he stays inside to cut out pictures of President Nixon for his scrapbook, the invariable advice is, "Don't cut yourself, Harry."

Once, last summer when his father let Harry help push the power lawn mower for a few minutes, his father advised Harrry not to cut off his toes.

At about the same time, when Harry had to open the front door momentarily during a severe thunderstorm one day to let in the cat, his mother strongly advised him against getting hit by lightning. Whenever it is cold and icy, of course, the advice is, "Don't fall and break a leg."

The other day when Harry's father was painting the kitchen, Harry came in and said he would like to ask a question. "Sure, Harry," said his father. "Don't step on the paint."

"What kind of advice are you going to give me when I grow up?" Harry asked.

"Don't lose your money, Harry. When you're listening to the radio and taking a bath, don't get electrocuted. When you go up to see if there are loose bricks in the chimney, don't fall off the roof and break your neck."

"How do I know I can trust your advice?" Harry asked.

"Harry," said his father, and stepped in the paint can, which twisted his ankle, throwing him off balance and propelling him toward the floor at a graceless angle.

"Don't break your wrist," Harry advised, just an instant too late.

"As this incident has illustrated," Harry's father explained later as his cast was hardening, "Nobody ever really takes advice. That's why parents don't waste their time giving you any worth trusting."

Mrs. Adam Clayton Powell II, member of an old New York-Newport social family, lost her listing in the social register more than a year after her marriage to the son of the black former Congressman. The former Beryl Slocum and Powell, a network newsman, were missing from the newly published 1971 New York edition of the 85-year-old social listing although their May, 1969, marriage had been given a routine listing in the 1970 summer edition of the social register. It was the first time the publication had ever knowingly listed an interracial marriage with the exception of Hope Cook's to King Palden of Sikkim, a tiny Asian domain.

Ann Briggs, 22, a Maoist agitator, has been deported to her native United States, a Toronto immigration official said Thursday night. He said Miss Briggs, who is a member of the Internationalists, also known as the Communist Party of Canada (Marxist-Leninist), was put on a Cleveland-bound plane Wednesday.

Cyril Hedingham, 31, told a London court his victim proposed marriage while he was raping her. Hedingham, who pleaded guilty to the rape charge, said his victim, Miss Barbara Pinner, 42, said: "If you're going to do this sort of thing we might as well get married." Prosecutor Christopher Barnet said to his client's surprise Hedingham accepted the proposal and tried to rape her again. She refused. Hedingham was given an 18-month prison sentence suspended.

Harold Ballard, member of the board of directors of Maple Leaf Gardens, said Thursday officials of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party have booked the Gardens for Feb. 10, 11 and 12. Earlier published reports have speculated the Tories will hold a leadership convention to choose a successor to Premier John Robarts.

Three Washington women were convicted of larceny by a general sessions jury who heard a Tampa, Fla., police official testify they burst into his hotel room here seeking a "sex orgy." The jury of nine women and three men returned the verdict against Sandra Mitchell, 26; Ann Williams, 25, and Karen Hill, 20, whom it found guilty of sneaking off with $300 from the billfold of Maj. John Kirk.

The 38-year-old major testified the trio came uninvited to his hotel room. In "apprehension and fear" because he thought they might harm him, the trim, athletic-looking major said, he offered only "mental resistance" as Miss Mitchell and Miss Hill forced him onto a bed while Miss Williams cavorted around in the nude.

There have been widespread reports in recent days that Pope Paul VI would retire when he reaches the age of 75, but informed Vatican sources today described the speculation as "fantastic." Vatican spokesman Federico Alessandrini said "Nobody knows what the Pope is going to do but the Pope."

JUDGE ADMITS JURY TOLD TO KEEP TRYING

CHICAGO (WP) — Judge Julius J. Hoffman acknowledged Thursday that he twice privately instructed the "Chicago Seven" conspiracy trial jury to keep deliberating after it reported it could not reach a verdict.

Judge Hoffman said he did not bring the jury into the courtroom where defence lawyers could hear his instructions because he feared the jurors would be exposed to disruptions and attempts by defendants to prejudice their judgments.

"... I concluded that if the jury were returned to the courtroom during the deliberations, that there was a very substantial danger of their being exposed to prejudicial statements, courtroom disruptions, or violence," he said.

'I'm Deliriously Happy,' Mrs. Cross Tells World

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — A smiling Barbara Cross said today she hopes to be reunited with her husband in London Saturday.

Wearing a blue coat-dress and stroking her dalmatian, Holly, she told a crowded news conference at the residence of British Ambassador Eric Midgley:

"I am deliriously happy after these long weeks of tension during which, like my husband, I was my own prisoner. But I never gave up hope."

Looking tired after only a few hours sleep, blonde Mrs. Cross said she was "too excited" to remember her husband's first words when she spoke to him on the telephone during the night after his release in Montreal by kidnappers who held him for two months.

"But I remember him saying he had seen 162 French films on television and this improved his understanding of the language. But he said he spoke very little with his captors."

Sitting beside Ambassador Midgley — he and his wife are old friends of the Cross family — and Canadian Ambassador James Roberts, she said:

"My husband said he lost a lot of weight — about 20 pounds. I asked him what food he had had—he just said he didn't like it very much.

"The kidnappers gave him a good collection of revolutionary literature, but its very unlikely he was converted."

"Two men with sub-machine-guns guarded him day and night and he said he kept hoping they were well trained in controlling them."

She said her husband "did not seem bitter" towards his kidnappers. "He was so buoyant. He told me he got the impression his captors were not very keen on the idea of going to Cuba but it seems they had no choice."

HOAXER PHONED HER

She said there was "one bad day" in Canada when a hoaxer pretending to be her husband phoned her. "I only found out it wasn't him when I got a bit suspicious and asked him for the name of the bull terrier we used to have in India. He didn't know."

She expressed gratitude for "the support and comfort from an enormous number of Canadian friends and hundreds of people unknown to her who sent letters and gifts. She said they came from French- and English-speaking Canadians.

"They sustained me throughout this time — it will take my husband six months to read them."

Asked for her personal opinion of the separatist movement in Quebec, she replied quietly: "This is a problem too personal for me to be able to answer objectively."

Embassy officials said there are no set plans for the reunion between Mr. and Mrs. Cross but it is expected to take place this weekend.

Mrs. Cross said they have no plans for the near future. "We will decide later where we should go for a rest," she said.

Dynamite Strapped To Bodies

MONTREAL (CP) — The Star says kidnap suspects Marc Carbonneau and Jacques Lanctot had booby-trapped themselves with dynamite Thursday while driving to the Expo 67 island site with James (Jasper) Cross.

Police officials would not comment immediately today on the story.

The newspaper says Carbonneau had four sticks of dynamite strapped to his body and Lanctot had two. Each charge was linked to pocket batteries.

Carbonneau and Lanctot were among seven persons who travelled in a police convoy from a suburban Montreal North kidnap hideout to the Expo 67 islands in the first phase of a deal leading to the release of Mr. Cross, British envoy kidnapped from his Montreal home Oct. 5.

FLOWN TO CUBA

Carbonneau, 37, and Lanctot, 25, were flown to Cuba early today with Lanctot's wife and child, another couple and a fourth man in the completion of the deal.

The Star says the 1962 Chrysler escorted from the hideout to the St. Lawrence River islands was not itself booby-trapped, but the two kidnap suspects were.

During the trip to the Expo 67 site Carbonneau drove the car.

The Star story adds:

"In addition, Lanctot, who flew to Cuba as part of the exchange deal for Mr. Cross's release, was allowed to carry a weapon onto the Havana-bound aircraft.

"All other weapons, either kept in the Montreal North hideout or carried by the kidnappers prior to the plane's departure, were turned over to police."

Were Police on Top Floor? 'Possible'—QPP Director

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's top police officer says "it is very, very possible" that police occupied for at least a week the upper floors of a house from which kidnap victim James (Jasper) Cross emerged Thursday.

Maurice St. Pierre, director of Quebec Provincial Police, declined to confirm or deny published and broadcast reports that some rooms of the building were so occupied. He simply made his "possible" comment.

The reports say members of the combined anti-terrorist squad occupied upper rooms in the duplex building while Mr. Cross was held on the ground floor. But police were cautious because of fears for the British envoy's life.

"We were never actually positive that Mr. Cross was in the house, but neither were we positive that he was not there," said Mr. St. Pierre, who was placed in charge of all Quebec's 12,000 policemen in the kidnap emergency.

COULDN'T TAKE CHANCE

"The problem was that there could have been a shoot-out or maybe a bomb explosion because we know there was a lot of dynamite inside and we simply could not take a chance.

As our leads became stronger and clearer, we tightened the police net around the house and finally showed them (the kidnappers) that we were waiting for them.

"We let them know, by our movements, that we were waiting for them to make their move. We were in no hurry to get anyone harmed."

The police director said in an interview that as leads converged on the des Recollets Street building in suburban Montreal North, a big break occurred when Jacques Cossette-Trudel and his wife were arrested in a Laurentian chalet Tuesday.

The woman is the sister of kidnap suspect Jacques Lanctot and went to Cuba with him and her husband in the deal freeing Mr. Cross.

"It was after the arrests that we decided to shrink our net down to one street," said Director St. Pierre.

SURROUND HOUSE

He added that the kidnappers probably discovered "the game was up" sometime Wednesday afternoon when dozens of policemen could be seen outside the house, which had been under surveillance for two weeks.

Four or five hours later—about 1 a.m.—an FLQ communique was thrown from a window in a pipe and negotiations later got rolling.

Mr. St. Pierre stressed, however, that even with the communique police could not be positive that Mr. Cross was inside the house.

Lawyer Bernard Mergler was the first person to go into the house once negotiations began for the release of Mr. Cross and the safe passage to Cuba of the kidnappers, the police chief said.

"We were only positive that he (Cross) was in the house when we finally saw him at Man and His World, but at no point could we afford to chance anything. Our information proved valid when we discovered a large number of sticks of dynamite in the house later."

'Honor Them' Tory Urges

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield suggested today that Mr. and Mrs. James Cross be made honorary companions of the Order of Canada for their "great courage, dignity and strength of character."

Prime Minister Trudeau replied in the Commons that the government would give the suggestion earnest consideration. He thanked Stanfield for it.

KIDNAP SUSPECTS in the car carrying them to Expo 67 were booby-trapped with dynamite, according to The Star, a Montreal newspaper. Marc Carbonneau and Jacques Lanctot had the dynamite sticks strapped to their bodies with the charges linked to pocket batteries the paper says.

'We're Going to Be Left Out' Prairie Reaction to Mini Budget

By The Canadian Press

"A very mild, meek, cautious type of budget."

The words were those of John Bulloch, leader of a band of businessmen who oppose the federal white paper on taxation, but they could have been uttered by almost any of the political leaders, businessmen and labor leaders across Canada who commented on the budget unveiled in Ottawa by Finance Minister Edgar Benson Thursday night.

Alberta Premier Harry Strom was in step with spokesmen for Manitoba and Saskatchewan when he said, "It appears we're going to be left out."

Ontario's provincial treasurer, Charles MacNaughton, expressed disappointment that income taxes were not reduced and the three-per-cent surtax on income tax was not allowed to expire.

In Ottawa, Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said the federal government "has given the people of Canada, and the unemployed in particular, the shadow instead of the substance of relief that was required to pull Canada out of its present economic mire."

SHOULD END TAX

He said the government should have spurred the economy and reduced growing unemployment by giving Canadians more purchasing power by discontinuing the surtax.

W. H. A. Thorburn, chairman of the board of governors of the Toronto Stock Exchange, doubted that the budget would affect Canadian stock markets.

"I don't feel as pleased as I had made up my mind to be pleased," he added.

Premier Strom said Alberta is not affected by the budget. "It seems to ignore the fact the developing regions have some problems too."

His treasurer, A. O. Aalborg, called it "a humdrum budget" with "more and more benefits for Quebec and the Maritimes which, in the end, means more expense for provinces such as Alberta."

QUEBEC BENEFITS

The major share of extra federal spending to relieve unemployment goes to the province of Quebec, plus $20 million for Montreal's new international airport at Ste. Scholastique.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa and his cabinet ministers were unavailable for comment on the budget in the wake of the dramatic release of kidnapped British diplomat James Cross.

Finance Minister Eric S. Jones said the budget was "most welcome" in Newfoundland, where it would greatly assist the construction industry.

STROM
. . . nothing for Alberta

But an adviser to the Nova Scotia government, A. Russell Harrington, called it "quite a bag of tricks, but not all that impressive."

The widespread disappointment of businessmen was attributed to a variety of causes.

J. C. Whitelaw, executive vice-president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, questioned whether lack of tax reductions "will help create anything like the number of new jobs which are needed in the private, wealth-producing sector of the economy."

CALLS IT STOPGAP

C. K. Herz, a director of Bata Industries Ltd. of Toronto and a former president of the Canadian Shoe Manufacturers Association, called the special assistance a stopgap.

"It depends on what conditions there are going to be" for recipients of the loans, he said.

James Dykes, general manager of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association, said in Toronto benefits to the industry will be insignificant.

"A hopeless mishmash of conflicting policies of restraint and stimulation," was the reaction of D. B. Kirkup, research director for the 6,000-member Toronto Real Estate Board.

STIMULANTS OFFSET

S. D. C. Chutter, general manager of the Ottawa-based Canadian Construction Association, said budget stimulants for construction "would seem to have less effect than the deterrent existing in the three-per-cent surtax."

Eric Johnson of Clarkson, Ont., president of the National House Builders Association, said he is "perplexed why the government, which professes such a pious feeling for low-cost housing, would not make a significant contribution towards it by remitting the sales tax for such housing, as two provinces have done."

Among businessmen approving the increased depreciation allowances was H. M. Griffith, president of the Steel Co. of Canada.

"Naturally, we welcome any move to provide incentives to industry," he said. But on the whole he was less than enthusiastic, adding: "We are hopeful that the proposal is for the betterment of the industry."

"Necessary," said John Eleen, research director of the Ontario Federation of Labor, "but it seems to me they're trying to patch something rather than try to eliminate the massive unemployment we have."

MUST REPAY

The executive vice-president of Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd. in Hamilton, Ross Craig, noted that the unemployment-insurance deficit "will have to be paid back someday."

The president of the Vancouver Board of Trade, Edward Disher, said the increase in unemployment insurance benefits "is probably overdue but it doesn't help the economy."

Mr. Disher summed up the federal spending plans this way:

"The budget is very dull. In fact, I'm surprised that Mr. Benson brought it in at all. There seems to be nothing in it that couldn't have been done by a cabinet meeting and order-in-council."

'Groans, Bones, Loans' Tory Budget Reaction

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — A chorus of opposition criticism greeted Finance Minister Benson's budget Thursday night.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield described the budget as one of "groans, bones and loans," and David Lewis, deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, said "there's no excuse for it at all."

Mr. Lewis said that apart from the continuation of the surtax and the increase in capital cost allowances, there was nothing in the budget that couldn't have been presented to the House in the form of a simple statement.

Parts of the budget speech, he said, were "ridiculous, laughable."

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo), the party's financial critic, termed the budget "economic lunacy."

And Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), the Conservative financial critic, called it a "posturing act of cliches and self-smugness on the part of the government."

DIVIDED ON INCREASE

Mr. Stanfield said the only bright note was the 10-per-cent increase in unemployment insurance benefits. But Mr. Lewis said this was one part of the budget that was ridiculous and laughable.

Quoting the speech as saying the increase will "give an immediate direct stimulus to the economy," Mr. Lewis said it will average about $3 a week for each unemployed person.

"Only a fiction writer could have said that about such an increase."

Mr. Stanfield said there is nothing for those not receiving unemployment benefits and the government should have done more to stimulate the economy generally.

"At a time people are desperate for work," said Mr. Saltsman, "the best Benson can do is a depression kind of winter relief instead of something to stimulate employment."

What was needed was a tax cut, but by continuing the surtax Mr. Benson was actually increasing taxes, he said.

The 10-per-cent increase in unemployment insurance benefits, he said, is "unbelievable condescending charity."

Mr. Lambert said Mr. Benson should have tried to relieve the tax burden on the poor. Help was needed now, not when the tax reform program is completed.

He said the government at first refused to recognize inflation, then over-reacted and went too far the other way, creating massive unemployment.

The program to provide $151 million in loans to the provinces was a "disguised winter works program."

West Berlin Action Key to Red Talks

BRUSSELS (AP) — The foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization agreed today at their annual winter meeting to join the Communist powers in a European security conference only after the Soviet Union joins the West in an agreement easing restrictions on West Berlin.

The 15 foreign ministers stressed the importance of unhindered access to Berlin, 110 miles inside East Germany.

They also want improvements in the situation within the city, divided by the wall the Communists built in 1961, and they want acceptance of the ties between West Berlin and West Germany.

They said as soon as satisfactory Berlin arrangements have been made, they would be ready to start multi-lateral contacts to see whether it would be possible to hold a conference or a series of conferences on security in Europe.

COMMUNISTS EAGER

The Communist governments have been pressing for such a conference, with some support in the West, but many Western leaders are resisting.

In their final statement, the ministers expressed satisfaction with the letter from President Nixon Thursday promising that the United States will maintain its present strength in Europe until the Soviet Union reduces its forces.

The ministers also welcomed the resumption of talks between the United States and the Soviet Union on restriction of strategic nuclear missiles and the treaties made by West Germany with the Soviet Union and Poland.

Weddings Nullified

ATHENS (AP) — Future marriages of Jehovah's Witnesses in Greece will not be considered valid by the state, the interior ministry has announced. A ministry circular to prefectures and the Holy Synod, ruling body of the church of Greece, said marriages of Jehovah's Witnesses should be considered null. There are some 20,000 members of the sect in Greece.

Design Award To City Firm

Highways Minister W. D. Black will present a national design award to Willis, Cunliffe, Tait and Co. Ltd. of Victoria and Nanaimo today on behalf of the Canadian Good Roads Association.

The award is for the firm's work on the Gorge waterway development being carried out by the Capital district Improvement Commission in co-operation with the muncipality of Saanich and the highways department.

Black is president of the Canadian Good Roads Association which instituted the awards to encourage imaginative design of road systems.

When completed, the Gorge development will involve nearly one mile of rebuilt secondary highway and a parkway strip will have replaced mud banks and underbrush with landscaping, pedestrian walks, park furniture and underground wiring.

The Committee to Save the Salmon at Goldstream wishes to thank the Greater Victoria Water Board and the citizens of this area for the splendid way in which all combined to do such a wonderful job of saving water.

This will assure the "run" and the salmon can fulfil their destiny.

THANK YOU ALL!

CANADA AGAINST LISBON IN RARE NATO REVOLT

BRUSSELS (AP) — A rare revolt flared today inside the North Atlantic council of foreign ministers when External Affairs Minister Mitchel Sharp of Canada questioned the wisdom of holding the next NATO confer*ence in Lisbon*.

Canadian doubts, echoed by Poul Hartling of Denmark and Svenn Stray of Norway, were expressed strongly enough to compel the council to thrash the difficulty out in secret session.

In the end, with U.S. State Secretary William Rogers and British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home siding with Portugal, the ministers set their 1971 spring meeting in Lisbon on June 3 and 4 after all.

Conference officials reported that Sharp, in raising the issue, noted that the Portuguese rightly or wrongly have been accused by African states of involvement in the recent invasion of Guinea in West Africa.

Hartling and Stray also were said to have backed Sharp's general thesis that Portugal's controversial African policies would, somehow, taint all of NATO if allied leaders meet in Lisbon.

But Rogers and Douglas-Home countered with the argument that Portugal is a fully-fledged member of the alliance and therefore is entitled to full and equal rights.

Sources said several other ministers backed their view too that there was no valid reason to deprive Portugal of the chance to play host to NATO. Each of NATO's 15 member-states, in alphabetical turn, provides the meeting-place for the council's annual spring sessions.

DOES THE HIGH COST OF DYING OFFEND YOU?

Are you one of the thoughtful ones who is concerned that your relatives may be swept with emotion into paying hundreds too much for your funeral, when such money could be put to far better use among the living? Are you disturbed by costly caskets, displaying of remains, etc? Would you like to sit down in complete privacy with a form we will mail you, and record NOW exactly what type of funeral or memorial service you would like . . . whether you wish friends to send flowers or donate to a charity of your choice . . . whether you would like to donate your eyes or other tissue to help the living? Would you like to see MAXIMUM funeral costs in print, instead of MINIMUMS? Then get our folder. This is not a society for the poor. It is a society for the THOUGHTFUL . . . in all walks of life.

Empire Mercury

A two-phase $100,000 surface exploration program is recommended for a 51-claim copper property on Telegraph Creek, Stikine River mineral belt, owned by Empire Mercury Corp. Ltd.

It would include detail geological mapping, soil sampling, geophysical survey, bulldozer trenching and diamond drilling.

By agreement with the worldwide Swiss corporation, Schweizerische Aluminum A. G., the company's Canadian subsidiary Swiss Aluminum Mining Co. of Canada may earn up to 70 per cent of a producing mine by spending $1.69 million on pre-production development and to pay the vendors $126,000.

Brascan

Net income of Brascan Ltd. for the first nine months is estimated at $52.1 million or $2.46 a share, compared with $44.7 million or $2.11 a share in the same period last year. The improvement arose primarily in electric operating income from Brazil, said president J. H. Moore.

Non-utility investments in Brazil were increased by $5.4 million and the utility investment was increased by $53.6 million, within the year's $74.5 million capital budget for expansion and improvement.

Na-Churs

Record net earnings of $555,416 ($1.11 a share) in the year ended Sept. 30 compare with $344,734 (69 cents) restated a year ago, reports Na-Churs International Ltd. Four cents a share was attributed to foreign exchange gain, as the company reports in U.S. currency.

There were record sales this year—$8.28 million against $7.7 million. Financial results for 1969 were restated to conform with the new policy of reporting in U.S. terms, since 90 per cent of sales are made across the border.

Craigmont

Craigmont Mines Ltd. reported net earnings per share of $1.04 for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31 compared with $1.24 in the previous fiscal year.

Fourth-quarter earnings were 11 cents a share compared with 22 cents in the third quarter.

R. G. Duthie, president, said the sharp reduction was due mainly to a decrease in the price of copper.

Earnings for the year were $5.28 million compared with $6.28 million. Sales and other income came to $21.46 million compared with $21.87 million.

Westburne

Westburne International Industries Ltd. earned $1.4 million or 36 cents a common share during the six months ended Sept. 30, down from 49 cents a share in the first half of 1969.

The earnings were on a gross income of $63.6 million, practically unchanged from the previous year.

Westburne International is a diversified company with interests in oil and mineral exploration and development, drilling, transportation and equipment and supplies.

Trans-Prairie

Trans-Prairie Pipelines Ltd. reports a net profit of $2.29 million or $1.30 a share in the nine months ended Sept. 30, compared with $1.39 million or 79 cents a share in the period last year.

Gross revenue from operations fell to $5.2 million from $7.3 million in 1969.

D. R. Brandt, president, said increased net profits per share were primarily due to "the reduction in the provision for income taxes resulting from the company's participation in oil and gas exploration and development."

Toronto Star

Toronto Star Ltd. had net profits of $3 million for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, an increase of $291,000 over the previous year.

The annual report said the 1969 net profit was $2.76 million before extraordinary items. In 1969 there was an extraordinary gain of $8.79 million from the sale of land.

Earnings per share rose to $1.28 from $1.15 the previous year.

Profit Gain for Banks

TORONTO (CP) — Combined profit for Canada's seven largest banks was up 10.4 per cent for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31 compared with the previous year.

Profit totalled $173 million while assets at the end of the fiscal year totalled almost $46,000 million, up 11.3 per cent when compared with the total at Oct. 31, 1969.

Combined operating profit—profit before income tax and appropriation for contingencies—was up 12.2 per cent to slightly more than $526 million for the 1970 fiscal year.

Four of the seven banks had declines in operating profit during the fourth quarter, compared with the same period a year ago.

The Toronto Dominion Bank's operating profit was off 16.4 per cent to $13.8 million. Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce had a 12-per-cent decline; Banque Canadienne Nationale 7.1 per cent; and Royal Bank of Canada 2.4 per cent.

The Bank of Montreal had a 39.5-per-cent increase in operating profit over an exceptionally-low figure for the same period in the previous year. Bank of Nova Scotia was up 13.5 per cent and the Provincial Bank of Canada 12.1 per cent.

Royal Bank had a 20-per-cent increase in operating profit during the fiscal year and the largest total. It is the largest bank in terms of assets but in the previous year Canadian Imperial, the second largest, had the highest operating profit total. Banque Canadienne had a 23.5-per-cent growth in operating profit during the fiscal year and the highest growth rate.

Combined revenues of the seven banks increased by 22 per cent but expenses rose by 24 per cent.

The poorest operating profit performance was by the Bank of Nova Scotia with a gain of slightly more than three per cent. Gain by Toronto Dominion was 3.6 per cent.

MAN TO MAN:
A Discussion Directed to Men who have a hang-up about shopping in a Women's Wear Store
By Wyn Sinclair

Just a few days until Christmas and it's time to buy that very special gift for her again! Remember last year . . . heading for the nearest department store counter . . . grabbing the first thing you saw . . . then standing, waiting for a clerk who stopped only to announce she was busy!

May I suggest that this year you visit Miss Frith. Yes, it's a ladies' specialty store, she probably visits us quite often, all the more reason to choose that gift here. After all, did she really appreciate those green hip-waders that were two sizes too big?

So please consider this an open invitation to visit us, and ask for me if you like. Pick up the phone and we'll set a time to select her gift. Once we've chosen something, our gift wrapping service will take over, it's absolutely free, and your present will stand out under the Christmas tree! Ponder these words, then pop in and pick a present . . . proudly . . . from Miss Frith.

Basque Nationalists Spark Spanish Crisis

MADRID (Reuter) — Head of State Francisco Franco summoned his cabinet into session here today to tackle grave problems ranging from the kidnapping of a West German honorary consul to a wave of unrest over the trial of 16 alleged Basque nationalist guerrillas.

It was Franco's 78th birthday but the situation—one of the thorniest to confront him since coming to power in the 1936-39 civil war—precluded the usual quiet family celebrations of the occasion.

The cabinet meeting raised speculation a state of emergency might be declared, at least in the Basque region of northwest Spain.

The Basque trial—in which six of the men face possible death sentences over the 1968 killing of a political police chief—began before a military court in Burgos Thursday amid protest strikes involving about 80,000 workers in Basque areas.

Linked to the trial, which should last five or six days, apparently is the fate of the kidnapped consul, Eugen Beihl, 59, snatched from his San Sebastian home Tuesday night and not heard from since.

NATIONALISTS BLAMED

Beihl is feared to be in the hands of a wild dissident wing of the Basque nationalist extremist movement known as the Euzkadi Ta Axkatasuma, or ETA.

A message purporting to come from ETA warned that Beihl's fate depends on the outcome of the Burgos trial. However, ETA disclaimed involvement in the kidnapping.

Both before and after the kidnapping, Franco has been urged by Spain's Roman Catholic bishops and also the Vatican to exercise clemency in the Burgos trial if the death sentence is passed.

Death sentences are rarely carried out in Spain and usually are commuted to 30-year sentences by Franco.

But the Burgos trial has been used as a rallying point, on an unusual scale, for opposition to the government, thus posing a potential challenge both to Franco's authority and that of his cabinet.

Rusk Urges Hard Line On Kidnaps

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Former state secretary Dean Rusk says the only way to balk politically-inspired kidnappers is to stand fast against their demands even if it imperils the lives of their victims.

It will prove still costlier in the end, Rusk said at a news conference Thursday, if such kidnappers are allowed to continue wringing concessions from authorities.

"We must show this kind of kidnapping does not pay results," said Rusk. "This may be rough on a few people. It is possible it might cost a few lives."

He was commenting on the freeing of British trade envoy James Cross in Montreal on Thursday by separatist kidnappers who were allowed to fly to political asylum in Cuba. Canada had rejected greater demands and allowed the kidnappers to leave after surrounding the house where Cross was held.

Rusk is a professor of international law at the University of Georgia.

Intimidation Charged

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — The warden of the penitentiary that has become the subject of two federal inquiries said Thursday a group of about 15 hard-core prisoners intimidate the others and were responsible for a fire and disturbance last Saturday.

"They have an influence over the others because of the threats they make," warden John Norfield said in an interview. "They operate surreptitiously so we don't know who they are."

Six members of the prison staff have been suspended following Saturday's incident.

Withdrawal of Auditor Bill Cuts Off Government Critics

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — As they say in the army, Prime Minister Trudeau presents a very small silhouette.

That is, he rarely shows enough of himself to make a good target.

Recently, it appeared he had presented a target as big as a balloon for the opposition to shoot at.

Shoot they did—but too soon. The balloon was pulled down Thursday by the government, punctured and thrown away.

The target was the government bill to limit the powers of the auditor-general to look into and report on all cases of improvident government spending he thinks Parliament should know about.

The opposition began banging away at this prime target with gusto. Public comment was tartly critical too. The magic word, Bonaventure—the aircraft carrier refitted for $13 million and then sold for scrap for less than $1 million—served the opposition well.

Spokesmen for the Conservatives and NDP made it known their parties would force the government to halt debate by closure before they would ever allow the bill to go through.

This is often said by opposition MPs about government bills. But this time the opposition meant it. More important, the government saw that it meant it.

The government could see its entire legislative program going down the drain if it got involved in a long fight over the auditor-general's bill. It had already lost three weeks in a debate, much longer than expected, on the anti-terrorist public order bill, now law.

Moreover, there is considerable doubt that the government's new closure procedure, passed in late 1968 but never used, is workable.

Many experts believe the new rule in this regard is more cumbersome than the old closure procedure used to get parliamentary approval for the new flag in 1966.

STANFIELD MOVE

Tuesday, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said he had asked all Conservative MPs to launch an all-out assault on the auditor-general's bill in their home ridings during the Christmas recess.

He promised to campaign nationally against the bill.

The opposition kept prodding in the Commons and Thursday the government agreed to withdraw the bill.

But who was downcast?

The Conservatives.

They had hoped the bill would provide a good fighting issue for them for a long time.

Top Liberal party sources said—and some Conservatives agreed—that the Conservatives had peaked much too soon on the issue.

They contended that the Conservatives should have played along until the bill had gone so far in the parliamentary mill that the government then felt obliged to push on regardless.

The issue isn't dead because the opposition can still dwell on the government's refusal to have given a raise to Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson for five years or to his 28 senior officials for three years.

But it won't be nearly as lively with the bill gone.

Opposition members contend that the agreement of every Liberal in the Commons Thursday to the bill's withdrawal was a slap for the absent C. M. Drury, president of the treasury board and chief author of the legislation.

OLDER BOYS' PARLIAMENT NEEDS BILLETS

Billets are still being sought for the 40th session of the Older Boys' Parliament, which will run Dec. 27-31 in the legislature.

Each year about 70 boys aged 15-21 from various points in B.C. gather in Victoria to enact legislative programs to further boys' work in the province.

They come from the Anglican, Catholic, United, Baptist and Presbyterian churches as well as the Salvation Army, YMCA and DeMolay.

As in the past, participants will be billeted in private homes. Rev. R. A. Faris of the First United Church is making arrangements for accommodation.

Outdoor Film Remarkable Game Record

Andy Russell, a big outdoorsman in a beaded moosehide jacket, brought a cargo of canned enchantment to Victoria this week.

In those cans were reels of a color film three years in the making.

As a McPherson Playhouse audience learned on Thursday evening Russell's "Grizzly Contry" is more than a remarkable record of game animals in their natural habitat.

It's a hunt without rifles. Russell, once an Alberta guide and outfitter, does his hunting entirely by camera.

The hero of the picture is the grizzly bear, "shot" at close range by Russell and his two sons in wilderness areas from the southeast B.C.-Alberta border to Alaska.

Some of the finest scenes show grizzly mothers with cubs not long emerged from their winter dens. They are aware that men are only a few yards distant, but seem all but indifferent to their presence.

Black bear, moose, caribou, mountain sheep and goats add to the interest of a picture that children will enjoy no less than the conservation-minded adult.

"Grizzly Country," with commentary by Russell, will be shown this evening and again on Saturday night.

Policy Rapped

A University of Victoria audience was told Thursday that Canada was not pulling her weight in the defence of either the Atlantic or Pacific coasts and lacked a cohesive defence policy.

Speaking in a continuing series of public lectures at Uvic on Canada's role in defence, Fred Manor, an editorial writer for the Winnipeg Free Press, said statistics showed that Russia was launching a new undersea nuclear strike ship every five weeks. This is in line with her assumption that whoever controls the Atlantic will dominate any future war conflict, he said.

Manor urged that Canada participate more closely with NATO and the United States.

CAPITAL SCENE

The Robert Burns Club of Victoria will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Silver Threads Centre, Centennial Square.

Woodcock Leaves

TORONTO (CP) — Leonard Woodcock, international president of the United Auto Workers, announced today he is returning to Detroit to rejoin negotiations with Ford Motor Co., which is facing a Monday strike deadline.

Jobless Protest Planned

The Victoria Low Income Group is planning a demonstration at the Legislative Buildings Jan. 28 to urge the provincial government to create jobs.

Group president Walter Olszewski said today workers, representatives of organized labor, and unemployed young people in Victoria and Vancouver will be asked to participate.

"It'll be a very peaceful demonstration," Olszewski said. "We're going to have speakers. We're inviting all the youth that are unemployed, that are looking for work, to join us."

He said the demonstration is planned to coincide with the opening of 1971's legislative session. Planning for the event will be further discussed at a public meeting in January.

Olszewski said the province cannot solve all its unemployment problems by itself. But the government can "at least make a dent" in them with parks development projects, make-work programs in northern B.C., clearing of nature and hiking trails, and by requiring the forest industry to step up its tree-planting work.

He said the group plans to get a sound truck and drive around the city asking people to support the demonstration.

Hospital, School Funds Approved

The provincial cabinet approved $12 million in borrowing for school and hospital construction Tuesday, including $500,000 for the Greater Victoria school district.

Also sharing in the $10.5 million allocated for schools were Alberni Valley, $300,000, Nanaimo, $100,000 and Cowichan, $100,000.

Of the $1.5 million for hospitals, the Capital Region is allocated $300,000 and Nanaimo $100,000.

The debentures bear an interest of 7.91 per cent.

Students On Councils?

Education Minister Donald Brothers is considering appointments of students to community college councils, according to Bob Brummett, president of Vancouver City College student council.

Brummett said he is optimistic that Brothers will make such appointments, following a meeting with the minister today.

Brummett said Brothers asked for a list of 10 possible nominees to the college council.

Juan de Fuca College in Victoria should have a student on the council, Brummett said.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The clam fishery along a 75-mile section of the west coast of Vancouver Island has been closed due to high toxicity caused by red tides.

Only butter clams, the smaller of the three types found in British Columbia, are affected by the closure that has been issued by the federal department of fisheries.

Two Jailed Six Months

DUNCAN — Two Duncan men received six months' jail terms Tuesday for stealing a wallet and a bottle of liquor.

Clyde Hartley Forence, 23, and Raymond Goldsmith, 33, were charged with taking the articles from Olie Hauglum of Lake Cowichan. An original charge of robbery with violence was withdrawn Tuesday.

Threat Eases

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Northeast Florida beach residents looked to the their clean sandy beaches. A forecast of southwest to west winds at 10 to 15 miles an hour indicated a push away from the beaches for the oil slick which covered 1,000 square miles of the Atlantic the last two days.

BILL WALKER

"Lack of practice, scorching heat, poor food . . . and some pretty good opposition, too." This is part of the story of the Victoria Centennials and the world baseball tournament at Cartagena, Colombia, and phase one for the city-based club. The second stage comes in July with the Pan American games at Cali, also in Colombia. The Centennials have a date to be there.

"It was pretty awful, really," said Gordie Strongman, mostly a hard-hitting outfielder with the Victoria club, "but I think it was the lack of practice that really hurt us the most."

"After all it was practically three months since we had played, when we started the tournament, and our timing was definitely off," Strongman said. Besides, he could have added, most of the other competing clubs play baseball the year around.

"We thought we would have a week to practice, when we arrived," he explained, "but we only had two short workouts. "I was hitting under the ball, and popping up, and it was only near the end of the tournament that we started playing like we could."

Which should augur well for next year's tournament, "because it will come in the middle of our season. The players should be in shape, and have their timing," Gordie believes.

For instance, he points out that once the club did become acclimatized in Colombia the baseball was better, as witnessed by a tough 2-1 loss to Puerto Rico, a loss which incidentally came on a wild pitch.

"We could easily have won that game," said Gordie. "And we played well enough to have won the game against United States, too." At the time of that 4-3 defeat in 10 innings, the U.S. manager, agreed "the best team didn't win this one."

"Besides, in that Puerto Rico game pitcher Murray Gage Cole of Vancouver went the route." And this wasn't being done earlier by any of the Canadian starters as the extreme heat and humidity took its toll.

"When we arrived, the heat was so intense to us, that we'd sweat, just standing still," Strongman said. "Most, if not all, the boys lost weight. Some were pretty sick with dysentery and diarrhea, but it was the humidity that killed us, especially at the beginning. We were all weak. At the finish we could play nine innings without getting tired, but not at the start."

"The food wasn't that good, either," he said kindly of the mainly steak and french fries diet, although he isn't yet certain what kind of steak it was, except that it was cold mostly. And the next meal there would be that steak and french fries again, and still cold.

"Water! We never touched the stuff," he admitted. "We could get coke or Pepsi for a peso (about five cents) and we lived on that."

Gordie wasn't too impressed, either, with South American living standards in Cartagena. A city of about 350,000. "It was unbelievable," he said. "Poverty was everywhere. The odor in the air all the time was just awful . . . and one district we visited looked like a garbage dump, and pigs and kids, a lot of them without any clothes on, were playing together in the slop."

"The drivers are out of this world," he admitted readily ". . . They're crazy . . . there are no rules . . . they lean on their horns incessantly in traffic . . . and they don't dim their lights when they meet an oncoming car, they put them on high beam! Of the conveyance used to transport the teams to Barranquilla, 100 miles from Cartagena, where some of the tournament games were played, he said: "It was like an old school bus . . . and the trip . . . it was just wild!"

But as for the basic reason for the trip — baseball, Gordie feels that the Centennials could belong, except for the Cuban team.

"They were easily the best," he stated. "Most of them could play pro ball, and the only reason they aren't is that they can't get away from the country to do it.

"Every time the Cubans played," he explained, "there would be several fellows standing around posing as photographers, or press. But really they were guarding the players from defecting."

"Besides," he added, "all of the Cuban players were married. Single players were not allowed on the team." The reason is obvious, because several of the Cubans, Strongman said, when asked if they would accept pro contracts, said "Yes, if they could. But they couldn't."

Because, with their wives at home in Cuba, and unable to travel, "there was no way they were going to go."

If there were other troubles on the trip, such as the language barrier; the soft, sand-filled infields; the officials "who weren't really that good," and that everlasting, stifling heat, they are all only distressing memories now, and behind the Centennials, too. Or until next July.

But because of them, the team definitely should be better suited for the next test, at Cali, which incidentally is at the 8,000-foot level, compared to Cartagena's sea-level atmosphere. If not, at least it shouldn't be a case of what was the generally accepted phrase both on and off the field, this November.

"No comprendez."

The Centennials do now, and will be a better club becuse of all of it.

Drake Club Topped By Hotel Douglas

Hotel Douglas is alone atop the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League after staging a second-half spurt Thursday to defeat Drake Hotel 88-75 at Victoria High School.

After fashioning a slim 39-38 lead by halftime, Hotel Douglas was still leading by only one point, 51-50, early in the final half before pulling away.

Bill Carlson pumped in 22 points to lead Hotel Douglas while John Lauvaas (18 points), Jack Lusk (17) and Al Glover (11) also hit double figures.

Jim Cunningham led Drakes with 21 points, six more than Ed Steele.

APPREHENSIVE AL

New coach of Montreal Canadiens, Al MacNeil appears to be biting lip in apprehension Thursday as he stalks behind bench in Montreal during National Hockey League game against St. Louis Blues. Apparent fears of MacNeil, who took over job as head coach from retiring Claude Ruel that same morning, were groundless. Canadiens presented him with 6-3 triumph. (AP Wirephoto)

Backus Bounces Back With Resounding Upset

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Five years ago Billy Backus couldn't win in the ring, so he quit and went to blacktopping roads. Today, after a ring comeback, he's the welterweight boxing champion of the world.

Backus scored a stunning upset Thursday night by stopping Jose Napoles on a badly-cut left eyelid at one minute of the fourth round of a scheduled 15-rounder before a crowd of 5,500.

"Is it Christmas?" said the 27-year-old Backus. "I guess it is. Boy, it's here."

He was given little chance to beat Napoles, who was making his fourth title defence and who had lost only four times against 59 victories that included 42 knockouts.

Since returning to boxing in 1967, Backus has held no outside job and his record has been 22-3-1 for an over-all record of 29-10-4.

NEPHEW OF BASILIO

The left-hander comes from nearby Canastota, the same town that produced his uncle, Carmen Basilio, the former welter and middleweight world champion. He let it be known right from the start that he intended to carry the fight to the 30-year-old Napoles.

But at the beginning it appeared the challenger's bulling tactics were doomed as the cool, methodical Napoles speared him with left jabs and hooks.

Napoles had the best of the first round and controlled the second round when he opened a cut over Backus' right eye. However, Napoles also suffered a cut over the right eye and later contended he was butted. Backus admitted it could have been a butt.

Napoles continued to pepper away with his jab early in the third round. Then the fight changed from the challenger's bull-like rushes and Napoles' matador tactics into a Pier 6 brawl.

TRADE PUNCHES

For the last two minutes of the round the fighters traded punches and Napoles went to his corner with blood streaming from a cut on his left eye lid.

The fourth round started as the third had ended and then with a minute gone referee Jack Milicich stopped it and the former road worker was a champion of the world.

Homenuik Earns Share of Lead

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (CP-AP) — Seven players, including Winnipeg's Wilf Homenuik, shared the first-round lead Thursday in the $125,000 Coral Springs open golf tournament.

Homenuik, Bob Lunn, Mike Hill, George Johnson, Butch Baird, Mac McLendon and Brian Allin, the latter a Vietnam war veteran playing in his second professional tournament, fired four-under par 67s to hold a one-stroke lead over a group of 11 others.

Homenuik had steady nines of 33-34 to top a four-man Canadian contingent in the field on the 6,843-yard, par-71 Springs Country Club layout.

Bill Wright Jr. of Edmonton had nines of 31-39 and his 70 had him among the 89 who were at par or better after 18 holes. Gary Bowerman of Toronto had two 37s for a 74, while Ben Kern of Toronto was well off the pace at 76 with a front nine of 39.

Among those at 68 were Tommy Aaron, the 1969 Canadian Open winner, Lee Trevino, Gardner Dickinson, Homero Blancas and Gay Brewer.

Dave Hill and 52-year-old Tommy Bolt topped another big bunch at 69.

But Arnold Palmer found all the trouble he could handle. The 41-year-oll master, still seeking his first individual title of the year, had a 72.

He three-putted two greens and had a three-over par six on the 15th.

Threat of Suspension Tossed at Junior Loop

By ERNIE FEDORUK

The British Columbia Junior Hockey League has been threatened with expulsion if it fails to "strictly conform with . . . regulations" of the Canadian and B.C. Amateur Hockey Associations.

The ultimatum was issued earlier this week in a wire from BCAHA president Milo Fabro of Trail to BCJHL president Dr. Arnold Lowden of Penticton.

The junior circuit's apparent disregard of regulations will be dealt with at the BCAHA's semi-annual meeting, which got under way on the mainland today.

There are two points of contention. The first is the BCJHL's agreement with the Western Canada League and the second is a 2 per cent assessment fee which the BCJHL has been withholding from the provincial body.

Fabro, in his telegram to Lowden, said the BCJHL's agreement with the Western Canada League "should be revoked or revised" as agreed by the three bodies at a special meeting in Vancouver on Oct. 18.

"Also, conditions re assessments due the BCAHA are completely unacceptable," he said.

Suspension of the BCJHL from the BCAHA is a possibility.

The B.C. junior league has called a special meeting in Vancouver on Sunday.

While the league may be heading for designation as an "outlaw" circuit, teams head for their regularly-scheduled commitments. Three games are scheduled tonight with Victoria Cougars at Vancouver, Chilliwack Bruins at Penticton and Kelowna Buckaroos at New Westminster.

Cougars, who entertain Kelowna in Memorial Arena on Saturday night, will again be without centre Jim Lautenslager. The club's third top point-getter, Lautenslager is undergoing treatment for pulled neck muscles.

Coach Ron Maxwell said he "will go with what I have" for tonight's game in Vancouver but plans to recruit centre Gord Neilson of the junior "B" Clubs for Saturday's game. Maxwell is reluctant to call up a junior "B" replacement for Lautenslager tonight because the Cubs are scheduled to play a Vancouver Island League game at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Meanwhile, Jim Dalzell of New Westminster continues to hold the lead in the BCJHL's individual scoring race. Dalzell's 41-point total, including 15 goals and 26 assists, is good for a four-point margin over Vic Mecredi of Penticton.

Cougars' Ted Plowe is third in the scoring race with 35 points, two behind Mecredi.

Load Doesn't Slow 'Reluctant Leader'

By The Canadian Press

Frank Mahovlich, the reluctant leader, is paying dividends for Detroit Red Wings in the absence of injured Gordie Howe.

The 32-year-old Timmins, Ont., native, who came out of Toronto's St. Michael's College 14 years ago with stardom written all over his clippings, never attained the leadership qualities looked for in 11 seasons with Toronto Maple Leafs although he was under constant pressure to produce.

But since his trade to Detroit late in the 1967-68 season he has been scoring at a clip Torontonians had expected of him; 49 in '68-69 and 38 in '69-70.

He has also been playing on a line and in the shadow of Howe, a 25-year veteran in the Detroit organization and the NHL's all-time scoring champion; and of the Wings' veteran centre and captain, Alex Delvecchio. This has been to the liking of the quiet-spoken Mahovlich.

Now with Howe's serious rib injury suffered in a game against Pittsburgh Penguins Nov. 21, Detroit's leadership burden has fallen on Mahovlich's shoulders. He has responded well.

SCORES No. 400

Thursday night he scored his 400th career goal as Detroit held Los Angeles Kings to a 4-4 tie at Detroit. It was his fifth goal in the last four games and doubled his output for the season.

In other games, Al MacNeil made a successful coaching debut with Montreal as the Canadiens scored an easy 6-3 win over St. Louis Blues. The defending Stanley Cup champions, Boston Bruins, were hard-pressed to pull out a 4-4 tie with the expansion Buffalo Sabres.

In the only game tonight, Philadelphia Flyers are in Oakland for a game with California Golden Seals.

Mahovlich, in reaching the 400-goal plateau, became only the sixth player in NHL history to reach that figure in regularly-scheduled games. His linemates, Howe and Delvecchio, are in that select few along with retired Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Jean Beliveau of Montreal and Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks.

His 49 goals in 1968-69 paced Detroit's Production Line to a season record 114 scored by a line.

POINTS SCARCE

Defenceman Larry Cahan's third goal of the year at 12:10 of the third period pulled the Kings even and gave them their first point in their last seven games at the Olympia, dating back to Feb. 1, 1968.

It was also Mahovlich night at Montreal where the Canadiens' Peter Mahovlich, the younger but bigger brother of the Big M, scored his 12th and 13th of the season.

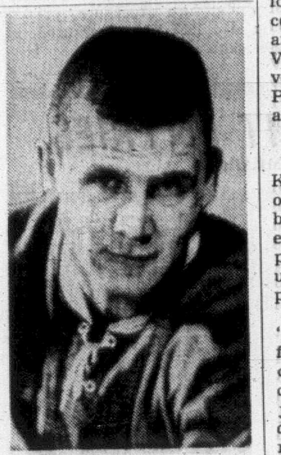
As was the case at Detroit, the loosely-played Montreal-St. Louis game provided little action for the 15,741 fans, but it proved satisfying for McNeil, appointed Canadiens' coach earlier in the day following the resignation of Claude Ruel.

The 35-year-old Sydney, N.S., native, who played defence with Toronto, Montreal, Chicago Black Hawks, New York Rangers and Pittsburgh before coaching in the minor-pro ranks last year, was making his first big-league start behind the bench.

He noted particularly the efforts turned in by goaltender Rogatien Vachon and winger Leon Rochefort, up from Montreal Voyageurs to replace injured Yvan Cournoyer, who scored a goal and assisted on two others.

At Buffalo, the Sabres rebounded from a 2-0 deficit and had a full house of 10,331 cheering wildly with a 4-2 lead before the Bruins started putting their game together again.

Fred Stanfield's goal at 12:38 of the third period put Boston within reach and Ken Hodge's 50-foot slap shot with just over a minute left in the game put the Bruins on even terms.



RETURNING to Montreal Canadiens is Ralph Backstrom, veteran centre who announced retirement Oct. 10 on eve of National Hockey League season. Backstrom, 31, is skating with club and expects to be in playing condition in about a week.

CUBA TAKES FIRST GAME OF PLAYOFF

CARTAGENA, Colombia — Rain forced postponment Thursday of the second game in a best-of-three series between the United States and Cuba for the world amateur baseball championship.

Cuba won the playoff opener 3-1 Wednesday after the two squads finished the regular tournament in a tie for the title.

Pitcher Jose Huelga, who outduelled Burt Hooten of the U.S., won his own game by driving in Lazaro Peres with a single in the 11th and later scoring when Hooten fumbled an infield grounder.

Huelga pitched a five-hitter and struck out 13 batters for the victory.

United Eyes Lead

Victoria United could regain the Pacific Coast Soccer League lead by defeating Firefighters on Saturday in Vancouver's Empire Stadium.

United now trails unbeaten Columbus by one point but even if the Victorians win, their first-place position could turn out to be temporary because Columbus tackles Croatia on Sunday.

Coach Frank Grealy of United has shuffled his lineup for Saturday, moving Peter Wheaton to outside right and Russ Ball to right link.

Bob Bolitho will return to the roster at outside left now that high school soccer is over.

BENCH, GIBSON, MAYS RECEIVE HONORS

Emmett Won't Try to Top 1970 Series Thrills

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Baseball, regally attired in a plush Hollywood setting on the final night of its winter meetings, will be somewhat poorer next spring without Emmett Ashford calling 'em as he sees 'em.

The bouncy, 56-year-old umpire, first black man ever to call balls and strikes in the major leagues, bowed out Thursday after five turbulent seasons.

His retirement announcement came several hours before Cincinnati Reds' Johnny Bench, St. Louis Cardinals' Bob Gibson and San Francisco Giants' Willie Mays received top honors at baseball's inaugural national-awards banquet in a swank Beverly Hills hotel.

Bench, the major league slugging king last season, was named player of the year. Gibson, a 23-game winner, captured 1970 pitching laurels. Mays, the Giants' 39-year-old superstar, was selected as the player who best typifies the game on and off the field.

Other award winners included third baseman Brooks Robinson of world champion Baltimore Orioles, named defensive player of the year, Pittsburgh Pirates' Danny Murtaugh, named manager of the year, and Orioles' front office chief Harry Dalton, executive of the year.

Ashford, who reached the normal retirement age of 55 for American League umpires a year ago, announced he was stepping out "with a great deal of reluctance" after 20 years on the job — the first 15 of them in the minors.

Joe Cronin, American League president, who brought Ashford up from the Pacific Coast League in 1966, and who invited him back last year, denied that pressure had been put on the ebullient showman to retire. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn hinted that he would offer Ashford a job in his office.

Ashford, who worked the World Series for the first time this year, insisted he merely wanted to "depart on top."

"Trying to top . . . the thrilling events of the 1970 World Series would be superfluous and anti-climactic," he said.

"He wasn't pushed out," Cronin said. "He certainly has been a credit to baseball and contributed greatly to it.

"You can't give him (Cronin) enough credit," Ashford said. "In every league I worked in, the president has been on the spot and I've had to get him off — by working."

Ashford did his job with a flourish, and his antics behind the plate and on the bases delighted the fans.

"I've toned down on that stuff the last two years," he said. "I think I was taking a little away from the players."

He said he was disappointed at first that there were no other black umpires in the majors.

"Now I'm very happy, because we have about half a dozen black umpires on the way up."

Ashford will receive a pension of only $1,500 a year for his five years in the majors.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Pressure Light But Fishing Good In Cold Breezes

By STEWART LANG

Icy-cold, blustery winds and the hint of snow have helped to make this one of those "in between" times for salmon fishermen around Vancouver Island.

Despite the fact that winter spring salmon are "out there," most anglers are either warm and snug indoors, or taking time out from fishing pursuits to go north for the last few days of the deer hunting season or chasing ducks.

But for those that have been venturing out, the southern portion of the Island has provided the greatest rewards.

Winter springs up to 20 pounds were landed between Tod Inlet and Willis Point and limits of jack springs were reported caught near Ricky's Roost, the Boulder and Bamberton.

Times staffer Peter Medwid tells us he found fish at a depth of 85 feet off Willis Point during the week by using a sounder, which may or may not mean something.

And further north in Saanich Inlet large numbers of legal-sized grilse are keeping action warm in the middle of Deep Cove.

Either green or the new luminous octopus lures have been responsible for taking winter springs up to 25 pounds off Oak Bay. Trial Island is the area where several limit catches were noted. Some big ones are also chasing abundant feed off Ten Mile Point.

Gerry Gieskens reports good fishing for winter springs averaging six pounds near Brotchie Ledge from daybreak until about 10:30 a.m., in the vicinity of the log boom in Esquimalt Harbor and out on Constance Banks.

Fishermen should be cautioned, however, to only use a boat capable of reaching shelter quickly in the latter location, which is exposed to a greater degree than areas along the shore.

A few winter springs tipping the scales at 14 pounds have been boated along the kelp bed and over the Deep Hole in Pedder Bay, where anglers are using 75 to 90 feet of line, one pound of weight and a 36 to 42-inch leader.

Eight pounds seems to be the average for winter springs hauled up from deep waters off Secretary Island.

Up-Island the picture is scanty although good returns were reported from Chemainus Harbor, Crofton and Maple Bay.

Other northerly locations which could be good on the coming weekend are Five Fingers, Departure Bay, Entrance Light, San Mateo Bay and Duncan Bay.

For the freshwater angler, the picture is much the same, although some bright prospects may be coming up.

Steelhead continue to trickle up a number of Island streams including the Gold, Quinsam, Puntledge and Somass rivers.

Two more weeks should also bring these sea-run rainbows into the Nanaimo River.

Snow has blocked the route to some of the higher trout-fishing lakes but good returns are still reported from Shawnigan and Brannan lakes.

POT SHOTS: Hunting seasons ending Sunday on the northern portion (north of Campbell River) of Vancouver Island are deer, blue grouse and ptarmigan . . . game still in season, with closing dates in brackets: black bear (Dec. 31), ruffed grouse (Dec. 31), ducks, coots, rails and geese (Jan. 10) . . . black brant season opens Dec. 26 and ends March 10.

Sensational Stories Threat From O'Quinn

OTTAWA (CP) — Some "sensational" stories about operation of the Canadian Football League will be revealed by Montreal Alouettes general manager Red O'Quinn if Ottawa Rough Riders owner David Loeb sues him, the former Rider general manager was quoted as saying.

In a column by Citizen sports editor Jack Koffman, O'Quinn says that "if they put me up against the wall, I'll tell some stories . . . that will be nothing short of sensational."

Koffman said this is O'Quinn's answer to Loeb's talk of going to court to decide if O'Quinn, while winding up his term in Ottawa late in 1970, "stole" halfback Moses Denson from Riders and placed him on Montreal's negotiation list.

O'Quinn is quoted as annoyed because of what he regards as character assassination.

"Here's something people should know. The Ottawa club (coaching staff) asked me to take someone off the (negotiation) list in order to make room for another player they had in mind. That's just what I did."

"We didn't know whether he'd last a week in camp or prove a sensation. Neither did the Riders and there were no complaints then."

Island Group Gets Sandown in August

The B.C. Jockey Club is stepping aside and a Vancouver Island-based group will take over the promotion of racing at Sandown Park with the promise of a 12-day summer meeting next season.

An official of the Vancouver Island Quarter Horse Racing Association today confirmed his group has secured a five-year lease on the Sidney track.

Danny Hajnal, vice-president of the VIQHRA, said a 12-day meeting will be held from Aug. 3 to Aug. 26, subject to the approval of the B.C. Racing Commission.

Thoroughbreds will make up the major portion of each day's racing.

Hajnal said tentative plans call for a minimum of two quarter horse races, six thoroughbred races and possibly one mixed match between both breeds on each racing day.

'WHAT THEY WANT'

In Vancouver, Jack Diamond, co-operator of the Jockey Club, said his group does not intend to stage fall racing.

"This," he said, "will give Vancouver Island fans racing in good weather, which is what they have always wanted."

To compensate for the loss of its Vancouver Island dates, the Jockey Club has applied for permission to extend the thoroughbred season at Vancouver's Exhibition Park from 104 to 108 days.

Approval of the B.C. Racing Commission is expected to be a formality.

Exhibition Park's season will start April 14 and end Oct. 16.

FUTURITY A FEATURE

Hajnal said Sandown Park dates must be confirmed but racing will be conducted on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday for the first two weeks, and on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday thereafter.

"Insofar as quarter horses are concerned," he added, "I feel I can be safe in announcing that the highlight will be the first Canadian Futurity. I will be worth a minimum of $15,000, but, depending on nominations, probably much more."

The Island group also announced some plans for alterations and improvements to Sandown. It includes extension of the track to provide a 440-yard straightaway for quarter horses.

The straightaway was 330 yards when the VIQHRA staged a three-day meeting earlier this year.

Triple Dead Heat

TORONTO (CP) — Canada recorded its first triple dead heat in thoroughbred horse racing Thursday when three horses tied for second place in the fifth race at Greenwood Race Track.

Susan's Page, Lar's Theme and Better Be Fast all crossed the finish line together. Country Dude finished first and set a three-way exactor.

The finish resulted in a show-and-place minus pool, with three horses paying $2.10 to place and show.

The only other triple dead heat in Canadian racing occurred last October in harness racing at Windsor Raceway.

Sandy Hawley of Whitby, Ont., won four more races to bring his season's total to 446 in his pursuit of Bill Shoemaker's North American record of 485.

Actual story of J CLOTH* Towel user. Name changed.

How a J CLOTH* Towel got Bob Woods home through the storm

"It was a dog of a night. The whole road was flooded. This truck goes charging by, spraying water through the car grill.

"My engine quit cold. I had water in the distributor.

"Luckily, I had some J CLOTH Towels in the car. I use them for cleaning mud off the lights and steam off the windshield.

"I peeled off a clean towel and wiped the plug leads, rotor and cap dry. J CLOTH Towels are strong, and soak up water like a sponge.

"The engine started right off the bat. And I saved myself a towing bill!"

Vacuum Cleaner Legal

TORONTO (CP) — A statement issued jointly by the Canadian Automobile Sport Clubs and the Sports Car Club of America indicates the "vacuum cleaner" Chaparral cars built by Texan Jim Hall will be legal for the 1971 Canadian-American Challenge Cup series.

The Chaparral 2J, officially called a "ground effects" vehicle, has brought protests from other competitors who feel their cars will require overly-expensive modifications to compete with Hall's racer.

The CASC and SCCA met in 1969 and announced that Can-Am rules would be stabilized through 1972 and they have confirmed the eligibility for 1971 of all cars that ran in the 1970 series.

The Chaparral 2J made its debut at Watkins Glen, N.Y., in July in the hands of Jackie Stewart. The newly-paved circuit played havoc with the vacuum elements of the car which are designed to provide road-hugging stability. The machine subsequently proved its worth, however, by gaining pole position in several events.

Shawnigan Wins Title

VANCOUVER — Shawnigan Lake Boys' School edged Vancouver's Point Grey 15-14 Thursday at Brockton Oval to capture the R. P. Woodward Memorial Shield, emblematic of the B.C. high school rugby championship.

Roland Borsato, Chris Mills and Rob Carere each scored a try for Shawnigan and Bob Oughtred kicked conversions for each tally. Mark Tepoorten paced Point Grey with a drop goal, try and conversion while Jim Manning and Joe Harvey each added a try.

After coming from behind, Shawnigan led 5-3 at halftime.

A final between the mainland and Vancouver Island champions was not played last year due to a ruling by the Vancouver district that rugby was to end in November, not allowing Charles Tupper to meet Brentwood College.

1971 COMET $2498.*

MOVE IT! GROOVE IT! SWING IT!

Small car size, small car price, 6 or V-8 engine 2-doors or 4, sporty styling.

Move it! Mercury's all new little car, Comet, is what you might call a thrifty swifty. Or even a nifty swifty. You can zip past gas stations with any of Comet's three 6-cylinder engines. Or zoom along in style with Comet's performance-proven 302 cubic inch V-8. Either way, you're on regular gas . . . and getting small car mileage. Transmission? Choose from a floor or column-mounted 3-speed manual or opt for the extra relaxation of Comet's 3-speed Select-Shift automatic.

Groove it! Driving Mercury's new little Comet is like wearing a groovy new outfit. People notice. Yet for all its rich good looks and sporty styling, Comet is priced much lower than you'd expect. The interiors live up to Comet's promise of quality. They're bright and tastefully designed. Comfortable and roomy. With easy-to-clean cloth and vinyl seats and warm carpeting colour-keyed to match the upholstery. Comet is fun to own . . . and practical, too. Low initial cost, low maintenance cost and low operating cost. Who could ask for more!

Swing it! One thing about a low priced car — it makes those extra convenience options easier to own. And the new little Comet has enough options to turn it into a mini-limousine. They include an AM or AM/FM stereo radio, Whisper-Aire conditioning, tinted glass, rear-window defogger, a consolette with electric clock — even a complete GT package. With all this going for it, you might find it easy to forget that Comet is a small compact. But you'll believe it when you finally drive in for gas.

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price for base 2-door sedan not including distribution and delivery, preparation and conditioning charges, licence, gas and Provincial Sales Tax. Some features mentioned or shown are optional.

The little car with better ideas.

CONFUSED?

Sometimes it is difficult to find your way through all the claims and counter-claims of advertising media.

But there is one no-nonsense report that tells it exactly like it is—not like we (or anyone else) dreams it to be.

That's the report of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, an advertiser controlled circulation fact-finding and fact-reporting organization.

Mercy Mission

WINNIPEG (CP) — An armed forces helicopter sped 50 pints of fresh blool to Winnipeg Thursday from Dauphin in a dramatic mercy mission.

The blood was urgently needed to save a live of 15-year-old boy. The youngster is a hemophiliac and a blood component was needed quickly to help stem his bleeding. The component could only be drawn from fresh blood.

A-G Concerned

WINNIPEG (CP) — Attorney-General Al Mackling said Thursday there are many crimes for which first offenders should not be charged, including shoplifting.

The Manitoba minister told a citizens' committee on corrections that "irreparable harm" may be done to first offenders who commit minor illegal acts for which they are charged and treated as criminals.

Mackling said he is concerned with a recent case which involves a young woman who stole some cosmetics from a store.

"I don't know what went through the young lady's mind," he said. "It troubles me that this girl is charged with a criminal offence . . . I don't want to see that girl go through the courts."

The attorney-general said he would prefer a system in which an offender would appear before a panel of individuals who would deal with the matter on the basis of common sense.

McNamara Feted

WINNIPEG (CP) — The grain trade paid tribute Thursday night to W. C. McNamara, retired chief commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board, and urged him to continue working for the western farmer in his new career as a senator.

"We have some plans for you," said Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson who was one of three federal minister finding time on budget night to attend the $25-a-plate testimonial banquet at the Fort Garry Hotel.

Blame Misplaced

EDMONTON (CP) — High phosphate detergents may have been unfairly blamed for causing pollution through growth of algae, Dave Broadfoot, secretary-manager of the Canadian Water Resources Association, said. He said a carbon jon which comes from other sources may be the main cause of the growth of algae.

Experiment Fails

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — The Canadian icebreaker Louis St. Laurent Thursday failed its second attempt in two days to reach the National Harbors Board port at Churchill from four miles offshore. The ship, the first to enter Hudson Bay after freeze-up, now will return to Halifax.

Captain Paul Fournier said the icebreaker's failure to smash through ice that had been piled up offshore by two days of heavy winds indicates it is not likely the port's shipping season can be extended beyond the present three months.

Newspaper Sold

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP) — Sale of the Dauphin Herald Co. Ltd. has been announced by Helen F. Marsh, president and publisher.

New owners are a group of businessmen in Dauphin and the Parklands region of west-central Manitoba. President of the board is Harold N. McCallum, who will continue as general manager.

The company, which publishes the weekly Dauphin Herald was granted letters-patent in 1907. Forerunner of the Herald, the Lake Dauphin Pioneer-Press, was first published April 1, 1896.

EDMONTON: MORE SNOW LESS HEAT

EDMONTON (CP) — For the first time in 89 years, temperatures in the city during November failed to reach the 40s, the Edmonton weather office said Thursday.

The second-lowest November temperature in 20 years for Edmonton was recorded Nov. 27 when the mercury dropped to 19 degrees below zero.

Temperatures averaged 17 degrees compared with the normal 24.5 degrees.

More snow and less sunlight also helped to make November an unpleasant month. The long-term average of 100 hours of sunshine was chopped by 22 hours and a total of 10.3 inches of snow fell compared with the average 7.4 inches.

Labor Seeks Rent Board Nominee

Tenants who live in the city of Victoria and who are interested in sitting on a proposed rental grievance board have been invited to submit their names to the Victoria Labor Council.

While city council has not yet declared its intention to establish a board to consider landlord-tenant disputes, Mayor Courtney Haddock has invited the labor council to suggest the name of someone — a tenant — who would sit on the board.

Larry Ryan, the labor council's secretary treasurer, said Wednesday Brian Jewitt, the president of the Capital Region Tenants' Association, is moving to New Zealand.

CAPITAL SCENE

The Canadian Owners' and Pilots' Association will hold a dinner meeting Saturday at 7 p.m. in the Colonial Inn. Major Gordon Bissell, commanding officer of the Rescue Co-ordination Centre, will talk on the centre's functions. A program on light plane flying in the Caribbean will be given by Harry King.

The Gyro Club of Victoria will meet Monday afternoon in the Empress Hotel. Ian Robertson, local manager of Oppenheimer Food Merchants, will show the film "A Place Called Mooroopna."

MRS. PEARKES
. . . many accomplishments

Sorority to Honor First Woman Freeman

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Mrs. George R. Pearkes, first woman Freeman of the Municipality of Saanich and the third person in Victoria ever to receive the Silver Sword of the Knights of Columbus, Victoria Council, has been singled out for another high honor. In an impressive ceremony Sunday afternoon she will be given an international honorary membership in Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.

Forbes

The ceremony, in the lounge of Olde England Inn, will be conducted by Mrs. Hugh Maclean, president of the sorority's city council (representing 10 local chapters). She will be assisted by Mrs. Hugh McGregor and Mrs. Walter Lock, council's two vice-presidents.

In the years since the first Beta Sigma Phi chapter was formed in Abilene, Kansas, April 30, 1931, the sorority has conferred international honorary membership on a number of prominent women in many different spheres throughout the world.

Women who exemplify the ideals and interests of Beta Sigma Phi and who are known for their accomplishments in some special field of public life, professional work and the arts.

The late Mrs. Nancy Hodges was so honored; also Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Mrs. Calvin Cooledge and Canada's Senator Iva Fallis of Ontario.

The honor is not lightly given and any woman admitted in this way holds her honorary membership in the highest esteem.

Current roster includes such well-known names as Senator Elsie Inman of Prince Edward Island, Mme. St. Laurent, wife of a former Prime Minister of Canada, Miss Amelia Anthony, founder of Girlstown in Texas; Anne Fisher, California author and scientist; concert and opera star Eleanor Steber, English actress Athene Seyler and United States' senior woman senator, Margaret Chase Smith.

Well travelled, well educated, the wife of a soldier, politician and former Queen's representative, Blytha Pearkes joins this group with her own outstanding accomplishments.

At the time of World War Two, when General Pearkes was overseas in command of the First Canadian Division, she worked with the Women's Voluntary Service Corps as an ambulance driver in England. For a time she ran a canteen with Mrs. Sidney Askew, sister of famed film maker Arthur Rank.

Describing this phase of her war work, Mrs. Pearkes has said "we had to use mashed potatoes to make buns for the soldiers when we ran that canteen."

After two years overseas the Pearkes came to Victoria when he was named head of Pacific Command.

Then, in 1945, the general retired from the army to enter politics.

Mrs. Pearkes accompanied him into the rough and tumble of political campaigning. She was at his side when he was elected member of Parliament for Nanaimo and the Islands and went with him to Ottawa to become one of Parliament's top-of-the-ladder hostesses there.

In 1960 when General Pearkes was named lieutenant-governor of British Columbia she became the province's first lady and chatelaine of Government House.

Seven years later, shortly after their retirement, both were made Freemen of the Municipality of Saanich where the family home is situated.

Sword trophy of the Knights of Columbus, was given to Blytha Pearkes for "outstanding support" of the lieutenant-governor during his extended term of office and for her "natural grace, charm and the affection for people, shown to great and lowly alike."

This affection was exemplified not only in Government House but throughout British Columbia, as the Pearkes went back and forth across the province, extending the hand of friendship, in the Queen's name, to all.

Artificial Cheetahs Just as Good

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Provincial Museum director Bristol Foster frowns when he sees a woman wearing a cheetah coat.

Foster, just returned from a one-month National Geographic Magazine-sponsored trip to Nairobi National Park in Kenya, says the spotted animal is in danger of extinction due to demands of clothing manufacturers.

"Every time I see a woman with a cheetah coat on her back, I feel like speaking to her," he said. "The artificial ones they make today look just as good."

IN KENYA

Foster went to Kenya to gather material and take photographs of giraffes for National Geographic.

He's an expert on giraffes after spending three years studying them before coming to Victoria 2½ years ago.

He was almost on "speaking terms" with 250 giraffes when he left Kenya, and when he returned there last month was able to identify all of his old friends by the patterns on their necks. They differ as do fingerprints.

"The giraffe is the most spectacular cow-like animal there is," he said.

The 40-square mile Nairobi Park famed for its wildlife is slowly deteriorating due to increasing numbers of visitors, he says.

"It's becoming a glorified zoo. The animals are quite tame," said Foster who once found himself involved in a tug-of-war with hyenas.

He was pulling on the carcass of an animal and they were on the other end.

The park should have been made much larger but the demand for land by tribesmen for cattle-raising prevented this, he said.

"It would certainly pay more than raising cattle. The tourist trade brings the park $10 per acre — the cattle $1.50 per year."

Masonic Funeral Monday

A full Masonic funeral will be held Monday at 1:30 p.m. in McCall's Floral Chapel for prominent Mason, Edward Jordayne C. Browne-Cave, 902 Parklands, who died Wednesday at the age of 85.

Born Aug. 9, 1885, in Bootle, Liverpool, Eng., he came to Victoria in 1920.

Browne-Cave was in the printing business until his retirement in 1956, being a partner with his son Wilmot from 1934 to 1940 in the firm of Art Point Printing Co. Ltd., and from 1940 to 1956 in the Cave Printing Co.

He joined Henderson Lodge No. 84 in 1934 and became worshipful master of the lodge in 1945. He served as district deputy grand master of district 21 from 1953 to 1954; he was a member of Mount Newton Lodge No. 89 and Victoria Lodge of Perfection A and ASR.

He was made an honorary member of both Mt. Shepherd Lodge No. 159 and Manoah Lodge No. 141 of Tofino. He served as representative of South Australia since 1960 in the Grand Lodge of B.C.

Browne-Cave is survived by two sons, Dr. Genille Browne-Cave of Montreal, and Wilmot, with whom he lived; and a sister, Beatric, of White Rock.

His wife, Ella, died in 1968.

Interment at Royal Oak Burial Park will follow Monday's ceremony.

Building Figures On Rise

Building permits for a 50-suite apartment and a 77-unit motel totalling $920,000 pushed Victoria construction value during November well above the figure for November 1969.

City of Victoria engineering department issued permits of a value of $1.96 million last month, up $860,000.

But for the 11 months to date this year, construction values in the city are still running considerably behind 1969.

A total $19.2 million to the end of November compares with $31.87 million a year ago, which was the highest figure of the last five years. This year's 11-month total compares with the January-November period in 1967, when a total $20.84 million worth of permits was issued.

Deputy city engineer W. N. Jorgensen said 460 permits were issued during the month, of which two were for apartments totalling 66 units; five single family dwellings; 41 residential alterations and repairs; 23 non-residential alterations and repairs; 252 electrical installations; 110 plumbing installations; 11 signs; 12 demolitions, and one each of oil tank installation, motel, commercial building and industrial building.

Since the beginning of the year 16 apartments having 2,283 suites have been started in the city, for a value of $4.6 million.

READERS' DAY

A Look Backward At the Good Life

By Jack Scott

Being some odds and ends in collaboration with our readers, Lord love them:

Miss Nancy Forbes, of this city, suggests that we all spare a moment or two to contemplate the covers, fore and aft, of the new B.C. Telephone book which marks the centennial of British Columbia joining Confederation. It is a thought-provoking exercise.

The front cover shows a scene of perhaps a century ago, a forest clearing with a dozen or more pioneers grouped in the foreground for the photographer. You can all but smell the fragrance of the evergreen forest that marches up to the doors of the primitive shacks. The faces of these people reflect a quality of character, purpose and family solidarity that is downright magnificent. Note particularly the beautiful, smiling young woman in the very centre of the picture.

The rear cover, in full color, shows the high-rise development in Vancouver's West End, the cylindrical, cellular, concrete, crowded jungle of life in the inner circle of the city where people live in tall containers. In this whole panorama shot, incidentally, there's not a single human being to be seen.

Scott

Writes Miss Forbes: "The telephone company sees in these pictures a proud heritage of 100 years as a sound foundation for the builders of a bright future, but looking at this fascinating old picture I have been wondering if the pioneers, themselves, would not be aghast at our way of life today."

Some amused and awed reaction to the formula for a happy marriage as expounded here by Roy and Mona Hundleby, disciples of Dr. Herbert Otto and his love-each-other-very-much method for matrimonial bliss.

A number of correspondents suggest that television is the curse of modern marriages and one often-recurring problem is cited by Mrs. M. T., of Victoria, as follows:

"It wasn't so bad before we acquired cablevision, but now with a dozen channels coming into our living room loud and clear, almost all of them offering wall-to-wall schedules of sporting events every weekend, it has become an actual threat to marriage. I find, as many wives must have found, that I have now lost a husband from Saturday morning until Sunday evening. On one recent Sunday he began his armchair quarterbacking at nine o'clock in the morning and was still sitting there 10 hours later, apparently unaware that all communication between us had ceased.

"As marriage counsellors, Mr. and Mrs. Hundleby rightly say that the routine, dormant marriage can only be revived by give and take. What I am dying to hear from them is how this can work with television. I am doing all the giving at the moment, knowing that he finds this a relaxing and rewarding interest, an escape for him after a week at the old grind. But should he be doing some giving as well? What would Dr. Otto have to say on this?"

I sent the query on to Mr. and Mrs. Hundleby who replied as follows:

"Perhaps, in such a case, the wife must ask herself some questions. What has she done to contribute to this lack of communication? Why does he prefer watching games on television? Is she becoming so jealous of this monster that she is making herself unlovable? It's well to remember, too, that most marriage counsellors agree that wives are usually more sensitive than husbands on this matter of communicating and so the husband may be unaware of it.

"This is another case in which Dr. Otto's suggestions for putting more joy into marriage might be carried out. The wife and husband should set aside a time when they could discuss this particular situation and the wider question of the strengths and future of their life together. That is the fundamental of working for more joy in marriage: you must talk about it and plan it."

All sorts of interesting, historical post-scripts to the notes here concerning the Albert Head lighthouse and the reference to Race Rocks, which I'm hoping to visit shortly.

A retired deep-sea captain, now living at East Sooke, points out that this is a particularly appropriate month, for two reasons, to recall the history of the Race Rocks light.

It was exactly 110 years ago, on the night of Dec. 23, 1860, when the barque Nannette foundered there and it was just four days later, on the 27th, that the light went into operation for the first time.

It seems that the 385-ton barque, 175 days and 16,000 miles out of London and just 11 miles from a safe berth in Esquimalt harbor when she went upon the reef in dense fog, carried a general cargo that was largely liquid in content. The looters descended like locusts upon her broken hull before she slid to her grave in 15 fathoms. Some guesses had it that $25,000 worth of English ale, French brandy and Old Tom gin vanished in the nights before Christmas.

It was on another Christmas Day in 1865 that five relatives and friends of the lighthouse-keeper, bound for a day-long visit, perished when their small boat overturned in the 10-knot rip tide. The lighthouse-keeper was dead within the year, so it was said, from grief.

The 105-foot lighthouse, perhaps the most attractive of any on our coast from an esthetic viewpoint, is made from four-foot-thick granite blocks, cut, fitted and numbered in England and brought around the Horn to Esquimalt in 1858, which surely makes it one of the earliest of all pre-fabs.

"As my great-grandfather told the story to me the wreck there of the Nannette reads like a shooting script for the movie Tight Little Island," my captain friend tells me.

"I can find only disconnected accounts of the Race Rocks history," he notes. "Surely there is a great book waiting here for someone to write."

No less than five readers, with long memories of the days when your correspondent operated at another place in another time, have asked if they may expect a reprinting of the famous Morton Thompson Method for Cooking a Christmas Turkey.

In the face of such enormous public demand the answer will have to be yes—sometime next week, perhaps, to give you ample time for amassing the many and costly ingredients.

The late Morton Thompson, writer, raconteur and gourmet, first made public his incredible formula in a memorable collection of humorous essays called "Joe, the Wounded Tennis Player." My own experiment with the method was such an unqualified success that I reprinted the directions for 18 consecutive years.

The Thompson Method is relatively costly, as you will see, back-breaking in its demands and by no means foolproof. Indeed, the post-Christmas reports that came to me were almost always limited to one of two words: "Magnificent" or "Disastrous."

OVERNIGHT SNOW etches sharp contrast around ornamental pond beside Provincial Museum this morning. Fall produced a number of bashed fenders on slippery streets but no serious mishaps. More snow or rain is predicted for tonight with rain following Saturday. (Irving Strickland Photo)

MIXED RAIN AND SNOW TONIGHT

Area Motorists Crawl to Work

Saanich and Oak Bay municipalities were the hardest hit today as Greater Victoria residents slithered their way to work on roads made treacherous by Thursday night's snowfall.

This morning Saanich police were hustling, unsnarling traffic that blocked most of the major intersections. There were a rash of minor accidents, caused by hazardous snow-packed roads.

As motorists drove to work one Oak Bay policeman described the situation as having "more accidents than policemen."

In contrast Victoria and Esquimalt escaped almost unscathed.

One minor accident, involving $200 damage, was reported by Esquimalt police this morning while the few in the city were of the "fender-bashing" variety police said.

Overnight the temperature dipped to 29 degrees at Gonzales and a cooler 23 degrees at the Victoria International Airport.

The Pat Bay Highway and Malahat were reported in good condition with surfaces sanded.

Between one and four inches of snow fell in the Greater Victoria overnight.

While no records were set in the Greater Victoria area, history was made in parts of northern Vancouver Island and the interior of the province.

Terrace in northern B.C. was one degree below zero, down 15 degrees from the low of 14 above set in 1956; record.

A fairly active storm is expected to move in from the west tonight, bringing a mixture of rain and snow, which will change to rain Saturday. Temperatures are expected to rise to the low or mid 40s.

Strong southeasterlies of 25 miles an hour will accompany the rain.

Low Income Study Seeks Welfare Groups' Views

Canada's low income and welfare rights groups will be given questionnaires next week to determine their views on make-work and work-for-welfare programs.

The study is sponsored by the Victoria Low Income Group and Victoria Citizens' Committee on Unemployment.

Low Income Group president Walter Olszewski said today the questionnaires will be distributed at a planning committee meeting next week for the poor peoples' conference to be held in Toronto in January.

He said work projects are government-sponsored programs whereas work for welfare schemes require welfare recipients to work for their cheques.

Langley, B.C., has begun a work for welfare program and Vancouver wants to, he said.

The questionnaire will seek answers to poor peoples' experiences with wages and working conditions on these projects as well as their general feelings about their worth.

Olszewski said work-for-welfare schemes can be like "government-supported slave labor" if wages are below minimums, and job security, unemployment insurance and bargaining powers are not included.

Kirkby Plans Strong Fight To Keep Job

The University of Victoria's dean of arts and sciences has overturned a recommendation from a philosophy department committee that Dr. Ronald Kirkby receive another two-year appointment.

However, the dean, Dr. John Climenhaga, said public or private pressure for dismissal of Kirkby, who announced support for the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec in October, "certainly didn't enter into my consideration."

Climenhaga also said his recommendation, which will go to Uvic president Dr. Bruce Partridge, was made "on academic considerations only, although some people may not believe that.

"Nevertheless, that was the sole basis for my decision."

Climenhaga was asked if deans often reverse the decision of a departmental committee on contract renewals.

"Normally it doesn't happen too often, but there are special occasions."

He said in considering contract renewals it was his job "to look at the broad picture of the university," which is beyond the scope of a departmental committee.

Kirkby learned of Climenhaga's decision in a letter he recieved from the dean on Monday.

The final decision on his contract, which expires next spring, will be made by the board of governors.

He said he would fight the decision, possibly by appealing to the board.

"I really refuse to be kicked out because I'm unorthodox."

He said the university is responding to pressure from the government to fire him, because if he isn't fired, the government can retaliate by reducing capital or operating grants.

Kirkby said while no reasons have been given for the decision not to renew his contract, even if a reason was given, it wouldn't be the real one that "they want to get rid of me."

Dr. Partridge could not be reached for comment today.

Criticism Mild On Mess Drive

Mayor Courtney Haddock's campaign to refurbish the Victoria police officers' mess with funds solicited from businessmen has been only mildly criticized by his political colleagues.

At least one alderman praised Haddock for his efforts to support the force.

Ald. Peter Pollen said today: "Frankly, I'm pleased with the mayor's courage in the face of completely unjustified ciriticism. He's obviously trying to improve the morale of his police force and he should be commended for it."

Criticism seemed to be summed up by aldermanic candidate Tony Miller who said it was "a good idea at the time, that didn't go down well."

Two other aldermanic candidates, Robert Baird and Robert Ellis, said that any such campaign should be conducted by the policemen themselves and not by the city's chief magistrate.

Ald. Cecil Parrott said he had no reason to comment because there were no public funds involved.

Aldermen Meet Monday On Institute Brief

A special meeting of Victoria city council has been called for 2 p.m. Monday to approve a brief to be sent to Ottawa asking that the planned federal oceanographic institute be located here.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said today the brief, prepared by the city in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce, should be sent off as soon as possible.

Haddock decided to push for the institute following a reported by a high federal official last month that it could be located in Vancouver where full university and industry resources are situated.

IF FOR NOTHING ELSE, the third of December, 1970, deserves to be remembered because of an extraordinary footnote to Canadian history made on that day.

Here's the guest in Canada's house, delivered from his kidnappers and walking free. And here are the three terrorists, their deal made and their safe-conduct assured, bound for Cuba and such sanctuary as they may receive there.

We can only guess how later historians will react to that most curious exchange. For all we in the present know, the scruffy trio may emerge as folk-heroes — romantic exiles to whom time in its passing has conveyed an undeserved aura.

But at least, they have been denied the martyr's crowns which might have dignified their muddled cause. The treaty wasn't broken. They were not shot down or snatched back to stand trial in a Canadian court.

Instead, Canada's loss of three it can well spare becomes Castro's dubious gain.

It is possible, of course, that the bearded one may find the gift not altogether to his taste.

After all, he has made his own revolution. Unless he can find uses beyond their limited propaganda value for his FLQ guests, there's not too much he can find to do with them.

Perhaps on an island where production is now more to the point than demonstration, he could put them to cutting cane.

Letter to hand from Miss Mona Morley of 450 Dallas Road, who has a notion to offer.

Factor and later governor Sir James Douglas, she points out, "appears to have been the chief person responsible for making treaties with the Indians to buy their land."

Her idea, which I find a novel addition to the many put forward for the blowing of our next year's centennial buckshee:

"Thinking about the present Indian claims," Miss Morley writes, "I wondered if it would be a good suggestion to use the centennial funds to buy back the province from the Indians in 1971?"

It's a worthy thought, but perhaps for the sake of the native peoples as well as British Columbians of other race-roots, we should first buy back the province from the Americans.

And with Rupert Inlet, the Skagit Valley and other such in mind, we shouldn't waste too much time!

On Wednesday, I told you about a neurotic squirrel monkey which was restored to health and happiness when transferred from our SPCA Animal Shelter to a Duncan area zoo.

On Wednesday evening, Mrs. V. W. Smith of 237 King George Terrace began to receive phone calls from her friends.

The burden of these was, "That must be your Sadie."

But Sadie, a well-oriented squirrel monkey of happy disposition, went missing on Armistice Day, whereas the one in my account became an SPCA charge a few weeks earlier.

Sadie is still missing without trace, to the anxiety of her people.

She — or I should say he, since her gender wasn't discovered until after the naming — spent much more time in garden than cage. Sadie played in the trees. He liked ripe blackberries, and robbed the Smith strawberry patch when the chance offered. He was two years old, and happy.

Unlike the Man called Sue, he did not brood over his name.

Its possible that he strayed. If so, his finder would delight a family that misses him by getting in touch with Mrs. Smith.

Liz Taylor Wears No Furs

LONDON (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor has forsaken fur coats in the interests of wildlife preservation.

The announcement was made today by the editor of the wildlife magazine Animals, Nigel Stilwell, who said he went to the actress and asked her to make the pledge.

Miss Taylor, wife of actor Richard Burton, has a fur wardrobe ranging from Arctic Russian sable to tropical leopard.

Dancer Says 40 Isn't Too Old

TORONTO (CP) — Ballet has been an obsession with Melissa Hayden for more than 30 years.

Now, in her 40s, the Toronto native, after 21 years as a leading ballerina with the New York City Ballet, says still:

"I am going to dance as long as I can."

That attitude is somewhat in conflict with the doctrine of George Baanchine, the New York company's artistic director.

"Ballerinas are like flowers," he says. "They bud at age eight, reaching full bloom around 30. Generally, after 40, they begin to wither."

Miss Hayden maintains:

"When you love something, it doesn't die. It just grows in intensity and desire."

And Miss Hayden loves ballet.

It is a love that in her childhood, she says, was neither fostered by her family nor the city's facilities.

"There were maybe one or two dance teachers and a touring ballet company once every five years."

She turned down fellowships to the University of Toronto and worked as file clerk to earn enough money to take her to New York. There she worked as a Rockette at the Radio City Music Hall while studying ballet.

She was accepted by the American Ballet Theatre and when the company went on strike joined another dancer in a tour of South America.

Then came an audition for Balanchine and at the age of 26 the start of her long career with the New York City Ballet.

The wife of lawyer Don Coleman, she has a 15-year-old son and an eight-year-old daughter.

Help at Hand

Last week I had a most eye-opening experience. I'd heard a lot about the legal advice clinic operating Monday nights, run on a shoe string by the local bar association. I'd seen The Storefront Lawyers on TV, and I wanted to see how our local men stacked up.

And was I ever impressed! I took a friend with me who had a bona fide problem she wanted clarification about, and we took our place in the waiting room, which although open only 5 minutes, was already pretty full.

We were assigned a number and given an application form. It asked for a run down on her finances, as well as various statistical data such as age and address.

I helped her fill this out (it was pretty hard scrinching some of the information into the short lines) and then we scanned the faces of our fellow advice seekers. Everyone was doing the same thing, in a greater or lesser overt style — namely, peeking at the other guys and trying to figure out what might be his or her problem.

There was a man who couldn't make out how to complete his application form, his use of language was too limited.

There was an elderly couple who looked quite anxious and asked to see the nice young man they'd seen last week, as he had asked them to return if there was any further trouble from the landlord.

And there was an attractive young woman with her five or six-year-old son accompanying her.

Through it all I was most impressed by the poise, kindliness, and grace of the lawyers' receptionist. I don't know whether this is her usual daily job, but she certainly carries it off like a pro. She was smiling, helpful and really quite unruffled in the midst of a most ruffling evening. When we left there were about 20 people standing with her in the room (which only had 3 chairs, but nice carpeting — how come no one sat on the floor?) it was 7:15 and there were still more applicants arriving.

The fellows we saw were terrific. They were young, enthusiastic, and appeared vitally interested in our particular problem. All this despite the fact they were interviewing us standing up in a two and a half foot wide closet furnished solely by plumbing pipes running up the wall.

It was an experience that made me feel so good I fairly skipped home, even in the near-freezing weather. It was fun and very helpful. And I really believe the people of the city need to congratulate the Victoria Bar Association on an excellent job that is really meeting a need. Well done!

Do you have any bouquets you'd like to send? Let me know and I'll pass them along. The address? Ask Adele c o The Times, Victoria.

Do Women Have Special Gift For Dull Jobs?

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip says women are better than men at repetitive, production-line work because they can do it without thinking about what they are doing.

"This is different from men," the Queen's husband told an industrialists' conference Monday. "Men really do think about what they are doing.

"How many men could knit and watch television at the same time? Women seem to have a special gift of being able to dissociate their minds from what their hands are doing."

Spring Fashions Come Up Smiling

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

This has certainly been a rough year for fashion people. They've been picketed by Women's Liberation, socked by an economic recession, forced to scramble through the many changes that a definite switch in trends always brings.

Yet, when a fashion pro goes forth to see what's left, it's amazing how little wreckage can be seen. The greetings at spring openings are cheerful, the buyers seem as numerous as ever, and there's just as many garment hand trucks and racks running you down on Seventh Avenue.

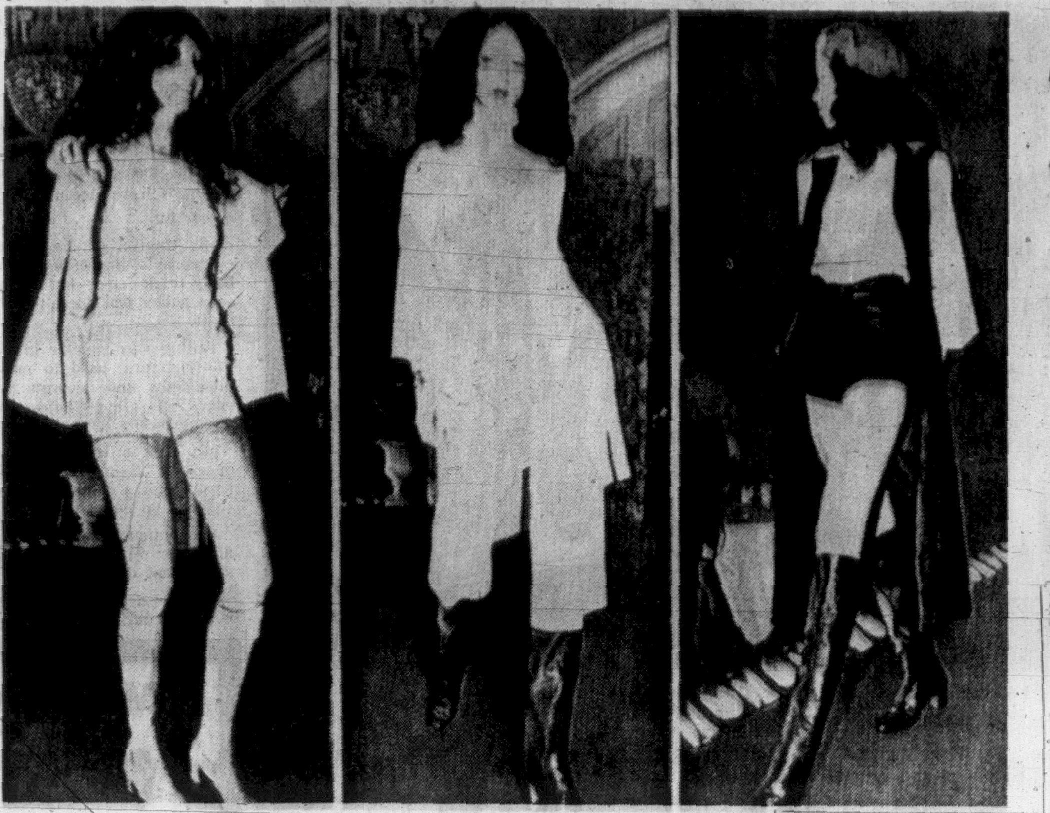
After viewing a large number of collections, the impression is that after the storms, spring fashions are coming up smiling. The dull colors and prints used by some for fall-winter were a mistake, and they're gone in the spring collections.

The attempts to make things look both longer and short at the same time were another mistake, and they've vanished.

Spring clothes, in general, are light-hearted, often dashing—and they're in various lengths, none of which bare the knee. Prices are often lower by an appreciable amount.

In fact, some houses are even announcing prices or price ranges when showing their collections. That hasn't been true for a long time. In the inflationary Sixties, it became downright vulgar to announce prices at showings. Commercialism, you know, instead of art.

The fashion business is a little luckier than many others in ability to shift prices. You can always cut out the more extravagant fabrics, eliminate the belt, hold down on styles requiring a lot of expensive extra sewing. After seeing many collections, it's obvious to me that this is happening.



Sweater sets, short shorts and pedal pushers made a comeback for spring in New York at the international collection of Halston. The model at left wears short shorts with jacket top. Centre model wears pants cut off at the knee, much like the pedal pushers of the 1950s, while at right the model has on short shorts with a midi-length vest. (AP Wirephoto)

Christmas Ties Are Even Wilder

Choosing fashion gifts for women has never been much of a problem. As long as you knew your giftee well, there was limitless choice in accessories, fancy robes, jewelry and whatever was the popular fad of the moment, such as the hairpiece this year.

But men? Once you had said ties, cuff links and slippers, that was it. Who wanted to give a guy a white shirt as a Christmas gift? Now all that has changed.

It's been coming on for several years, ever since the sportswear idea began to penetrate general men's fashions, but this year the fashion gift possibilities have really exploded.

Take that shirt and tie business. You bet you can give them as gifts. What with color and patterns in shirts, the new tie widths, and the trend to co-ordinating ties with shirts, you've got a whole new field of possibilities.

Standard accessories have gone non-standard in the same way, almost too much so. Recently, when in London, I tried to buy a standard inch-wide pigskin man's belt. Couldn't find it, or if it was there, I couldn't see it in the raft of fancy belt styles. Even Avenue of London, didn't seem to be carrying anything so mundane as a plain classic belt.

Even a conservative man nowadays is likely to have at least one pair of pants that will take a fancy belt, and he may well enjoy owning one. As for the younger crowd, just be sure your gift is a step beyond what they've already got in belts.

Clothing has also risen in gift possibilities. The vest, for instance, whether in Tattersall check, like an English racetrack bookie's, or as a knit pullover tunic with its own belt offers a big choice right now.

Pants, whether slightly flared or cut straight, have actually taken on fashion, especially if they're in knits, a fast-growing new men's category.

More and more men are wearing separates (used to be called sportswear).

Meaning? The same look women are used to, with the parts of the costume not matching but co-ordinated. This means that jackets can be given, since they can be paired by the man himself with whatever pants he fancies.

One quality firm offers a dress blazer for daily wear. In what? A striped knit which tailors just as well as any woven fabric. In the new fit-and-flare silhouette, it has a two-button closing (gift buttons, of course) and saddle pockets with square, buttoned flaps.

Lapels, of course, are wide, and the whole thing is meant for one of the new, higher-collared shirts with a wide tie in a paisley pattern.

Sell-Out Run On Pantyhose

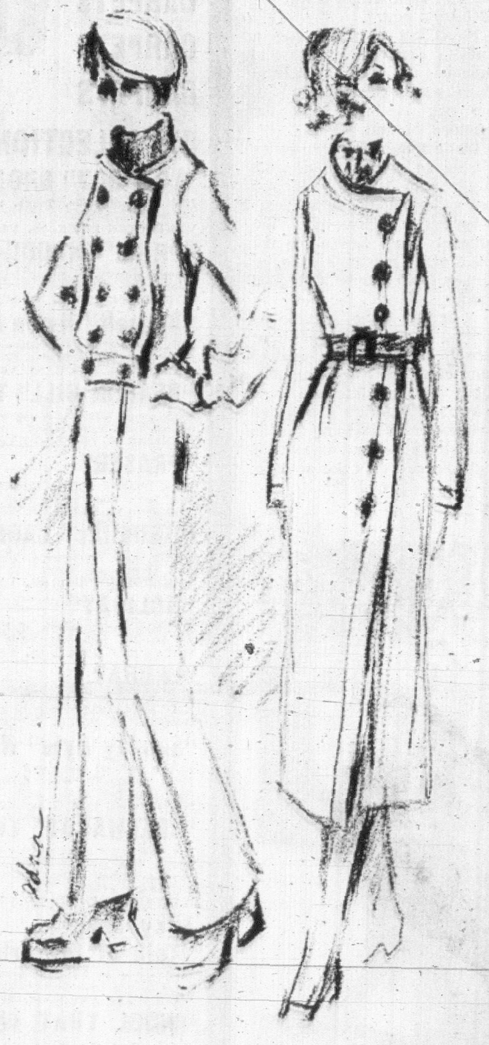
DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit, the self-styled white sock capital of the world, has come up with something new in men's fashion—panty hose.

"A lot of guys have been cold for a long time and not admitted it," said Marion Newmghek, a saleslady for a department store chain which was deseiged with orders before the first supply of 200 pairs reached the shelves last week.

"The men wear them for warmth," she said. "They want something lighter in weight than normal long johns but something that's warm."

The hose are ribbed from the calf down to the toes to resemble regular socks. The first shipment came in black, blue and brown.

"We expect to get some in various shades in the future," Miss Nemchek said, "one guy asked for them in white."



New York's spring slenderizers are seen above in pants and lengthened skirt. Left, red wool poplin pants suit with a slight flare from the knee and waist-length jacket. Right, a midi coat in wool poplin, accents length with a single row of side-placed buttons and welt-seam edges.

Hoover Outlaws Pantsuits

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the state department to the Pentagon, U.S. government girls are forgoing skirts for the comfort, warmth and style of pantsuits.

An exception is the FBI where Director J. Edgar Hoover won't permit them.

"Thank heavens they're here," said Sandy Lee, a secretary at the Interstate Commerce Commission information office. "What a great substitute for the midi."

In many cases, pantsuits have the approval of male bosses.

At the state department pantsuits began appearing on Saturdays about two months ago.

To the women who wear them, pantsuits are almost as much an article of faith as an article of clothing.

"They're comfortable, they're warm and they're stylish," said Tina Schwitzer, who sported a black pantsuit with a checkered jacket in the justice department's information office.

But that's not all.

"All the men in my office can put their feet up on the desk," said Pat Baptiste, a lawyer in the justice department's civil division. "Now I can and I like that."

New York Shows Shortest Shorts

NEW YORK (AP) — The sweater sets, short shorts and pedal pushers of the 1950s made a come back for spring in the international collection of Halston.

Halston opened his show Tuesday with a flowing red wool collared midi length cape over short shorts.

Then, with the exception of a few wrap dresses, he showed an almost entirely separate look of wrap skirts, knickers, midi length vests, pants and shorts.

A standout was emerald green short shorts with matching wrap blouse worn with knee-length boots.

The sweaters were often worn belted and with what he called "figure eight" skirts, which had slits up the front and the back so that one leg was exposed at almost all times.

Victor Joris also showed several short shorts outfits, but he described them as "reminiscent of the tap dance pants worn in the movies."

A covered-up look is in for 1971, says designer Pauline Trigere.

She has topped almost all her spring dresses and pants with jackets, coats, capes, scarves or shawls.

Tatting Trucker Ignores Hecklers

DEEP RIVER, Ont. (CP) — A truck driver who tats in his spare time brings hecklers out of the woodwork, but Charlie Crooks doesn't let it bother him.

Mr. Crooks, 62, looks like everybody's impression of a burly truck driver but tatting as a hobby just doesn't seem to fit.

Tatting was popular in the Victorian era, used to make tablecloths and decorate the edges of pillow slips and antimacassars.

Mr. Crooks learned to tat during a 2½-month stay in hospital for a damaged spine, suffered on naval duty.

He continued it as a hobby after his return to duty and subsequent discharge.

He now drives a truck and even tats during coffee breaks at the office, bringing jokes from fellow workers.

One of Mr. Crook's tablecloths, measuring six by eight feet, took him 10 years, or about 7,000 hours, to complete. A bikini takes about 35 hours, and he makes them to order for $25.

Giving lessons in this craft offers Mr. Crooks another source of income, and he has already received inquiries from several area high schools which might add tatting to their curriculum.

Nutritious Cake Costs Less

By HILDA BEASTALL

A Christmas cake, rich in nutrition but not too rich to be enjoyed can be made at home with a minimum of trouble and expense. It will take some time, but the cost will be less than a bought cake, and you will know exactly what good ingredients are used.

This recipe uses only 3 small eggs and 1 cup of margarine or other vegetable shortening, yet makes two cakes of medium size or one 10-inch tube pan cake.

DARK FRUIT CHRISTMAS CAKE

2 cups seedless raisins
1½ cups currants
1½ cups seeded raisins
1 cup chopped dates
¾ cup chopped broken nuts
2 cups enriched white flour
1 cup mixed whole wheat flour, soya flour and wheat germ
1 tsp. mixed spices
1 tsp. salt
1 cup margarine or vegetable shortening
1 cup (scant) brown sugar
3 small eggs
¼ cup molasses
Juice and rind of 1 lemon
¼ tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. baking powder
Juice and rind of 1 orange
1-3 cup cold coffee or fruit juice

Into one large bowl, measure and mix the fruits and nuts. Sift flours, spices, salt, baking powder and soda together over the fruit mixture so that all the fruit is coated and separated.

In another large bowl (or saucepan) cream together the softened margarine or vegetable shortening and the sugar until light and fluffy. Add the eggs, beating well after each. Stir in molasses.

Add the fruit and flour mixture to the creamed shortening mixture alternately with the liquid coffee or fruit juice. You may need to do half the mixture at a time in each bowl.

Be sure that each bowl finally contains an equally balanced mixture or the cakes will have different textures.

Line the cake tins with heavy waxed paper, for the cakes need slow cooking and must not dry out or burn.

Spoon the batter into the lined pans and bake in a slow oven around 300 for 2 or 2½ hours. Test with clean knife thrust into the centre; cover top loosely with foil to prevent scorching if necessary to bake longer.

Remove from pan to wire rack to cool. I find the waxed paper comes off more readily when cakes are warm. Do it gently to prevent tearing the cake surfaces.

Cool thoroughly (overnight) before wrapping in foil to mellow.

Store in airtight tin as long as possible before icing.

This year I am making the almond paste because we don't enjoy the sharp flavor of the bought product. It can be just a thin layer and will adhere well to the cake surface if a little apricot or peach jam is brushed on first.

ALMOND PASTE:

1 cup light brown sugar
1 cup ground almonds
2 tsp. fresh lemon juice
1 beaten egg.

Blend all together into a smooth firm paste; pat and mould to the cake top. A little more sugar can be added if the egg is large and the mixture too soft.

White Icing: This can be as simple as mixing sifted icing sugar with lemon juice and hot water enough to spread.

Spread quickly over the almond icing. Never ice the sides of a Christmas cake, or you get too much of a good thing.

A darker icing is made by boiling 1 1-3 cups of light brown sugar with a quarter cup water for 1 or 2 minutes. Drop a tiny bit into cold water; if it forms a soft ball remove from heat and beat in the stiffly beaten white of 1 egg. Spread on cake at once.

HOME-MADE CAKE . . . worth the trouble

Planning Can Help

Advance planning for Christmas cake baking includes preparation of fruit the day before.

Slice peels and citron finely, leave softer fruit and nuts in slightly larger pieces, raisins and currants whole.

Dip the chopping knife in hot water if the fruit is too sticky.

An easy way to flour the fruit next day is to toss it in a large plastic bag. This prevents the fine pieces from clumping together.

HOME GARDEN

Delightful Indoor Display

By HILDA BEASTALL

A winter project for Victoria homes having conservatory-type rooms as part of the dwelling is the collecting of plants which will bloom there during the winter when so much entertaining is enjoyed. I have seen these glass-roofed rooms with tiled floors attached to both older-type homes and the strictly modern. In fact with the latter, they form almost an inner court.

Hilda

With controlled temperature, overhead light, and the possibility of creating the necessary humid conditions, such a room can be a fairyland of color and fragrance.

Hardy outdoor shrubs and plants normally blooming in late winter and early spring will be the most attractive to select. They need only the temperature of early spring to bring them into bloom indoors about the end of January.

They will need the high humidity of early spring outdoors. In the tiled and glassed rooms I have seen, this is quite possible.

The owners have said they benefit too from the extra moisture in the air.

Plants for this purpose may be bought now, or they may for a trial season be dug from one's own garden and put into large pots.

A general knowledge of both indoor plant culture and outdoor habits is a necessity for one depends on the other for success in this venture.

Azaleas already in bud, an early-blooming rhododendron with buds, and a small early-flowering camellia would make a start.

Deciduous shrubs could be added for bright color—an early golden forsythia, a fragrant winter viburnum, a clump of lovely winter Iris stylosa with its haunting perfume.

Spring-flowering Clematis montana rubra and the evergreen Clematis armandi (so difficult to flower outdoors in some gardens) would establish in large containers to climb on light framework as backgrounds for the smaller shrubs.

One's imagination runs away with possibilities. Narcissi and hyacinths are seen as contributing their share of color and perfume; and wallflowers, lilacs and yellow jasmine are candidates.

Care in maintaining a temperature not much over 70 deg. F. by day and down to around 55 to 60 at night would be a top necessity.

Success would depend on this maintainance of temperatures, coupled with adequate ventilation without cold draughts, and the control of humidity to the period of highest temperature.

Results—a delightful indoor spring garden in late winter.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

At all levels of play, slips of the tongue, or slips of intention, occur occasionally. Usually they prove costly, for the slip is illogical, since it is not what once logically intended to say. But, sometimes, the slip turns out beautifully.

The latter was the case in today's deal. The hand arose in 1961, in a match held in London between Great Britain and an Italian team. Sitting East was Alan Truscott, currently the Bridge Editor of The New York Times. Ten years ago, he was one of England's internationalists. The official language used in international tournaments, incidentally, is English.

East-West vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
3 ♣	Dbl.	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	5 ♣	Pass	7 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Over his partner's five club bid, the Italian South jumped to six spades — or thought he did! Actually, his limited English had deserted him for the moment, and what came out was seven spades.

West, of course, thought that he was defending against a seven spade contract, and he was appreciative of the fact that the Italian team would not have bid a grand slam unless one of them was void of clubs. So he did not open the ace of clubs, electing instead to make the "safe" lead of the jack of trumps.

Declarer proceeded to cash the ace and king of trumps, then five diamonds (upon which he discarded the deuce of clubs and the five of hearts), and them four more spades. Prior to the lead of South's last trump, this was the position:

When South led his last spade, West was squeezed. If he discarded the club ace, dummy's king would become declarer's 13th trick. If he tossed away the heart nine (as he did), a low heart lead to dummy's ace would fell West's king. The latter did develop, and South's queen of hearts became a winner.

Greg glanced at the slip of paper. "The exact total, eh?" he commented. "Getting on for twelve hundred bucks."

"Exact, even to the 73 cents in the total," replied Harry. "It's lucky we can distribute every cent of it equally to the 29 girls in the office, as promised."

"You're right." Greg had been checking. "And d'you know something? We two could be included, and there'd still be equal shares."

What was the total?

(Answer Monday)

Thursday's answer: BABY was 4649.

Police Court

A 65-year-old man who blinded a University of Victoria student in one eye in a machete attack Sept. 29 was sentenced to three months in prison by Judge William Ostler Thursday in provincial court.

Ostler said Stephen Trach, of 439 Atkins Ave. in Langford, was getting the light sentence despite what the probation report as a "particularly aggaravated and vicious assault" because of his age and poor health.

He said if it were not for the mitigating factors of Trach's age and health there would be a "very lengthy sentence of imprisonment."

Ostler said it was "grossly offensive to the court" that Trach's attitude in the presentence report seemed "to be that he has no chance of receiving a square deal from the court."

It was one thing to say the judge had been wrong, but quite another to say he hadn't been fair, Ostler said.

"I hold toward the accused not the slightest animosity. I never hold any animosity toward any convicted person."

ON PENSION

Court was told Trach could not pay a fine because he was living on a pension of $110 a month, half of which went to pay a first mortgage on six acres of land.

Grace Hudson, of 1217 Newcombe St., told Ostler she had known Trach over 40 years.

"He's been a very sincere and honest person. A very kind person. Certainly not an aggressive one."

The prosecution alleged a previous conviction for common assault.

Glen Barlow, 42, of 4132 Hawkes, was given a suspended sentence and ordered to serve a year's probation when he pleaded guilty to committing a common assault on his stepson by seizing his throat and punching his face.

Fined $250 for impaired driving was Robert Driscoll, 56, 1630 York Place.

John Dyck, 29, of 1400 Camosun, was fined $250 for driving with a blood-alcohol level greater than .08 per cent.

Howard A. Widdifield, 53, of 296 Eltham, was sentenced to 30 days in jail for being in the care and control of a car while impaired.

Scott Walter Fellner, 17, of 2542 Bowker, was fined a total of $300 on three charges involving dangerous driving, being a minor in possession of liquor, and driving with a blood-alcohol level greater than .08 per cent.

Microfilm Computer To Ease Bottleneck

A $50,000 answer to the information bottleneck strangling government, business and industry was demonstrated here Thursday to potential users.

The device, a product of Eastman Kodak, is a marriage of computer technology and microfilm, enabling the easy storage and quick retrieval of readable documents, photographs, graphs, tables or any graphic material.

It was shown at a meeting of western region Kodak representatives in the Red Lion Motor Inn, where business systems markets manager William P. Herzstock, Toronto, was a speaker.

REDUCE AMOUNT

One of those representing his company in the Canadian Micrographic Society, and a member of the U.S.-based National Microfilm Association, Herzstock expressed the philosophy that micrographics will help society reduce the information mountain into a useable molehill.

"In the last five or six years more information has been accumulated than in the previous history of civilization, as near as can be estimated," Herzstock said.

"So far, the computer industry has not been able to cope, the problem being that you can't put pictures and graphics into a computer.

"Microfilm is trying to combine the advantages of miniaturized graphic imagery with mechanical methods of indexing and retrieval, using machine language to classify a document and describe it," Herzstock said.

Referring to the Recordak Lodestar reader-printer shown to provincial government administrators, Herzstock said it was the only random system of its kind and the most costly on the market.

It uses narrow strip film in cassette-like cartridges capable of storing 1,500 individual documents or photos per reel, each of which is about the size of two cigarette packages.

Aerospace industry finds the system useful, as do the major airframe companies, including Boeing at Seattle.

Businessmen Aid Poorer Countries

Pacific Rim businessmen are trying to create opportunity for others via a human resources committee, Rotary Club of Victoria members were told Thursday.

Arnold F. C. Hean, Canadian delegate to the Pacific Basin Economic Co-Operation Council, is head of this committee.

"Our first objective is to train people for middle-management in lesser-developed countries," he said.

Programs are in effect, one of which sees Indonesians being trained in Australia and Japan.

He told Rotarians the Pacific Basin group was founded two years ago, primarily by Japanese and Australian businessmen, to create a "far-seeing multi-national" association to "build up economic opportunity for all Pacific Basin people in the way they want."

Various committees have been established, including an economic one. He said there is a "very serious situation" in Latin American countries where companies are being nationalized.

"If our branches are expropriated it is very difficult to get anyone to invest," he said.

Hean also said "we have no right to impose our way of life and conditions" on others but help them maximize their own opportunities.

He said Canada is becoming increasingly introspective and nationalistic but it was "not too late to plunge in" to the burgeoning Pacific Rim business.

He predicted that when the Viet Nam war is over the dollars which will flow will make the post-war Marshal Plan in Europe look small, presenting unparalleled opportunities for business growth.

MLA Seeks Intervention Into Strike

Oak Bay MLA G. Scott Wallace said this week he would like to see the provincial government intervene in the strike of workers at the Sandringham Private Hospital.

He also said National Nursing Homes Ltd., the company which runs the Sandringham and more than 40 other private hospitals across Canada, has not exhibited enough "social awareness" for the kind of work it is involved in.

It is "tragic such an impasse should be allowed to continue," Wallace said.

"If this situation continues I will be asking the provincial government to take a more active part in bringing about a settlement.

"From inquiries I've made the agreements reached at other hospitals (Richmond Heights, Glenwarren and Glengarry private hospitals) have resulted in more harmonious relations between staff and management."

COOK CONTACTED

While in Vancouver recently, Wallace contacted Neil Cook, president of National Nursing Homes. He said Cook said if he granted the demands of the strikers he would have to close down the Sandringham.

"His explanation to me was very simple: that the finances of the hospital could not stand any increased spending."

Wallace checked at the three other hospitals where workers had received contracts and found them to be "financially stable."

The 28 women went on strike Sept. 30 after their employer refused to bargain with them. They are seeking recognition of their union (Private Hospitals and General Service Employees, affiliated with the Canadian Union of Public Employees), job security and pay increases ranging up to $2 an hour after two years.

MINIMUM WAGE

Most of the women were earning the B.C. minimum wage of $1.50 an hour when they struck.

Wallace said he is aware National Nursing Homes has applied for permission to build an apartment-home for elderly persons in Oak Bay.

"This management agency is not showing the social awareness that should be shown by people operating a place for sick people, and I would say they are not the people who should be running a home for elderly people."

Meanwhile, Wednesday night, the Victoria Labor Council announced it and the B.C. Federation of Labor will rent billboard space to support the Sandringham strikers.

BURST WATER MAIN flooded basement Thursday night at home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spink, 1479 Finlayson, gushing six feet of water under the house. Teen-agers Roger Lessard, 15, and Bill Shearer, 14, who live near by, donned wet suits and recovered 13 trunks full of clothes. Spinks had been packing for a January move to England. Lessard and Shearer found the furnace flooded and the freezer half-floating in the water. Greater Victoria water board crews closed the main by 8 p.m., one hour after break occurred. Water was pumped out of basement, but the Spinks had to move out of their home for the night. (Bill Halkett Photo)

Best Fish Buy in Town Sunday

Fishermen's Wharf on Erie Street will offer one of the biggest bargains in town Sunday.

For $1 providing they bring along a container big enough to hold them, Victorians will be able to buy 18 pounds of herring.

The sale, being organized by members of the Victoria local of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, is one of several arranged on the West Coast.

Proceeds are earmarked for the Children's Christmas Tree Fund, designed to help children of Nova Scotian fishemen, who have just finished a seven-month strike.

On Sunday 45 tons of herring was sold at a similar event in New Westminster. Vancouver will hold another sale Sunday.

Beginning at 8 a.m. Sunday, $1 buckets of herring will also be on sale at Nanaimo's Fishermen's Wharf, below the Bastion.

The union and fishing companies have combined forces to make the sales successful.

Working under frigid conditions, volunteer crews have fished in the seiner Western Mariner, supplied by Nelson Bros. Fishing Co.

Volunteer packers have helped unload from the brine-refrigerated fish packer Western Star and will give their time at the valous sales.

The herring sales have been annual events for several years, with the proceeds always being used for children's charities.

Oil Companies Fall in Line

Major oil companies predictably fell into line with a cent-a-gallon price increase for wholesale gasoline, diesel and heating oils imposed this week by Imperial Oil Ltd.

Gulf, Home and Shell came up with similar raises Thursday, but Texaco, the second to move, refused to go the full cent and limited its adjustment to .7 of a cent.

All companies claim the rise in operating costs is running faster than prices justify.

Shell's increase was effective today.

Harrowing Sea Experience Changes His Outlook

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What happens to an artist's work after he has gone through a harrowing experience of starvation at sea?

"My painting has changed; it has developed into a different style," says Julian Ritter, the 61-year-old artist-skipper who was rescued near Hawaii Sept. 14 with two companions. They had spent 49 days without food in his 45-foot yawl.

"I am still painting the same things—clowns, nudes, figures mostly. But something new has been added: an emotional expression that wasn't there before."

"I don't quite know how to express what's changed, but it's there—I can see it."

When he and his crew were rescued, Ritter had dropped from his normal 165 pounds to 110. He now is back to 148 and fighting a craving for sweets. He has resumed his painting and is working on a book about his adventure.

He had left Bora Bora on June 17 with Lauren Kokx, a 22-year-old student from Ojai, Calif., and Winfriend Heiringoff, 28, from West Germany. A veteran voyager, Ritter had checked over his boat, the Galilee, with customary care, but he admits that a series of omens seemed to presage the coming disaster.

Everything wrong that could possibly happen, happened. The motor conked out. A starter coil went awry. The motor wouldn't crank. The generator and oil pump wouldn't work. The battery ran down. The sextant proved faulty. Worst of all, water leaked under the deck and spoiled most of the food supply.

"I threw it overboard," Ritter recalled. "I would rather starve than be poisoned."

The trio used their wiles to survive. They tried to hook fish, without much success. They took sunbaths to improve their vitamin content. They tried exotic dishes, like mint toothpaste mixed with coffee beans. Their mainstay was algae, scooped painfully from the sea, a handful an hour. That was made into soup, with spices and sunbleached oil for flavor.

Finally, 87 days from Bora Bora, the Galilee was sighted by the U.S.S. Niagara Falls.

What Ritter wants to do now is to make some money so he can "hibernate myself from the insanities of so-called civilization." Does that mean a return to the sea? "Certainly."

IT'S A BABY GIRL FOR CAPT. STRUCK

McCHORD AFB, Wash. (UPI) — Unwed air force Capt. Susan Struck gave birth to a six-pound girl Thursday evening at nearby Madigan general hospital.

The air force had tried in vain to discharge the 26-year-old nurse under a regulation which forbids a "female officer who is pregnant or gives birth" to continue serving in the military.

Capt. Struck contends this regulation is unconstitutional.

Her case is before the ninth U.S. Court of Appeal in San Francisco.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BUNKER—In loving memory of our dear Mother and Grandmother, Ellen Bunker, who was taken from us suddenly on December 4, 1962.

Without a farewell she was taken away;
In our hearts we miss her dearly
Vision her often, ever so clearly
And while she rests in peaceful sleep
In memory she's always near.
Sadly missed by her daughters Flo, Betty, sons-in-law and grandchildren.

HELLIER—In loving memory of a dear Husband and Father, Alban Hellier who passed away December 4, 1967.

Nothing can ever take away
The love our hearts hold dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
Remembered always. Wife Edith and Family Grandchildren.

PETERS — In loving memory of Keith Peters, who passed away Dec. 4, 1966.

What would we give if we could say, Our SON is coming home today;
To hear his voice to see him smile, to sit and talk with him awhile, to be together in the same old way, would be our greatest wish today.
Dear Lord forgive a silent tear, a constant wish that he were here.
Others are taken, Yes, we know,
But he was mine and I loved
Him so.
Sadly missed by mother, father, brothers and sisters.

TO ROME WITH LOVE. 6 p.m., Channel 2. Endicott's romance with a lovely stewardess sparks a family crisis . . . Penny and Pokey are about to run away forever, in the hope that dad will then feel free to marry the pretty interloper.

THE INTERNS. 7:30 p.m., Channel 7. Mike Farrell as Dr. Sam Marsh gets the leading role again, but not the lion's share of the acting. Tonight he's the victim. He's been stricken with a form of bubonic plague, which, allowed to go unchecked, could cause a disastrous epidemic. The doctors are concerned with his life, but even more concerned with how he contracted the disease, for they must stop it there if they are to halt the potential tragedy.

RUDOLPH THE RED-NOSED REINDEER. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5 (repeat). Here's another appealing seasonal treat for the youngsters, with Burl Ives narrating the multiple adventures of the shy little buck on his way to making holiday history. Jokes about his shiny nose lead Rudolph to leave Santa's team, along with another castoff, Hermy the Elf. Among their trials are the run-in with the Abominable Snow monster, who they manage to conquer before returning to Santa and saving Christmas Eve by guiding his sleigh through the terrible blizzard.

THE NAME OF THE GAME. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. "Why I Blew Up Dakota." Overly extravagant acting is called for in this script, and you'll get that in ton-size doses. Jose Ferrer and Roddy McDowall provide the exuberant antics, Ferrar as a headline-hunting attorney and McDowall his hippie client, accused of a bombing that killed a mod artist. Series star Robert Stack gets involved when he feels the attorney's far-out pretrial exploits are endangering the possibilities of a fair trial, whether the client is guilty or not.

THE FRIDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channel 7 "Peyton Place" (repeat) (part two) (1957) The concluding segment in this two-part repeat presentation of the Grace Metalious adaptation stars Lana Turner and Arthur Kennedy, with Hope Lange, Lloyd Nolan, David Nelson, Diane Varsi, Lee Phillips, Russ Tamblyn, Terry Moore and Lorne Greene.

LOVE, AMERICAN STYLE. 9:30 p.m., Channel 4. "Love and the Intruder" is one of the more imaginative of this series. Imagine a burglar (John Astin) clumsy enough to arouse the lady of the house who in turn rouses her husband. When the lights go on the burglar discovers he's invaded the bedroom of his ex-wife. "Love and the Lost Dog" has Irene Ryan displaying a cunning mentality. She's looking for a man and finds one by advertising for a lost dog which she never owned.

BRACKEN'S WORLD 10 p.m., Channel 5. "A Score Without Strings" This is a love story, albeit one with few compensations. Jim McMullen guests as a talented young composer who wants to leave Century Studios just when an important score is needed. His new romance with Paulette (Linda Harrison) keeps him there for a while, but when further complications arise and he again decides to leave, Bracken enters with an ultimatum that precludes the sentiments of a romantic interlude.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Some people, especially in the winter, are much troubled by cold sores on their lips. We doctors call the trouble herpes simplex — herpes referring to blisters, and simplex meaning simple. The blisters are due to a virus. We have known for many years about the viral cause, but we still do not have any really satisfactory method of treating our patients who get many cold sores each year.

As long ago as 1914, a physician transferred a herpes infection from the cornea (clear front window of the eye) of a patient to the cornea of a rabbit, and then from the rabbit to the cornea of a blind man, thereby showing definitely that the disease is an infection that can go from one patient to another.

Cold sores are the most common type of distress from the herpes simplex virus. The largest and most distressing of such lip ulcers that I have ever seen, I saw during my mountain climbing days; they came on the lips of climbers who for a day had been exposed to the powerful sun rays that are reflected off a white glacier. It is probable that many people carry always in their mouths the herpes virus, but it does not bother them unless their lips are exposed to unusual conditions such as the distress of brilliant sunlight.

Fortunately, the disease is self-limited, which means that it tends to clear away in a week or two by itself. This is fortunate, because as I said earlier, even though we know the cause, we have not found a really effective treatment.

A more serious form of the disease comes if the herpes virus attacks the corneas of the eyes and causes little blisters to form there. This can be extremely painful, and the person should go to an eye specialist and have him try to clear it up. Generally, the patient is given eye drops and wears dark glasses for awhile until the trouble clears up.

The disease is also more serious when the little blisters go all around the inside of the mouth. The blisters can be accompanied by a high fever. In infants the most severe forms of the disease can cause death.

Usually, however, herpes simplex comes in the form of a cold sore, and is mainly a nuisance and an embarrassment, especially to a woman who is much concerned about her appearance. It goes away without treatment. The doctor may prescribe a mouthwash with Pontocaine or Zephiran, or he may gives gamma globulin.

Actually, the virus of herpes simplex does not seem to be terribly contagious, or to spread from one area of the body to another. Some doctors give small-pox vaccine to their herpes simplex patients, and in some cases, this seems to work well. All doctors are not agreed on this method, however, and not everyone gets good results with the vaccine.

Low-Rent Project To Start

Work is slated to begin in January on the first stage of a low-rental housing project planned by the Bishop Cridge Centre for the Family.

Charles Ellington, president of the centre's board, said Thursday that specifications and plans for the first 29 units of a projected 110-unit complex are out for tender. Tenders will be opened Dec. 18.

The go-ahead was given Tuesday when federal Housing Minister Robert Andras announced in Ottawa that the centre will receive a federal loan of $378,200.

Ellington says the rest of the costs will be borne by the centre. The amount will not be known until the bids are in.

Ellington is hoping that a 100-year record will be broken and that the project will receive some financial assistance from either the provincial or municipal governments.

The centre, which changed its name from the B.C. Protestant Orphanage in 1969, has never previously received financial help from either government.

"There was one exception to this when for a while the city gave us a grant in lieu of taxes. But that was at least 15 years ago and now we pay around $6,000 a year."

Ellington added that he considered the tax "unfair" and was hoping that the city would give an exemption for the centre's 12-acre site at the corner of Cook and Hillside.

GROUP HOMES

Twenty-six of the 29 units to be built will probably be all occupied by single-family parents while the remaining units will be group homes, each accommodating six to eight children.

Ellington says that rents will not be as low as Victoria's public housing project because the centre will retain ownership of the land and buildings. He expects the rents to range from $103 to $158.

He says the complex will offer a variety of services: day-care facilities for preschool children, counselling services and recreational facilities for all residents.

Ellington says the facilities are designed to encourage mothers to retrain under Manpower and go to work.

RETRAIN

Ellington says the 29 units are "a small start" on a large project on which the centre has spent a great deal of time, resources and preliminary work.

"It's been a long struggle and it happens that our plans were completed in 1970 when we are hit with a depression."

The centre now takes care of 19 children in residence and 28 children who attend daily.

Ellington is hopeful the provincial government will assist the new project and says that the centre hopes to sell residential care to the government to fill the homes.

"We have some children at the home who are under the umbrella of welfare. If we sell care we don't have to collect from parents—some of them dump their children and take off. We never hear from them again."

Second Major Jolt to Hit Boeing Plants in Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — The Boeing Co., staggered earlier this year when it failed to get a big government contract it said it needed badly, is reeling again from the Senate's rejection of supersonic transport financing.

So is the Puget Sound area's economy, where unemployment already is about 12 per cent.

King County executive John Spellman, whose county includes Seattle, said the decision "has a dramatically bad impact on our local economy at a time when we really can't afford this type of setback."

Bill Lotto of the Seattle Area Industrial Council, said the city "will just have more of what we've been having."

Boeing said in a formal statement it is "deeply concerned" and is looking to a House-Senate conference committee in hope the $290 million appropriation will be reinstated. The House of Representatives had approved the appropriation earlier.

Otherwise, Boeing said, "until the final vote is taken and the situation is clarified, it is neither possible nor proper for Boeing to comment."

The firm was hurt last June when the federal government awarded B—1 advanced manned bomber development, a multi-billion-dollar project, to North American Rockwell.

Boeing's Seattle-area work force nose-dived to 48,200 as of the end of October, the latest available count, from a mid-1968 peak of about 101,500. It had said earlier about 3,000 more would be lopped off by year's end.

H. W. Withington, Boeing's director of SST development, said Thursday total rejection of the program could cost the area about 4,800 Boeing jobs.

COMPROMISE MAY SAVE SST

WASHINGTON (AP) — More concerned with the environment than appeals to technological progress, the Senate has dealt a stunning and perhaps fatal setback to the supersonic transport, the plane President Nixon wants as a flagship of the U.S. global jet fleet.

Backers of the SST project, trying to rally from the shock of Thursday's 52-to-41 vote to kill $290 million in federal SST subsidy money, said they would try to salvage at least part of the program.

It was a personal victory for Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.), who fought to stop the project he has called an environmental monster, an economic ship of fools, and a flying white elephant.

And it was a personal defeat for the president who hacked a program he called essential to the future of the U.S. aviation industry.

The loss was particularly bitter for two powerful Democratic senators — Warren Magnuson and Henry Jackson—whose home state of Washington is the headquarters of the depressed Boeing aircraft company, prime SST contractor.

Concorde Test Flights Go Well; Few Complaints

By RODNEY PINDER

LONDON (AP) — Test flights on the British-French supersonic airliner have gone well, and protests about its sonic boom have been less than expected. Its big hurdle comes in the spring, when the British and French governments decide whether to go into full production.

Supporters of the Concorde project expect the U.S. Senate's refusal to approve further government spending on an American supersonic transport to open up huge new markets to the 1,450 mile-an-hour Concorde, which the British and the French have been working on jointly since 1962.

Airlines that hesitated to order Concordes until they saw what the United States had to offer may now decide they can wait no longer for a plane that now looks as though it may never get off of the drawing boards.

The only other country in the SST competition is the Soviet Union, whose supersonic Tupolev is shrouded in secrecy but is believed to be well ahead of the Concorde in development.

Alexander Kobzarev, the Soviet Union's deputy minister of aviation, said May 21 that series production on the TU-144 had started and that foreign orders for the 121-seat plane would be accepted in 1971. The 130-passenger Concorde is not scheduled to go into service until 1974.

When the second prototype of the Concorde went supersonic down "boom alley" on Britain's west coast, nearly 200 damage claims were filed with the government. But the protests were less vociferous than the government expected.

'Like Being Out of Hell'

Times News Services

MONTREAL — British diplomat James Cross stepped into the light of freedom Thursday for the first time in two months and said:

"It's almost like being out of hell—perhaps purgatory would be a better expression."

His freedom came when his terrorist kidnappers accepted a government offer of safe conduct and fled to exile in Cuba.

His captors and several members of their families left Montreal about 4:47 p.m. (PST) bound for their Caribbean sanctuary aboard a Canadian Forces Yukon transport plane.

Cross was apparently in good physical and mental shape after his 60-day ordeal, but was taken early today to Jewish General Hospital.

He suffers from a blood-pressure ailment but apparently had medication for the condition during his captivity.

In Ottawa it was announced that Cross will be flown to London Saturday where he will rejoin his wife.

Cross said Thursday was "one of the happiest days of my life."

Referring to his sunless eight weeks, Cross said: "It's a small thing and suddenly you come out of a house and it's a bright day like today and you suddenly realize how much a little thing like that, that costs you nothing, means in one's day-to-day life."

He described his situation in captivity as "a state of suspended animation" and said he thought he had seen more than 160 films on television.

"They were French films so that I'm probably the leading expert of the past 30 years," he joked.

But he introduced a more sombre note as he said he did not know his future plans.

"It may be difficult for me to return to Montreal," he said.

"I've enjoyed enormously my three years here and it's a bit sad that we ended up on this note."

The diplomat's release brought a happy ending to a drama in which troops stood guard with automatic weapons in Quebec province and Ottawa and police powers were beefed up with special powers of arrest and detention under the War Measures Act.

The happy fate of Cross, North America's first victim of political kidnapping, contrasted starkly with the fate of Pierre Laporte, former

Duplex Eyed Over 2 Weeks

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Police suspected for 2½ weeks that the Montreal North duplex was the FLQ prison of James Cross, says Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette.

"But they were not really sure until Wednesday night," he told a news conference.

The stakes were too high—Mr. Cross' life—to move in earlier.

As it turned out, the three persons holding the 49-year-old envoy got wind of the police presence and threatened to kill him if any attempts were made to rescue him.

THROW OUT NOTE

After police had encircled the house—sealed off now for an indefinite period—and were ready to move in Thursday morning, someone threw out a lead pipe containing a toughly-worded message which read:

"If you try anything gas, guns, etc. Mr. J. Cross will be the first to die. We have several sticks of dynamite with detonators."

Mr. Choquette confirmed police fears about the danger involved in any premature action, saying they had to "pay attention" to Mr. Cross' life.

"The threat of an explosion was a real threat."

With the house "completely cornered" by several hundred police and soldiers, Mr. Choquette said, the three men holding Mr. Cross had to negotiate their way out.

What would have happened if the trio had refused to negotiate?

ASK FOR NEGOTIATOR

"I can't see many avenues," Mr. Choquette said. "I can see a siege, a long drawn-pout siege, or other police actions. But the problem never arose."

MRS. CROSS ELATED

The note asked that a reporter from Le Devoir, the weekly Quebec-Presse or lawyer Bernard Mergler, who has often represented accused terrorists, enter negotiations.

Mr. Mergler was selected and an agreement was reached about 1 p.m., with a total of seven persons getting safe passage to Cuba in exchange for Mr. Cross, Mr. Choquette said.

Robert Demers acted as negotiator for the Quebec and federal governments.

Mr. Choquette said it was even a tight-rope situation in getting the entire group to the Canadian pavilion on the former site of Expo '67, where Mr. Cross was to be released on temporary Cuban soil and the seven would be

CROSS GAVE CLUE IN LETTER

TORONTO (UPI) — British diplomat James Cross may have helped police discover the Montreal northend hideout where he was kept hostage for 60 days by the Front de Liberation du Quebec, the Toronto Star said today.

In a letter written early in his captivity, and released by the FLQ, Cross wrote the date and time—9:45 a.m.—at the top of the paper.

Then he underlined the numeral "one" at the beginning of the first paragraph, the newspaper said. In military terms, 9:45 a.m. is written 0945.

"Add the 'one' from the first paragraph and you have 10945, the precise address on Avenue des Recollets," the street which the house that contained Cross and his abductors is located.

Portuguese Led Invasion

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — A United Nations special mission to Guinea reported unanimously today that the invasion of Guinea last month was carried out by Portuguese armed forces in conjunction with Guinean dissidents.

The five-member mission, which visited Guinea last week, said it believes ships used to transfer the invaders to Guinean waters were manned by predominantly white Portuguese troops and commanded by white Portuguese officers.

Dublin Invokes Act: Conspiracy Feared

DUBLIN (AP) — The Irish Republican government tonight assumed sweeping powers to intern any citizen because of what it called "a secret armed conspiracy" against the state.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch said in a statement that Ireland's police forces had uncovered a plot to kidnap prominent personalities, carry out raids on banks and even attempt murder of leading officials.

He said he was taking Ireland out of the European Human Rights Convention in order to intern suspected citizens without trial.

The government views the situation "with deep gravity," the prime minister added, especially since the police information "has been carefully checked."

The last year has seen a big jump in the activities of the banned Irish Republican Army and especially of a militant splinter group called Saor Eire (Free Ireland).

OPPOSE DIVISION

The militiants are dedicated to uniting all Ireland, the independent republic in the south and Northern Ireland, by force if necessary. They are violently opposed to Lynch's policy of attempting ot achieve unity through persuasion.

Tonight's announcement was seen in political circles as a move by the administration to snuff out the threatened conspiracy before it could flare up.

USC Provides Them With Gift of Life

As Christmas approaches for Canadians, thoughts turn to scenes of gifts laid out under a decorated tree, fun times with friends and relatives and of course a traditional Christmas dinner, complete with turkey, potatoes and plum puddings.

For the children of Asia no such pleasant scene exists. No puddings, no gifts, no tree. Only the day-to-day search for the source of their next meal.

For many Asian children that source is the Unitarian Service Committee, a private charitable organization which for 25 years has been supplying food, clothing and educational services to needy people around the world.

The USC needs donations however to be able to provide these services and this year, for the 18th consecutive year, the Victoria Daily Times is sponsoring the USC's Children of Asia Fund.

Donations to the fund may be mailed or delivered personally to the Times, 2631 Douglas.

Charges Hang Over Them

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials of the justice department said today that if the kidnappers of James Cross return to Canada at any time, they must face criminal charges.

Don Christie, assistant deputy attorney-general, said an obvious charge against some of those flown to Cuba Thursday is one of kidnapping.

"Because it is an indictable offence and carries a sentence of jail for life, the statute of limitations does not apply in their case," Christie said.

"If they want to come back at any time, they would do so at their own risk," said Christie.

Jacques Lanctot, 25, and Marc Carbonneau, 37, among the seven flown to Cuba in return for the release of Cross, are said to be subject to kidnap charges.

Also on the plane is Perre Seguin, the third man in the north-end Montreal apartment in which the British trade envoy was being held.

No warrants were out for Seguin but informed sources here said he was fingerprinted before departure.

Sources said the government won't seek extradition of the men, though the possibility technically may exist.

Budget Hit By Bennett

Loan Plan Favors Quebec

Premier Bennett reacted angrily today to the federal budget speech given by Finance Minister Benson Thursday night.

"The federal government is a government for Quebec . . . just a regional, one-province government," Bennett said, commenting on a new loan plan that permits Quebec to borrow $68 million, British Columbia $35 million and Ontario $17 million.

The loans are to provide provincial and municipal works projects to combat unemployment.

The program was proposed by Quebec, which gets the lion's share of the money. B.C. and Ontario are the only two other provinces to be eligible for more than $10 million.

Newfoundland may borrow up to $5 million, Prince Edward Island $1 million, Nova Scotia $4 million, New Brunswick $4 million, Manitoba $8 million, Saskatchewan

LITTLE FOR ALBERTA IN BUDGET—STROM

Alberta Premier Harry Strom today criticized Finance Minister Benson's mini-budget saying it gives little to the prairie provinces but a lot to Quebec.

Strom joins others who believe there is little or nothing offered to spur the economy. See Page 8.

Locally, both business and labor leaders are cool to the budget proposals. See story on Page 2.

Make-Work Plan Pushed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has chosen make-work projects rather than personal tax cuts to pump new life into the Canadian economy in the next year.

In his Thursday night budget, Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced a string of measures designed to funnel more money into public and private projects in an effort to stimulate the economy and reduce unemployment.

UIC Benefits Increased 10%

His announcements included:

—A 10-per-cent increase in unemployment insurance benefits starting Jan. 3.

—A new loan fund of $150 million to help finance provincial public works projects.

—An incentive plan to save business about $25 million next year and encourage plant construction and expansion.

—Additional spending of $23 million on federal job-creating projects, $20 million for roads and services for the new Montreal airport and $40 million for Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. to encourage home construction.

—Extension of government programs aimed at assisting industry in certain slow-growth areas where unemployment is highest.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield immediately termed it a budget of "groans, bones and loans."

NDP Calls Hike Ridiculous

Mr. Stanfield said the only bright note was the increase in unemployment insurance benefits and Mr. Lewis called it ridiculous since the increase was so small.

The loan fund to encourage new works in the provinces is to be allocated on a formula tied to the unemployment rate, thus putting the majority of the new jobs where they are most needed. It could lead to creation of 15,000 to 25,000 year-long jobs.

The budget was the second this year. The first, last March, came when inflation was the main concern and Mr. Benson said Thursday that this danger has not passed.

The increase in unemployment insurance benefits will run until the end of June, when a revised, higher scale of payments becomes effective.

Pump Money in Job-Scarce Areas

The interim increase, the first since June, 1968, will provide an extra $20 monthly to unemployed workers whose earnings while they worked were $90 a week or more. About half of those now unemployed fall within this range.

The program of loans and grants for public works projects by federal, provincial and municipal governments pumps an extra $200 million or so into regions where jobs are scarce. About half goes to Quebec.

The major scheme is the $151 million loan fund from which the provinces can borrow at low interest for long terms. Tied to a regional unemployment formula, it provides amounts ranging from $68 million for Quebec and $35 million for British Columbia to $1 million for Prince Edward Island.

An earlier program de-

Fuel Truck Overturns In Ditch

A truck loaded with 15 tons of furnace oil crashed into a ditch and overturned in the 6500 block Wallace early Thursday knocking out power in the area for three hours.

Driver Charles E. Robinson of 9522 Lochside, Sidney, escaped injury.

The truck was making home deliveries for Shade Bros. of Sidney when the accident occurred on Wallace between West Saanich and Stelly's Cross road.

Police said the truck hit some ice, sending the vehicle into the six-foot deep ditch.

Quebec labor minister kidnapped Oct. 10 — five days after Cross — and strangled one week later.

Flown from Montreal to sanctuary in Cuba, meanwhile, are kidnap suspects Jacques Lanctot's brother-in-law Jacques Dosette Trudel and Pierre Seguin, previously unknown to police. With them are Lanctot's wife and child and Trudel's wife.

A little more than an hour after Cross arrived at the Jewish General Hospital, two doctors reported he was in good physical and mental condition although he suffered from minor vitamin deficiencies which could be easily corrected.

Dr. David Costom, his personal physician, and Dr. Leonard Brandt, chief of the hospital's department of medicine, said after a brief checkup that Cross had lost 22 pounds while held in captivity by the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

The weight loss might have been due to a starch diet during captivity since Cross was kidnapped Oct. 5, the doctors said.

The senior British trade commissioner in Montreal had been reported to suffer from high blood pressure but the doctors' report said this ailment had not been affected by his ordeal.

The doctors said they expected Cross to remain at the hospital "for at least a day" and a more thorough examination would be made later today.

Cross remained in custody of Cuban officials Thursday night under an agreement between his kidnappers and the Quebec and Canadian governments. He was released about 11 p.m. (PST) after Cuban officials received word from Havana that the kidnap suspects had arrived.

signed to cool off commercial building in fast-growing areas will be allowed to lapse on schedule in the coming year.

In a new move to encourage spending on expansion or construction of plant facilities, manufacturing and processing companies will be allowed to claim depreciation on 15 per cent more than their actual cost of machinery, equipment and buildings between now and April 1, 1972.

Mr. Benson said this would save these companies about $25 million a year in taxes. Such costs are written off over different periods but one estimate is that the move could cut business taxes by $225 million over the full depreciation period.

He rejected tax cuts as the most effective way of stimulating the economy.

The general tone of the budget, Mr. Benson said, is to get more growth and more jobs without causing renewed inflation.

The government's program of grants and loans to encourage more industry in slow-growth areas is being extended to include Montreal, Hull, Que., all the southwestern part of Quebec province and the counties of Stormont, Glengarry and Prescott in eastern Ontario.

The government also will guarantee loans for business expansions in the Atlantic provinces, Quebec and previously-designated areas in Ontario and Western Canada. The details will be included in detail in legislation to be introduced Monday.

The budget was a sharp swing towards deficit and, together with heavy dependence on new government lending, means the government must raise more cash through borrowings.

From a 1969-70 surplus of $375 million for the fiscal year ended March 31, the government's budget went to an expected deficit of $320 million for the current fiscal year.

If carried forward without change into the 1971-72 fiscal year, the new budget could result in a deficit then of $570 million.

But Mr. Benson warned that he will keep the economy under steady review and introduce further budgets any time necessary.

taken to Montreal International Airport.

"I don't think that they (those found with Mr. Cross) were armed" when they reached the Canadian pavilion. "But I am told there was dynamite in the back of the car."

ESCORTED BY POLICE

"The car, an old, beat-up Chrysler, was driven under heavy police escort by Marc Carbonneau, wanted in the kidnapping Oct. 5 of Mr. Cross and the Oct. 10 abduction of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's labor minister slain Oct. 17.

Mr. Choquette said, however, that despite the warrant for Carbonneau, a 37-year-old former taxi driver, he was not involved in the Laporte case.

Otherwise, he would never have been allowed safe passage to Cuba, since people wanted in the Laporte case are not included in the exchange offers from Quebec and Ottawa.

Mr. Choquette said Carbonneau's "main activity" was connected to the Cross abduction.

With Carbonneau on the flight to Cuba were Jacques Lanctot, his wife and child, Lanctot's brother-in-law Jacques Cosette Trudel, his wife and Pierre Seguin, an unknown.

Mr. Cross, according to Premier Robert Bourassa spent most of his 60 days of captivity in a small, windowless room.

CONDITION GOOD

As Mr. Choquette put it:

"I can assure everyone ... that Mr. Cross seemed in excellent physical and mental condition."

In a brief chat with Mr. Cross, Mr. Choquette found him to be stoic and courageous, accepting his lot, "but he was a man who had lost two months of his life."

Mr. Cross had suffered physically to some extent "because a man who was held in detention for two months was bound to have some marks."

Mr. Cross also talked to his wife Barbara, staying with friends in Switzerland, to Prime Minister Edward Heath of England and to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Meanwhile, there was still the search for the kidnappers and murderers of Mr. Laporte, strangled with a chain around his neck that held a religious medal.

"We will pursue to the end the murderers of Mr. Laporte," Mr. Choquette said. He called Mr. Laporte "a valiant Quebecer."

Wanted in the Laporte case are brothers Jacques and Paul Rose and Francis Simard.

. . . BENNETT

$5 million and Alberta $4 million.

The Northwest Territories and the Yukon apparently will not be given an opportunity to share in this loan program.

NO RATE

Benson tagged it as a low-interest loan fund but gave no indication of what the interest and repayment rates would be. No mention was made of the possibility of a forgiveness clause.

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi today termed the offer of a $35 million federal loan "a joke."

He said the interest rate charged will be that paid by the province on their borrowings from the Canada Pension Fund which in December was 7.91 per cent.

"It's absolutely ludicrous," he said. "We can borrow our own money at eight per cent."

The loan fund was the major part of a $211 million program to combat unemployment.

Additionally, Quebec is to receive an outright grant of $20 million for access roads and other municipal services for a new airport at Ste. Scholastique, near Montreal.

A further $40 million was earmarked for federal house-building loans through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

"What budget?" was Bennett's first comment on the subject, but he added:

"What I noticed is that if he hadn't brought down his budge all the working people in Canada would be better off by three per cent."

The budget extended the three per cent surtax on income for another year and made available $151 million public works loan fund to the provinces.

"I don't know what it's all about," Bennett said of the loan fund. "We don't want to borrow any money from Ottawa."

LOW - COST MONEY

He added that if Ottawa would make some "low-cost money" available to municipalities, it would be fine with B.C.

At this point Bennett snapped:

"We no longer have national government. It's a government for Quebec, a regional one-province government."

Asked by a reporter whether he felt there should have been some new incentiv dovelopment areas for parts of B.C., Bennett replied: "I'm glad to see (you) agree there is nothing in the budget for B.C."

Business, Labor Cool To Pre-Yule Budget

Finance Minister Edgar Benson's pre-Christmas budget did not go far enough, business and labor spokesmen said today.

The amount of a special low-interest loan to B.C. for antirecession capital projects ($35 million out of a total $151 million) reflects the high level of unemployment here, said David Fraser, vice-president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and manager of Canadian Industries Ltd.

"The increased unemployment insurance is a step in the right direction for those areas where unemployment is high," Fraser said.

"But a lot of people are going to be disappointed the three per cent income surtax was not removed."

John Schibli, president of the Carpenters' Union and secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, said the special fund could alleviate some local unemployment.

"I believe a number of projects in mothballs are ready to go, such as hospitals and recreation wings on schools."

Schibli said Island tradesmen, who number around 6,000, have an unemployment rate of 10 per cent, with carpenters and laborers about 20 per cent unemployed.

Boilermakers business agent Neil Hindle said a start could be made on construction of a sister ship to the Queen of Prince Rupert.

"According to the minister, (Benson), the provinces suggested this fund, and I hope they unveil their plans," Hindle said.

"I can see what they're doing: they're trying to spur the economy without heating it up too much.

"But what we need is jobs — jobs are the only answer. It's no fun facing unemployed people every day."

New Democratic Party leader Tommy Douglas, speaking in Ladysmith, described the mini-budget as a "dismal flop".

He said industrial incentives were provided for northern Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces, but none for British Columbia which has one of the highest unemployment rates.

Bert Kennedy, manager of Richardson Securities Ltd., said:

"It's really a non-budget. I think it helped the building and steel stocks a bit," but had little other affect on the market.

Tree Cutting Condemned

Ald. Tom Christie said today Victoria Press Ltd. should have found a way to preserve a row of chestnut trees that were cut down this week to make way for a new building.

The trees on the old North Ward school property adjacent to the Victoria Press building were probably 100 years old, Christie said, and can't be replaced.

Victoria Press assistant general manager Hector Alexander said "we looked at every possibility and there was just no way to leave them. You just can't put up a new building when there are trees on the site."

New trees will be planted after completion of the building, he said.

Christie called the tree-cutting an "atrocious violation of good corporate citizenship," especially when it was done by a company which had criticized city hall for allowing other trees to be cut down for purposes of construction.

"All I can say is that it's pretty short-sighted of the newspaper to destroy these trees," Christie said.

Unemployment Rate High Among U.S. Executives

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The rising unemployment rate among American executives is being reflected by membership in the Forty Plus Club of New York, where men who not long ago made between $15,000 and $100,000 a year help each other find work.

"They've been pouring in here recently," said one member, a commuter from Westchester County who has a big housing bill to meet and six youngsters under 10 to support. Median age is 53, median income about $25,000.

Membership now is up to 180, compared with 90 a year ago, and rising applications indicate that eight to 10 will be added to the rolls each week for at least the remainder of the year.

Activity also is picking up in some of the other Forty Plus clubs in Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati, Denver, Los Angeles and San Francisco-Oakland.

DRAB OFFICE

In Manhattan, each member must make a $100 contribution if he is accepted and then work 2½ days a week in the club's drab office, where coats are hung together on a long rack and attache cases are lined against the wall.

Not one of the club members has a steady, income-producing job, but there isn't a loafer among them. The typewriters and telephones are busier than in most offices as members rewrite resumes and process job opportunities.

When a member finds a job, and thereby evicts himself, a big brass bell is struck and those not yet so fortunate send up a cheer. One man made it in 18 minutes; most wait months. The average of "outgoings" is six to eight a week.

Times are poor in American job markets today, especially when a man reaches 40 and suddenly must seek employment for the first time. The executive veneer sometimes cracks, and most members concede they are bewildered and lonely.

Nearly 50 per cent have never been out of work before and many never thought they would be. They are shocked not only at losing income, but group life and health insurance, pensions, stock options and other fringe benefits.

Many of these men believed they had arrived, and most lived in a style that befitted their image of what an executive should be. Many are pillars of their communities.

Some now must withdraw their children from private schools. Often the wife has to go out to work. Forced sales of homes, though not common, do occur as members seek to raise survival money.

160 Hondas Fall Victim To Shredder

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A gigantic metal shredder completed Thursday the destruction of 160 never-sold Honda compact cars.

The Japanese-made cars were sold for $9 each to Schitzer Steel Products Co. which started shredding the cars Wednesday.

The 1968 automobiles have been stored for two years on Swan Island in Portland after they were shipped before Honda automobile dealerships were firmly established in the United States, said John A. Morris, regional parts manager for American Honda Motor Co., Ltd.

Morris said the cars — which have no mileage on them — did not have adequate heating and defrosting units.

In Los Angeles, Jim Murray of the firm's auto sales department, said "It is untrue that there were defrost and heater defects . . . we elected to scrap them because they were heavily used autos. They had considerable mileage on them from tests under different extreme weather conditions."

However, employees of the Schnitzer firm, reporters and a Honda representative overseeing the shredding operation said the cars had never been driven.

The Honda representative said he was there to make sure the entire automobile — including tires and accessories — was destroyed.

The Honda representative at the Schnitzer steel yard said his understanding was that the firm did not have parts in the U.S. for the 1968 model because extensive changes have been made in the car.

Murray agreed, saying "we are selling an entirely different model now and parts are not available for the obsolete cars."

10 Developing Nations Invited To Conference

Ten developing nations are invited to send representatives to the fourth general meeting of the Pacific Basin Economic Co-operation council, to be held in Vancouver next May.

Sponsored by the Canadian Committee for Pacific Basin Economic Co-operation, which is a joint undertaking of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, the meeting will have some 350 delegates from member nations and guests from East and Southeast Asia.

PBECC is an informal body consisting of senior businessmen in Canada, Australia, Japan, New Zealand, and the U.S., operating entirely under private auspices.

K. H. J. Clarke, chariman of the Canadian committee, said the government's interest has been to co-operate by giving briefings and to respond to PBECC recommendations constructively.

The Vancouver meeting will focus on finding means to stimulate private investment capital in less developed nations with security against expropriation.

Carloadings Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Great Eastern Railway Co. reported 9,064 carloadings in November this year, an increase of 8.2 per cent over the same month last year when loadings totalled 8,377.

Total loadings for 1970 to the end of November were 98,230 compared to 90,053 for the same period last year.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — All commodities continued on buoyant price patterns to the close of trading today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Exporters were active in both rapeseed and rye and flax had moderate trade.

At the close, lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat were all unchanged except northerns which were up two cents.

MAPLE BAY ALL-CANDIDATES MEETING

Come Down From Ivory Tower Cowichan School Board Told

By DONNA CLEMENTS

MAPLE BAY — Cowichan school board has to climb down from its ivory tower and start communicating with the taxpayers, an all-candidates' meeting was told Thursday.

Richard Richards, running for trustee, told the meeting sponsored by the Maple Bay Ratepayers' Association he will work to keep North Cowichan residents fully informed.

Trustee Margaret Whittaker, seeking re-election agreed the board sits in an ivory tower and said too much school board planning is done by staff members.

She said the school building referendum to be voted on Dec. 12 must be passed because there is a real classroom shortage.

"If the referendum is defeated there is no doubt it will be submitted again in the spring," she said.

School board chairman, David Haywood also seeking re-election, didn't attend the meeting.

Council candidate George Whittaker, a contractor, told ratepayers he will work to keep taxes down.

"In the past two years our taxes have increased over 300 per cent," he said.

Whittaker said the increase is due mainly to reassessment rather than new construction.

"In the next six to seven years, if the increases continue, even the most modest house will be paying $2,000 a year taxes.

"Because of rising school municipal taxes people on low incomes are in the position where they can't afford to live in their houses any more," candidate Bill Boykowich, a millworker, said. of roads and beaches to be cleaned," he said.

With North Cowichan being the second largest municipality in British Columbia, Boykowich said it is time council took the lead in welfare and make many welfare recipients earn their money by working for the municipality.

"We have weeds on the side

Each of the seven years he has been on council Ald. Dennis Hogan, a contractor, said there has been a step forward in the municipality.

As finance chairman Hogan said, "This year is a year of restraint and I am sure there will be no large capital projects."

He said that, while keeping his eye on the economy of the district and the employment situation this summer, he will do his utmost to keep the public works budget down.

Ron McKinnon, B.C. Telephone Company repairman, said he is all for increasing the revenue of the district by attracting more industry and commercial establishments.

"I am concerned about inflationary conditions and getting more for your tax dollar," he said.

Mrs. Muriel Richards, phsiotherapist, who said policies are more important than personalities, supported amalgamation of North Cowichan and Duncan.

"A defeated referendum should be shelved for three years before it is brought before the taxpayer again," she said.

Perry Ross, semi-retired, said he will promote pollution control and have the municipal office open noon hours.

"I am retired and in a position to devote my full time to the affairs of the municipality," said Archie Stevenson.

He said there is a need for long range planning and playgrounds for children where huge subdivisions have been erected.

"I urge joint services between Duncan and North Cowichan wherever possible."

Ald. Don Morton, who has been a member of North Cowichan council for 17 years, was absent but had stated at an earlier all-candidate meeting that he is supporting the present municipal administration.

COBBLE HILL MAN KILLED IN CRASH

BOSTON BAR (CP) — RCMP have identified a man killed Wednesday in a two-car collision 18 miles south of here as George Beith, 44, believed to be from Cobble Hill, V.I.

The driver of the second car, James Sparrow, 73, of Forrest, Man., was released from hospital Thursday. His wife Joanna remained in Fraser Canyon Hospital in fair condition.

Police said the accident apparently occurred when the Sparrow car emerged from behind a snowplow and collided head-on with Beith's car.

Former Manager Gets Jail Term

NANAIMO (CP) A former manager of an Empress Paints store was sentenced to six months in jail Thursday for fraud.

Thomas Owen McKay, 23, of Nanaimo, had earlier admitted he took about $13,000 in cash and cheques between Aug. 28 and Oct. 8 when he failed to deposit store receipts.

Court was told $11,000 was recovered and restitution of about $2,000 had been made by McKay.

Free Skating At New Arena

LAKE COWICHAN — Free skating for the 6,500 residents of the 20-mile long Lake Cowichan area will be held Saturday and Sunday in the new arena.

The first of activities in their $392,000 arena will start exactly one year after ratepayers passed the referendum.

The official opening for the 200 x 220 foot curling skating complex will be in January.

Arena manager Doug Anderson, former professional hockey player and manager-coach of the Victoria Cougars, said his main concern is to keep the place busy and the community together in its sporting activities.

Skating sessions will be to 10 p.m. Saturday and 2 to 5 and 7 to 10 p.m. Sunday.

Sewage Plant Considered By L. Cowichan Residents

LAKE COWICHAN — Residents here are considering building a secondary sewage treatment plant because they've been warned their septic tanks are inadequate.

SPEC president John Clark told residents at a panel discussion this week that public health officer Douglas Roe considers the 100-house system below par because of tight soil conditions and heavy rainfall.

The tanks are leaking, he said.

A panel comprised of Jack O'Brien from Associated Engineering Services of Victoria, who drew up original plans for a sewage lagoon system in Lake Cowichan four years ago; John Sansom, North Cowichan municipal engineer, and the University of Victoria's Dr. Lou Hobson, biological oceanographer specializing in nutrients, was asked to give their opinions on a lagoon at Lake Cowichan.

O'Brien said his firm presented a sewage lagoon plan to the village council in 1966 for $560,000 which included a collection and disposal system.

"The request for a bylaw was turned down by Victoria because they felt it was beyond the ability of the village to finance," he explained.

In 1968 the updated estimate for $627,000 was turned down by the municipal affairs department because the village could not arrange interim financing until debentures could be sold.

O'Brien has been asked once again to update the sewage lagoon plans for the 2,353-resident community.

The original recommendation of a sewage lagoon is most practical for a community of this size and financially feasible, O'Brien said.

"A lagoon is a shallow man-made basin in which you use forces of nature to a great extent to carry out purification process."

He said the departments of fishereies, health and pollution control have stipulated that the effluent must be chlorinated and a means provided to hold discharge from the river during the summer if necessary.

Sansom said North Cowichan's 14-acre lagoon which services 1,000 homes has been found satisfactory 98 per cent of the time since it was installed two years ago.

Operating cost is low but the lagoon must have good maintenance or it could become unpleasant and go septic easily, he said.

Hobson discussed the effect of things being emptied into the ocean but said he could not make any definite observations until he knew the chemical breakdown of the Cowichan River.

"I assume if septic tank systems are not good and they are leaking into the river a lagoon would be better," he said. "If all were working as they should then I would have some doubts."

Clark said a secondary treatment plant is not the ultimate but is "certainly better than an inadequate system which Doug Roe tells us we have."

Village clerk Bill Chappell said council has to find out what the lagoon will cost, receive approval from the department of municipal affairs and then present a referendum to taxpayers.

Construction Down In Unorganized Areas

Building permit values are up but house construction is down in Langford, Colwood and Metchosin this year.

Figures from the building department of the Capital Regional District show permits worth $5.5 million issued in the first 11 months compared with $4.4 million in the same period last year.

This included 345 houses so far this year against 381 houses last year.

The higher dollar figure results from a change in valuation earlier this year.

In November, permits worth $600,270 were issued in the area from View Royal to Port Renfrew and $116,050 in the Gulf Islands. This compared with $238,603 for the smaller area of Langford, Colwood, Metchosin in the same month last year.

READERS' DAY

A Look Backward At the Good Life

By Jack Scott

Being some odds and ends in collaboration with our readers, Lord love them:

Miss Nancy Forbes, of this city, suggests that we all spare a moment or two to contemplate the covers, fore and aft, of the new B.C. Telephone book which marks the centennial of British Columbia joining Confederation. It is a thought-provoking exercise.

The front cover shows a scene of perhaps a century ago, a forest clearing with a dozen or more pioneers grouped in the foreground for the photographer. You can all but smell the fragrance of the evergreen forest that marches up to the doors of the primitive shacks. The faces of these people reflect a quality of character, purpose and family solidarity that is downright magnificent. Note particularly the beautiful, smiling young woman in the very centre of the picture.

The rear cover, in full color, shows the high-rise development in Vancouver's West End, the cylindrical, cellular, concrete, crowded jungle of life in the inner circle of the city where people live in tall containers. In this whole panorama shot, incidentally, there's not a single human being to be seen.

Scott

Writes Miss Forbes: "The telephone company sees in these pictures a proud heritage of 100 years as a sound foundation for the builders of a bright future, but looking at this fascinating old picture I have been wondering if the pioneers, themselves, would not be aghast at our way of life today."

Some amused and awed reaction to the formula for a happy marriage as expounded here by Roy and Mona Hundleby, disciples of Dr. Herbert Otto and his love-each-other-very-much method for matrimonial bliss.

A number of correspondents suggest that television is the curse of modern marriages and one often-recurring problem is cited by Mrs. M. T., of Victoria, as follows:

"It wasn't so bad before we acquired cablevision, but now with a dozen channels coming into our living room loud and clear, almost all of them offering wall-to-wall schedules of sporting events every weekend, it has become an actual threat to marriage. I find, as many wives must have found, that I have now lost a husband from Saturday morning until Sunday evening. On one recent Sunday he began his arm-chair quarterbacking at nine o'clock in the morning and was still sitting there 10 hours later, apparently unaware that all communication between us had ceased.

"As marriage counsellors, Mr. and Mrs. Hundleby rightly say that the routine, dormant marriage can only be revived by give and take. What I am dying to hear from them is how this can work with television. I am doing all the giving at the moment, knowing that he finds this a relaxing and rewarding interest, an escape for him after a week at the old grind. But should he be doing some giving as well? What would Dr. Otto have to say on this?"

I sent the query on to Mr. and Mrs. Hundleby who replied as follows:

"Perhaps, in such a case, the wife must ask herself some questions. What has she done to contribute to this lack of communication? Why does he prefer watching games on television? Is she becoming so jealous of this monster that she is making herself unlovable? It's well to remember, too, that most marriage counsellors agree that wives are usually more sensitive than husbands on this matter of communicating and so the husband may be unaware of it.

"This is another case in which Dr. Otto's suggestions for putting more joy into marriage might be carried out. The wife and husband should set aside a time when they could discuss this particular situation and the wider question of the strengths and future of their life together. That is the fundamental of working for more joy in marriage: you must talk about it and plan it."

All sorts of interesting, historical post-scripts to the notes here concerning the Albert Head lighthouse and the reference to Race Rocks, which I'm hoping to visit shortly.

A retired deep-sea captain, now living at East Sooke, points out that this is a particularly appropriate month, for two reasons, to recall the history of the Race Rocks light.

It was exactly 110 years ago, on the night of Dec. 23, 1860, when the barque Nannette foundered there and it was just four days later, on the 27th, that the light went into operation for the first time.

It seems that the 385-ton barque, 175 days and 16,000 miles out of London and just 11 miles from a safe berth in Esquimalt harbor when she went upon the reef in dense fog, carried a general cargo that was largely liquid in content. The looters descended like locusts upon her broken hull before she slid to her grave in 15 fathoms. Some guesses had it that $25,000 worth of English ale, French brandy and Old Tom gin vanished in the nights before Christmas.

It was on another Christmas Day in 1865 that five relatives and friends of the lighthouse-keeper, bound for a day-long visit, perished when their small boat overturned in the 10-knot rip tide. The lighthouse-keeper was dead within the year, so it was said, from grief.

The 105-foot lighthouse, perhaps the most attractive of any on our coast from an esthetic viewpoint, is made from four-foot-thick granite blocks, cut, fitted and numbered in England and brought around the Horn to Esquimalt in 1858, which surely makes it one of the earliest of all pre-fabs.

"As my great-grandfather told the story to me the wreck there of the Nannette reads like a shooting script for the movie Tight Little Island," my captain friend tells me.

"I can find only disconnected accounts of the Race Rocks history," he notes. "Surely there is a great book waiting here for someone to write."

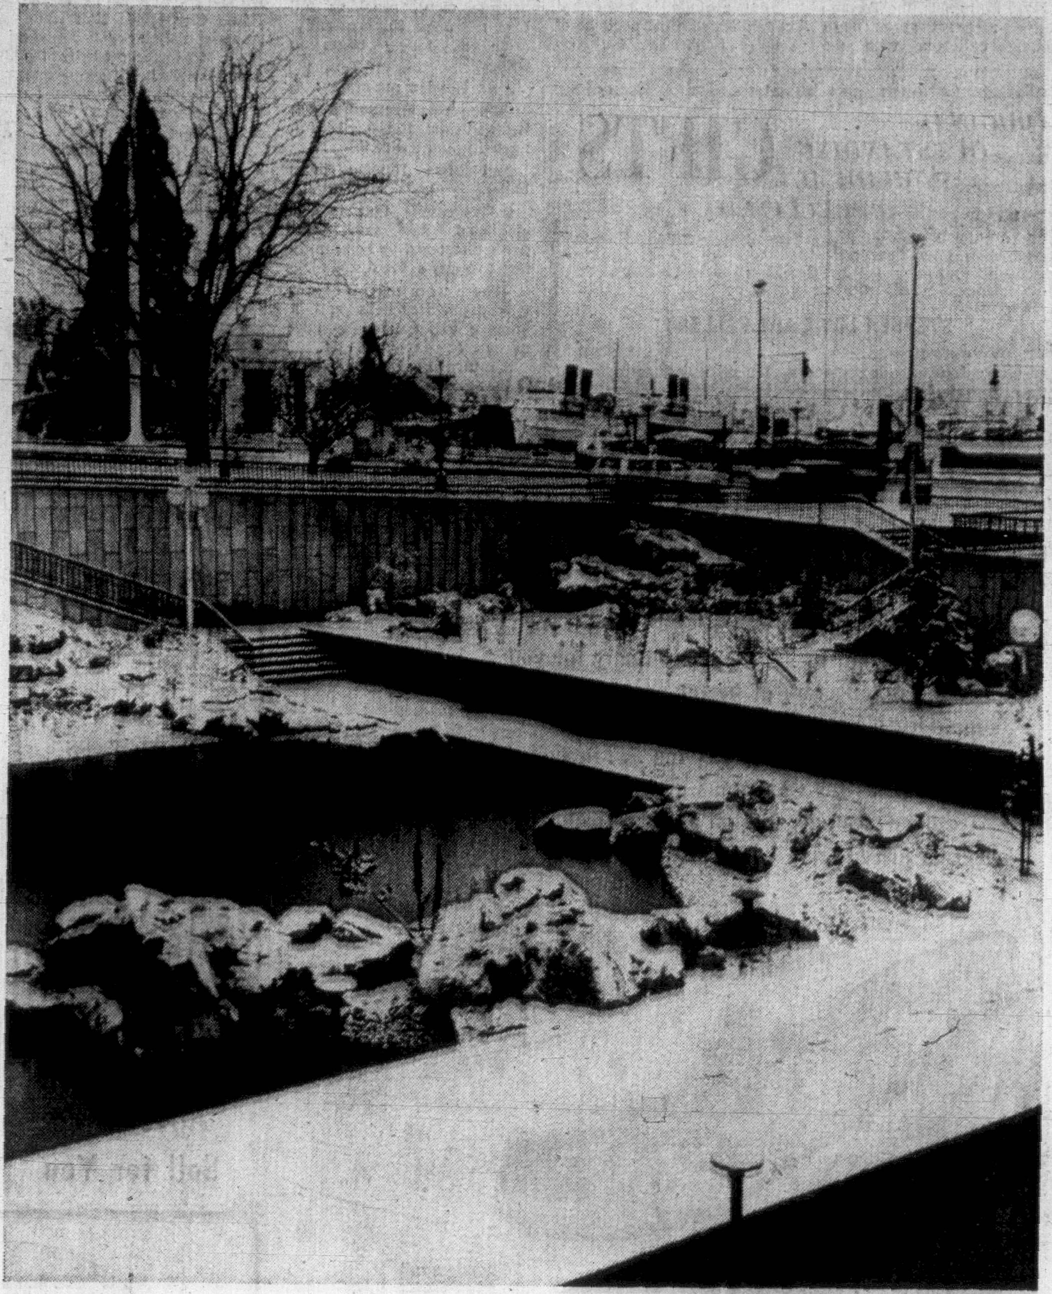
No less than five readers, with long memories of the days when your correspondent operated at another place in another time, have asked if they may expect a reprinting of the famous Morton Thompson Method for Cooking a Christmas Turkey.

In the face of such enormous public demand the answer will have to be yes—sometime next week, perhaps, to give you ample time for amassing the many and costly ingredients.

The late Morton Thompson, writer, raconteur and gourmet, first made public his incredible formula in a memorable collection of humorous essays called "Joe, the Wounded Tennis Player." My own experiment with the method was such an unqualified success that I reprinted the directions for 18 consecutive years.

The Thompson Method is relatively costly, as you will see, back-breaking in its demands and by no means foolproof. Indeed, the post-Christmas reports that came to me were almost always limited to one of two words: "Magnificent" or "Disastrous."



OVERNIGHT SNOW etches sharp contrast around ornamental pond beside Provincial Museum this morning. Fall produced a number of bashed fenders on slippery streets but no serious mishaps. More snow or rain is predicted for tonight with rain following Saturday. (Irving Strickland Photo)

MIXED RAIN AND SNOW TONIGHT

Area Motorists Crawl to Work

Saanich and Oak Bay municipalities were the hardest hit today as Greater Victoria residents slithered their way to work on roads made treacherous by Thursday night's snowfall.

This morning Saanich police were hustling, unsnarling traffic that blocked most of the major intersections. There were a rash of minor accidents, caused by hazardous snow-packed roads.

As motorists drove to work one Oak Bay policeman described the situation as having "more accidents than policemen."

In contrast Victoria and Esquimalt escaped almost unscathed.

One minor accident, involving $200 damage, was reported by Esquimalt police this morning while the few in the city were of the "fender-bashing" variety police said.

Overnight the temperature dipped to 29 degrees at Gonzales and a cooler 23 degrees at the Victoria International Airport.

The Pat Bay Highway and Malahat were reported in good condition with surfaces sanded.

Between one and four inches of snow fell in the Greater Victoria overnight.

While no records were set in the Greater Victoria area, history was made in parts of northern Vancouver Island and the interior of the province.

Terrace in northern B.C. was one degree below zero, down 15 degrees from the low of 14 above set in 1956; record.

A fairly active storm is expected to move in from the west tonight, bringing a mixture of rain and snow, which will change to rain Saturday. Temperatures are expected to rise to the low or mid 40s.

Strong southeasterlies of 25 miles an hour will accompany the rain.

Low Income Study Seeks Welfare Groups' Views

Canada's low income and welfare rights groups will be given questionnaires next week to determine their views on make-work and work-for-welfare programs.

The study is sponsored by the Victoria Low Income Group and Victoria Citizens' Committee on Unemployment.

Low Income Group president Walter Olszewski said today the questionnaires will be distributed at a planning committee meeting next week for the poor peoples' conference to be held in Toronto in January.

He said work projects are government-sponsored programs whereas work for welfare schemes require welfare recipients to work for their cheques.

Langley, B.C., has begun a work for welfare program and Vancouver wants to, he said.

The questionnaire will seek answers to poor peoples' experiences with wages and working conditions on these projects as well as their general feelings about their worth.

Olszewski said work for welfare schemes can be like "government-supported slave labor" of wages are below minimums, and job security, unemployment insurance and bargaining powers are not included.

Kirkby Plans Strong Fight To Keep Job

The University of Victoria's dean of arts and sciences has overturned a recommendation from a philosophy department committee that Dr. Ronald Kirkby receive another two-year appointment.

However, the dean, Dr. John Climenhaga, said public or private pressure for dismissal of Kirkby, who announced support for the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec in October, "certainly didn't enter into my consideration."

Climenhaga also said his recommendation, which will go to Uvic president Dr. Bruce Partridge, was made "on academic considerations only, although some people may not believe that.

"Nevertheless, that was the sole basis for my decision."

Climenhaga was asked if deans often reverse the decision of a departmental committee on contract renewals.

"Normally it doesn't happen too often, but there are special occasions."

He said in considering contract renewals it was his job "to look at the broad picture of the university," which is beyond the scope of a departmental committee.

Kirkby learned of Climenhaga's decision in a letter he recieved from the dean on Monday.

The final decision on his contract, which expires next spring, will be made by the board of governors.

He said he would fight the decision, possibly by appealing to the board.

"I really refuse to be kicked out because I'm unorthodox."

He said the university is responding to pressure from the government to fire him, because if he isn't fired, the government can retaliate by reducing capital or operating grants.

Kirkby said while no reasons have been given for the decision not to renew his contract, even if a reason was given, it wouldn't be the real one that "they want to get rid of me."

Dr. Partridge could not be reached for comment today.

Criticism Mild Of Mess Drive

Mayor Courtney Haddock's campaign to refurbish the Victoria police officers' mess with funds solicited from businessmen has been only midly criticized by his political colleagues.

At least one alderman praised Haddock for his efforts to support the force.

Ald. Peter Pollen said today: "Frankly, I'm pleased with the mayor's courage in the face of completely unjustified ciriticism. He's obviously trying to improve the morale of his police force and he should be commended for it."

Critisicm seemed to be summed up by aldermanic candidate Tony Miller who said it was "a good idea at the time, that didn't go down well."

Two other aldermanic candidates, Robert Baird and Robert Ellis, said that any such campaign should be conducted by the policemen themselves and not by the city's chief magistrate.

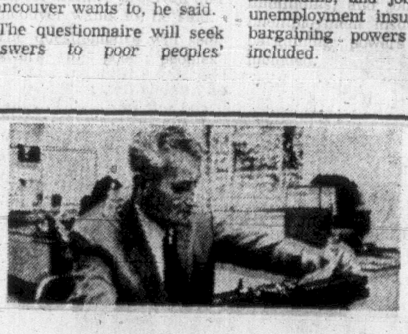
Ald. Cecil Parrott said he had no reason to comment because there were no public funds involved.

Aldermen Meet Monday On Institute Brief

A special meeting of Victoria city council has been called for 2 p.m. Monday to approve a brief to be sent to Ottawa asking that the planned federal oceanographic institute be located here.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said today the brief, prepared by the city in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce, should be sent off as soon as possible.

Haddock decided to push for the institute following a report by a high federal official last months that it could be located in Vancouver where full university and industry resources are situated.



Arthur Mayse . . .

IF FOR NOTHING ELSE, the third of December, 1970, deserves to be remembered because of an extraordinary footnote to Canadian history made on that day.

Here's the guest in Canada's house, delivered from his kidnappers and walking free. And here are the three terrorists, their deal made and their safe-conduct assured, bound for Cuba and such sanctuary as they may receive there.

We can only guess how later historians will react to that most curious exchange. For all we in the present know, the scruffy trio may emerge as folk-heroes — romantic exiles to whom time in its passing has conveyed an undeserved aura.

But at least, they have been denied the martyr's crowns which might have dignified their muddled cause. The treaty wasn't broken. They were not shot down or snatched back to stand trial in a Canadian court.

Instead, Canada's loss of three it can well spare becomes Castro's dubious gain.

It is possible, of course, that the bearded one may find the gift not altogether to his taste.

After all, he has made his own revolution. Unless he can find uses beyond their limited propaganda value for his FLQ guests, there's not too much he can find to do with them.

Perhaps on an island where production is now more to the point than demonstration, he could put them to cutting cane.

Letter to hand from Miss Mona Morley of 450 Dallas Road, who has a notion to offer.

Factor and later governor Sir James Douglas, she points out, "appears to have been the chief person responsible for making treaties with the Indians to buy their land."

Her idea, which I find a novel addition to the many put forward for the blowing of our next year's centennial buckshee:

"Thinking about the present Indian claims," Miss Morley writes, "I wondered if it would be a good suggestion to use the centennial funds to buy back the province from the Indians in 1971?"

It's a worthy thought, but perhaps, for the sake of the native peoples as well as British Columbians of other race-roots, we should first buy back the province from the Americans.

And with Rupert Inlet, the Skagit Valley and other such in mind, we shouldn't waste too much time!

On Wednesday, I told you about a neurotic squirrel monkey which was restored to health and happiness when transferred from our SPCA Animal Shelter to a Duncan area zoo.

On Wednesday evening, Mrs. V. W. Smith of 237 King George Terrace began to receive phone calls from her friends.

The burden of these was, "That must be your Sadie."

But Sadie, a well-oriented squirrel monkey of happy disposition, went missing on Armistice Day, whereas the one in my account became an SPCA charge a few weeks earlier.

Sadie is still missing without trace, to the anxiety of her people.

She — or I should say he, since her gender wasn't discovered until after the naming — spent much more time in garden than cage. Sadie played in the trees. He liked ripe blackberries, and robbed the Smith strawberry patch when the chance offered. He was two years old, and happy.

Unlike the Man called Sue, he did not brood over his name.

Unlike the Man called Sue, he did not brood over his name.

Its possible that he strayed. If so, his finder would delight a family that misses him by getting in touch with Mrs. Smith.

CROSS . . . 'nice to see the sun again'

'Like Being Out of Hell'

Times News Services

MONTREAL — British diplomat James Cross stepped into the light of freedom Thursday for the first time in two months and said:

"It's almost like being out of hell—perhaps purgatory would be a better expression."

His freedom came when his terrorist kidnappers accepted a government offer of safe conduct and fled to exile in Cuba.

His captors and several members of their families left Montreal about 4:47 p.m. (PST) bound for their Caribbean sanctuary aboard a Canadian Forces Yukon transport plane.

Cross was apparently in good physical and mental shape after his 60-day ordeal, but was taken early today to Jewish General Hospital.

He suffers from a blood-pressure ailment but apparently had medication for the condition during his captivity.

In Ottawa it was announced that Cross will be flown to London Saturday where he will rejoin his wife.

Cross said Thursday was "one of the happiest days of my life."

Referring to his sunless eight weeks, Cross said: "It's a small thing and suddenly you come out of a house and it's a bright day like today and you suddenly realize how much a little thing like that, that costs you nothing, means in one's day-to-day life."

He described his situation in captivity as "a state of suspended animation" and said he thought he had seen more than 160 films on television.

"They were French films so that I'm probably the leading expert of the past 30 years," he joked.

But he introduced a more sombre note as he said he did not know his future plans.

"It may be difficult for me to return to Montreal," he said.

"I've enjoyed enormously my three years here and it's a bit sad that we ended up on this note."

The diplomat's release brought a happy ending to a drama in which troops stood guard with automatic weapons in Quebec province and Ottawa and police powers were Beefed up with special powers of arrest and detention under the War Measures Act.

The happy fate of Cross, North America's first victim of political kidnapping, contrasted starkly with the fate of Pierre Laporte, former

Duplex Eyed Over 2 Weeks

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Police suspected for 2½ weeks that the Montreal North duplex was the FLQ prison of James Cross, says Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette.

"But they were not really sure until Wednesday night," he told a news conference.

The stakes were too high—Mr. Cross' life—to move in earlier.

As it turned out, the three persons holding the 49-year-old envoy got wind of the police presence and threatened to kill him if any attempts were made to rescue him.

THROW OUT NOTE

After police had encircled the house—sealed off now for an indefinite period—and were ready to move in Thursday morning, someone threw out a lead pipe containing a toughly-worded message which read:

"If you try anything gas, guns, etc. Mr. J. Cross will be the first to die. We have several sticks of dynamite with detonators."

Mr. Choquette confirmed police fears about the danger involved in any premature action, saying they had to "pay attention" to Mr. Cross' life.

"The threat of an explosion was a real threat."

With the house "completely cornered" by several hundred police and soldiers, Mr. Choquette said, the three men holding Mr. Cross had to negotiate their way out.

What would have happened if the trio had refused to negotiate?

ASK FOR NEGOTIATOR

"I can't see many avenues," Mr. Choquette said. "I can see a siege, a long drawn-out siege, or other police actions. But the problem never arose."

MRS. CROSS ELATED
SEE PAGE 7

The note asked that a reporter from Le Devoir, the weekly Quebec-Presse or lawyer Bernard Mergler, who has often represented accused terrorists, enter negotiations.

Mr. Mergler was selected and an agreement was reached about 1 p.m., with a total of seven persons getting safe passage to Cuba in exchange for Mr. Cross, Mr. Choquette said.

Robert Demers acted as negotiator for the Quebec and federal governments.

Mr. Choquette said it was even a tight-rope situation in getting the entire group to the Canadian pavilion on the former site of Expo '67, where Mr. Cross was to be released on temporary Cuban soil and the seven would be

CROSS GAVE CLUE IN LETTER

TORONTO (UPI) — British diplomat James Cross may have helped police discover the Montreal northend hideout where he was kept hostage for 60 days by the Front de Liberation du Quebec, the Toronto Star said today.

In a letter written early in his captivity, and released by the FLQ, Cross wrote the date and time—9:45 a.m.—at the top of the paper.

Then he underlined the numeral "one" at the beginning of the first paragraph, the newspaper said. In military terms, 9:45 a.m. is written 0945.

"Add the 'one' from the first paragraph and you have 10945, the precise address on Avenue des Recollets," the street on which the house that contained Cross and his abductors is located.

Dublin Fears Uprising

DUBLIN (AP) — The Irish Republican government tonight assumed sweeping powers to intern any citizen because of what it called "a secret armed conspiracy" against the state.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch said in a statement that Ireland's police forces had uncovered a plot to kidnap prominent personalities, carry out raids on banks and even attempt murder of leading officials.

The government views the situation "with deep gravity," the prime minister added.

Seattle Mayor Opposes Skagit Valley Flooding

Seattle Mayor Wes Uhlman said Thursday he opposes the flooding of the Skagit Valley and has directed Seattle City Light not to apply to the Federal Power Commission for permission to go ahead on the project.

The mayor's action was in response to a request from the chairman of the city's utilities committee asking for his position on the controversial project which would flood more than 5,000 acres of B.C. land.

Uhlman's order not to proceed could be overturned by the city council which is currently considering the question. A spokesman for the mayor's office said there have been some changes in council makeup since 1969 when the council gave permission for the application to proceed.

But there was no indication which way the council would vote on the question.

In his letter, Uhlman said that after a review of the issue "the negative environmental impact appears to outweigh the real power benefits."

OLD AGREEMENT

Under a 1942 international agreement and a 1967 agreement with B.C., Seattle has the right to raise the level of Ross Lake flooding the Skagit to raise peak power capacity of the Ross Dam.

The city needs permission of the U.S. federal power commission before it can proceed.

USC Provides Them With Gift of Life

As Christmas approaches for Canadians, thoughts turn to scenes of gifts laid out under a decorated tree, fun times with friends and relatives and of course a traditional Christmas dinner, complete with turkey, potatoes and plum puddings.

For the children of Asia no such pleasant scene exists. No puddings, no gifts, no tree. Only the day-to-day search for the source of their next meal.

For many Asian children that source is the Unitarian Service Committee, a private charitable organization which for 25 years has been supplying food, clothing and educational services to needy people around the world.

The USC needs donations however to be able to provide these services and this year, for the 18th consecutive year, the Victoria Daily Times is sponsoring the USC's Children of Asia Fund.

Donations to the fund may be mailed or delivered personally to the Times, 2631 Douglas.

KIDNAPPERS MAY NEVER RETURN

Charges Hang Over Them

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials of the justice department said today that if the kidnappers of James Cross return to Canada at any time, they must face criminal charges.

Don Christie, assistant deputy attorney-general, said an obvious charge against some of those flown to Cuba Thursday is one of kidnapping.

"Because it is an indictable offence and carries a sentence of jail for life, the statute of limitations does not apply in their case," Christie said.

"If they want to come back at any time, they would do so at their own risk," said Christie.

Jacques Lanctot, 25, and Marc Carbonneau, 37, among the seven flown to Cuba in return for the release of Cross, are said to be subject to kidnap charges.

Also on the plane is Perre Seguin, the third man in the north-end Montreal apartment in which the British trade envoy was being held.

No warrants were out for Seguin but informed sources here said he was fingerprinted before departure.

Sources said the government won't seek extradition of the men, though the possibility technically may exist.

Budget Hit By Bennett

Loan Plan Favors Quebec

Premier Bennett reacted angrily today to the federal budget speech given by Finance Minister Benson Thursday night.

"The federal government is a government for Quebec . . . just a regional, one-province government," Bennett said, commenting on a new loan plan that permits Quebec to borrow $68 million, British Columbia $35 million and Ontario $17 million.

The loans at 7.91 per cent are to provide provincial and municipal works projects to combat unemployment.

The program was proposed by Quebec, which gets the lion's share of the money. B.C. and Ontario are the only two other provinces to be eligible for more than $10 million.

Newfoundland may borrow up to $5 million, Prince Edward Island $1 million, Nova Scotia $4 million, New Brunswick $4 million, Manitoba $8 million, Saskatchewan

LITTLE FOR ALBERTA IN BUDGET—STROM

Alberta Premier Harry Strom today criticized Finance Minister Benson's mini-budget saying it gives little to the prairie provinces but a lot to Quebec.

Strom joins others who believe there is little or nothing offered to spur the economy. See Page 8.

Locally, both business and labor leaders are cool to the budget proposals. See story on Page 2.

Make-Work Plan Pushed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has chosen make-work projects rather than personal tax cuts to pump new life into the Canadian economy in the next year.

In his Thursday night budget, Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced a string of measures designed to funnel more money into public and private projects in an effort to stimulate the economy and reduce unemployment.

UIC Benefits Increased 10%

His announcements included:

—A 10-per-cent increase in unemployment insurance benefits starting Jan. 3.

—A new loan fund of $151 million to help finance provincial public works projects.

—An incentive plan to save business about $25 million next year and encourage plant construction and expansion.

—Additional spending of $23 million on federal job-creating projects, $20 million for roads and services for the new Montreal airport and $40 million for Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. to encourage home construction.

—Extension of government programs aimed at assisting industry in certain slow-growth areas where unemployment is highest.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield immediately termed it a budget of "groans, bones and loans."

NDP Calls Hike Ridiculous

Mr. Stanfield said the only bright note was the increase in unemployment insurance benefits and Mr. Lewis called it ridiculous since the increase was so small.

The loan fund to encourage new works in the provinces is to be allocated on a formula tied to the unemployment rate, thus putting the majority of the new jobs where they are most needed. It could lead to creation of 15,000 to 25,000 year-long jobs.

The budget was the second this year. The first, last March, came when inflation was the main concern and Mr. Benson said Thursday that this danger has not passed.

The increase in unemployment insurance benefits will run until the end of June, when a revised, higher scale of payments becomes effective.

Pump Money in Job-Scarce Areas

The interim increase, the first since June, 1968, will provide an extra $20 monthly to unemployed workers whose earnings while they worked were $90 a week or more. About half of those now unemployed fall within this range.

The program of loans and grants for public works projects by federal, provincial and municipal governments pumps an extra $200 million or so into regions where jobs are scarce. About half goes to Quebec.

The major scheme is the $151 million loan fund from which the provinces can borrow at low interest for long terms. Tied to a regional unemployment formula, it provides amounts ranging from $68 million for Quebec and $35 million for British Columbia to $1 million for Prince Edward Island.

An earlier program de-

BURST WATER MAIN flooded basement Thursday night at home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spink, 1479 Finlayson, gushing six feet of water under the house. Teen-agers Roger Lessard, 15, and Bill Shearer, 14, who live near by, donned wet suits and recovered 13 trunks full of clothes. Spinks had been packing for a January move to England. Lessard and Shearer found the furnace flooded and the freezer half-floating in the water. Greater Victoria water board crews closed the main by 8 p.m., one hour after break occurred. Water was pumped out of basement, but the Spinks had to move out of their home for the night. (Bill Halkett Photo)

Best Fish Buy in Town Sunday

Fishermen's Wharf on Erie Street will offer one of the biggest bargains in town Sunday.

For $1 providing they bring along a container big enough to hold them, Victorians will be able to buy 18 pounds of herring.

The sale, being organized by members of the Victoria local of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, is one of several arranged on the West Coast.

Proceeds are earmarked for the Children's Christmas Tree Fund, designed to help children of Nova Scotian fishemen, who have just finished a seven-month strike.

On Sunday 45 tons of herring was sold at a similar event in New Westminster. Vancouver will hold another sale Sunday.

Beginning at 8 a.m. Sunday, $1 buckets of herring will also be on sale at Nanaimo's Fishermen's Wharf, below the Bastion.

The union and fishing companies have combined forces to make the sales successful.

Working under frigid conditions, volunteer crews have fished in the seiner Western Mariner, supplied by Nelson Bros. Fishing Co.

Volunteer packers have helped unload from the brine-refrigerated fish packer Western Star and will give their time at the vaious sales.

The herring sales have been annual events for several years, with the proceeds always being used for children's charities.

Oil Companies Fall in Line

Major oil companies predictably fell into line with a cent-a-gallon price increase for wholesale gasoline, diesel and heating oils imposed this week by Imperial Oil Ltd.

Gulf, Home and Shell came up with similar raises Thursday, but Texaco, the second to move, refused to go the full cent and limited its adjustment to .7 of a cent.

All companies claim the rise in operating costs is running faster than prices justify.

Shell's increase was effective today.

CROSS . . . 'nice to see the sun again'

'Like Being Out of Hell'

Times News Services

MONTREAL — British diplomat James Cross stepped into the light of freedom Thursday for the first time in two months and said:

"It's almost like being out of hell—perhaps purgatory would be a better expression."

His freedom came when his terrorist kidnappers accepted a government offer of safe conduct and fled to exile in Cuba.

His captors and several members of their families left Montreal about 4:47 p.m. (PST) bound for their Caribbean sanctuary aboard a Canadian Forces Yukon transport plane.

Cross was apparently in good physical and mental shape after his 60-day ordeal, but was taken early today to Jewish General Hospital.

He suffers from a blood-pressure ailment but apparently had medication for the condition during his captivity.

In Ottawa it was announced that Cross will be flown to London Saturday where he will rejoin his wife.

Cross said Thursday was "one of the happiest days of my life."

Referring to his sunless eight weeks, Cross said: "It's a small thing and suddenly you come out of a house and it's a bright day like today and you suddenly realize how much a little thing like that, that costs you nothing, means in one's day-to-day life."

He described his situation in captivity as "a state of suspended animation" and said he thought he had seen more than 160 films on television.

"They were French films so that I'm probably the leading expert of the past 30 years," he joked.

But he introduced a more sombre note as he said he did not know his future plans.

"It may be difficult for me to return to Montreal," he said.

"I've enjoyed enormously my three years here and it's a bit sad that we ended up on this note."

The diplomat's release brought a happy ending to a drama in which troops stood guard with automatic weapons in Quebec province and Ottawa and police powers were Beefed up with special powers of arrest and detention under the War Measures Act.

The happy fate of Cross, North America's first victim of political kidnapping, contrasted starkly with the fate of Pierre Laporte, former

Duplex Eyed Over 2 Weeks

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Police suspected for 2½ weeks that the Montreal North duplex was the FLQ prison of James Cross, says Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette.

"But they were not really sure until Wednesday night," he told a news conference.

The stakes were too high—Mr. Cross' life—to move in earlier.

As it turned out, the three persons holding the 49-year-old envoy got wind of the police presence and threatened to kill him if any attempts were made to rescue him.

THROW OUT NOTE

After police had encircled the house—sealed off now for an indefinite period—and were ready to move in Thursday morning, someone threw out a lead pipe containing a toughly-worded message which read:

"If you try anything gas, guns, etc. Mr. J. Cross will be the first to die. We have several sticks of dynamite with detonators."

Mr. Choquette confirmed police fears about the danger involved in any premature action, saying they had to "pay attention" to Mr. Cross' life.

"The threat of an explosion was a real threat."

With the house "completely cornered" by several hundred police and soldiers, Mr. Choquette said, the three men holding Mr. Cross had to negotiate their way out.

What would have happened if the trio had refused to negotiate?

ASK FOR NEGOTIATOR

"I can't see many avenues," Mr. Choquette said. "I can see a siege, a long drawn-out siege, or other police actions. But the problem never arose."

MRS. CROSS ELATED

The note asked that a reporter from Le Devoir, the weekly Quebec-Presse or lawyer Bernard Mergler, who has often represented accused terrorists, enter negotiations.

Mr. Mergler was selected and an agreement was reached about 1 p.m., with a total of seven persons getting safe passage to Cuba in exchange for Mr. Cross, Mr. Choquette said.

Robert Demers acted as negotiator for the Quebec and federal governments.

Mr. Choquette said it was even a tight-rope situation in getting the entire group to the Canadian pavilion on the former site of Expo '67, where Mr. Cross was to be released on temporary Cuban soil and the seven would be

CROSS GAVE CLUE IN LETTER

TORONTO (UPI) — British diplomat James Cross may have helped police discover the Montreal northend hideout where he was kept hostage for 60 days by the Front de Liberation du Quebec, the Toronto Star said today.

In a letter written early in his captivity, and released by the FLQ, Cross wrote the date and time—9:45 a.m.—at the top of the paper.

Then he underlined the numeral "one" at the beginning of the first paragraph, the newspaper said. In military terms, 9:45 a.m. is written 0945.

"Add the 'one' from the first paragraph and you have 10945, the precise address on Avenue des Recollets," the street on which the house that contained Cross and his abductors is located.

Dublin Fears Uprising

DUBLIN (AP) — The Irish Republican government tonight assumed sweeping powers to intern any citizen because of what it called "a secret armed conspiracy" against the state.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch said in a statement that Ireland's police forces had uncovered a plot to kidnap prominent personalities, carry out raids on banks and even attempt murder of leading officials.

The government views the situation "with deep gravity," the prime minister added.

Bennett Hits Budget As Favoring Quebec

Premier Bennett reacted angrily today to the federal budget speech given by Finance Minister Benson Thursday night.

"The federal government is a government for Quebec . . . just a regional, one-province government," Bennett said, commenting on a new loan plan that permits Quebec to borrow $68 million, British Columbia $35 million and Ontario $17 million.

The loans at 7.91 per cent are to provide provincial and municipal works projects to combat unemployment.

The program was proposed by Quebec, which gets the lion's share of the money. B.C. and Ontario are the only two other provinces to be eligible for more than $10 million.

Newfoundland may borrow up to $5 million, Prince Edward Island $1 million, Nova Scotia $4 million, New Brunswick $4 million, Manitoba $8 million, Saskatchewan

USC Provides Them With Gift of Life

As Christmas approaches for Canadians, thoughts turn to scenes of gifts laid out under a decorated tree, fun times with friends and relatives and of course a traditional Christmas dinner, complete with turkey, potatoes and plum puddings.

For the children of Asia no such pleasant scene exists. No puddings, no gifts, no tree. Only the day-to-day search for the source of their next meal.

For many Asian children that source is the Unitarian Service Committee, a private charitable organization which for 25 years has been supplying food, clothing and educational services to needy people around the world.

The USC needs donations however to be able to provide these services and this year, for the 18th consecutive year, the Victoria Daily Times is sponsoring the USC's Children of Asia Fund.

Donations to the fund may be mailed or delivered personally to the Times, 2631 Douglas.

KIDNAPPERS MAY NEVER RETURN

Charges Hang Over Them

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials of the justice department said today that if the kidnappers of James Cross return to Canada at any time, they must face criminal charges.

Don Christie, assistant deputy attorney-general, said an obvious charge against some of those flown to Cuba Thursday is one of kidnapping.

"Because it is an indictable offence and carries a sentence of jail for life, the statute of limitations does not apply in their case," Christie said.

"If they want to come back at any time, they would do so at their own risk," said Christie.

Jacques Lanctot, 25, and Marc Carbonneau, 37, among the seven flown to Cuba in return for the release of Cross, are said to be subject to kidnap charges.

Also on the plane is Perre Seguin, the third man in the north-end Montreal apartment in which the British trade envoy was being held.

No warrants were out for Seguin but informed sources here said he was fingerprinted before departure.

Sources said the government won't seek extradition of the men, though the possibility technically may exist.

Skagit Flood Halt Ordered

Seattle Mayor Acts

Seattle Mayor Wes Uhlman said Thursday he opposes the flooding of the Skagit Valley and has directed Seattle City Light not to apply to the Federal Power Commission to go ahead on the project.

The mayor's action was in response to a request from the chairman of the city's utilities committee asking for his position on the controversial project which would flood more than 5,000 acres of B.C. land.

Uhlman's order not to proceed could be overturned by the city council which is currently considering the question. A spokesman for the mayor's office said there have been some changes in council makeup since 1969 when the council gave permission for the application to proceed.

But there was no indication which way the council would vote on the question.

In his letter, Uhlman said that after a review of the issue "the negative environmental impact appears to outweigh the real power benefits."

OLD AGREEMENT

Under a 1942 international agreement and a 1967 agreement with B.C., Seattle has the right to raise the level of Ross Lake flooding the Skagit to raise peak power capacity of the Ross Dam.

The city needs permission of the U.S. federal power commission before it can proceed.

LITTLE FOR ALBERTA IN BUDGET—STROM

Alberta Premier Harry Strom today criticized Finance Minister Benson's mini-budget saying it gives little to the prairie provinces but a lot to Quebec.

Strom joins others who believe there is little or nothing offered to spur the economy. See Page 8.

Locally, both business and labor leaders are cool to the budget proposals. See story on Page 2.

Make-Work Plan Pushed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has chosen make-work projects rather than personal tax cuts to pump new life into the Canadian economy in the next year.

In his Thursday night budget, Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced a string of measures designed to funnel more money into public and private projects in an effort to stimulate the economy and reduce unemployment.

UIC Benefits Increased 10%

His announcements included:

—A 10-per-cent increase in unemployment insurance benefits starting Jan. 3.

—A new loan fund of $151 million to help finance provincial public works projects.

—An incentive plan to save business about $25 million next year and encourage plant construction and expansion.

—Additional spending of $23 million on federal job-creating projects, $20 million for roads and services for the new Montreal airport and $40 million for Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. to encourage home construction.

—Extension of government programs aimed at assisting industry in certain slow-growth areas where unemployment is highest.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield immediately termed it a budget of "groans, bones and loans."

NDP Calls Hike Ridiculous

Mr. Stanfield said the only bright note was the increase in unemployment insurance benefits and Mr. Lewis called it ridiculous since the increase was so small.

The loan fund to encourage new works in the provinces is to be allocated on a formula tied to the unemployment rate, thus putting the majority of the new jobs where they are most needed. It could lead to creation of 15,000 to 25,000 year-long jobs.

The budget was the second this year. The first, last March, came when inflation was the main concern and Mr. Benson said Thursday that this danger has not passed.

The increase in unemployment insurance benefits will run until the end of June, when a revised, higher scale of payments becomes effective.

Pump Money in Job-Scarce Areas

The interim increase, the first since June, 1968, will provide an extra $20 monthly to unemployed workers whose earnings while they worked were $90 a week or more. About half of those now unemployed fall within this range.

The program of loans and grants for public works projects by federal, provincial and municipal governments pumps an extra $200 million or so into regions where jobs are scarce. About half goes to Quebec.

The major scheme is the $151 million loan fund from which the provinces can borrow at low interest for long terms. Tied to a regional unemployment formula, it provides amounts ranging from $68 million for Quebec and $35 million for British Columbia to $1 million for Prince Edward Island.

An earlier program de-
